7. Your Doctor's Care. Keep in touch with your doctor. Take your baby to him regularly. Get his advice promptly at any indication of digestive disturbance.

Though the babies outside of the larger cities have the advantage of fresh air and more open spaces than the city babies and have long been supposed to be sturdier than the city babies, the records of the State Department of Health show less sickness and fewer deaths among the babies and young children in Baltimore City from diarrheal diseases than among the babies in the counties. Taking the figures for the last ten years, it is interesting to note that from 1917 to 1921 the county babies had the advantage. But from 1922 to 1926 the conditions were reversed, with many more deaths among the babies in the rest of the State than in Baltimore City.

Commenting upon the greater loss among the county babies, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene said, "The marked decrease in sickness and deaths from diarrheal diseases among the babies in Baltimore City corresponds closely to the greater care in the handling of the milk in the city and to the greater ease with which the mothers in the city can secure the necessary advice."

Baltimore and Ohio Pageant Being Well Advertised.

The Baltimore and Ohio Centenary Exhibition and Pageant, to be held in Baltimore, September 24th to October 8th, has provided interest and inspiration in poster designing for announcing the event. Four posters have been seleeted and will be displayed quite generally in the near future.

One of these posters, "The Phantom Engine," pictures an early type of locomotive puffing along in its antique way, manned by an engineer and a fireman in red shirts. Above their heads, faint but distinct against a light background, is the phantom engine, a dream of far-seeing prophecy come true; ponderous yet graceful, with smoke streaming back and giving a sense of speed, beauty and of power. The color scheme is harmonious and bright. This poster was designed by H. D. Stitt, of Baltimore.

A second poster shows in three sections, one above the other, the parade on July the Fourth, 1828, in the City of Baltimore, in honor of the laying of the "First Stone" of the railroad. Drawing from history for material, the artist has reproduced a colorful picture in the eostumes and atmosphere of the festive oceasion of that early period, with its carriages, horse drawn coaches, floats, leading citizens, Maryland militia and a clipper ship resting at anchor in the background. This was designed by Edward A. Wilson, of New York.

Another poster is a visualization of the 100 years that span the development of the railroad, placing the tiny "Tom Thumb," first American-built locomotive of 1829-30, alongside the "Lord Baltimore," the largest passenger engine built at Mount Clare shops, Baltimore, in 1925. In back of the former stand houses typical of Baltimore Town in early days, while rising above the big "Lord Baltimore" are buildings and towering skyscrapers of the present age. This is the work of L. Vassar Elam, of New York.

The fourth poster announces the Centenary Exhibition in the old-fashinoed wording and lettering that prevailed in the early part of the last century. At the top of this poster is the powerful locomotive, "Lord Baltimore," and little "Tom Thumb" at the bottom. This was designed by George Illian, of New York.

MARYLAND TO PLACE NEW ROAD MARKERS AT ONCE

4,000 Shield-Like Signs to Be Set on the Highways of State, Some to be Illuminated.

Four thousand uniform road markers are to be placed on the six Federal highways running through Maryland and on all important State roads this year, the State Roads Commission has announced. Garrett county will be affected on the National Highway only, which will hereafter be known as Route 40, according to the new plan.

The markers are to be of the black and white type of the United States. Where the stars are commonly placed "Maryland" is to be raised in black letters on a white background, and below that the letters "U. S." and the number of the highway.

The change has been made because of duplications that confuse travelers where names are used for roads. When the marking is complete 90,000 miles of roads will have been numbered.

500 Illuminated Numerals.

At five hundred important intersections the markers are to bear illuminated numerals, the Roads Commission has decided. Of the total of four thousand signs, 2,500 are to guide motorists on the six Federal roads, and the remainder are to be placed on other highways in the State. Each shield, which is approximately two feet square, is to be bought in the next few days.

National Pike as No. 40.

What is now the National Pike to Marylanders will be Highway No. 40 under the new system. It enters Maryland near Elkton, comes through Aberdeen to Baltimore, then out the Frederick Road to Hagerstown and Cumberland. It passes through the Garrett county town of Grantsville and at Keyser's Ridge it eonnects with the improved highway running from Oakland, Deer Park and from the Maryland State line near Red House.

"BUSINESS MENS DAY" AT THE COUNTY FAIR ASSURED

Those Interviewed Are Enthusiastic Concerning Parade—All Promise to Participate

That the business men would have charge of one day of the Garrett County Fair was assured by Henry Lauer, one of the members of the committee who interviewed the majority of business houses yesterday afternoon. Everyone who was seen assured the committee that they would gladly decorate their windows, and not one refused to put something in the parade. Those thinking it would be impossible to get a car, assured them that they would have something in the parade.

At a meeting held Monday night, called by the directors of the Oakland Commercial Club, and which was attended by a large percentage of the business men of Oakland, it was decided to take charge of one day of the Fair, and a committee of three, consisting of Henry Lauer, Alva Gortner and W. R. Browning, was appointed to see all the business men of town. Mr. Lauer last night extended an invitation to any business concern in the county to place a representative float in the parade.

"A number of men have not been seen," Mr. Lauer said, "but if the committee meets with as much co-operation from them as it has from those already interviewed, there will not be one refusal.

The first day of the Fair, September 20, will be set aside as the day for the local business men, and the parade will take place at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon of that day.

It was hinted by members of the committee that there would be quite a few prizes given away on that day immediately after the parade at the fair grounds. The prizes and those awarding them will be announced in a later issue of The Republican.

With a promise already of more than thirty-five floats, the indications are that the parade will be one of the biggest ever held on the streets of Oakland.

In order to maintain the co-operation already shown, there will be another meeting in the near future of all business men of the community, when details of the proposed parade will be gone into. The committee will send written notices of this meeting to each business man of the vicinity.

OPERATIONS AT CANNING FACTORY END YESTERDAY

About 60.000 Cases Canned During Month's Work

The Mount Airy Canning company plant, located at Loch Lynn, which began operations on Monday, July 11, canned approximately 60,000 cases of peas, according to J. Howard Reinhardt, manager.

Although several large orders have been filled, the majority of the cases will be stored until the winter months, when a ready market is found for them, Mr. Reinhardt said.

The 60,000 cases of peas were harvested from approximately 560 acres of land in Garrett county. One hundred twenty-five persons have been constantly employed during the past month, the monthly payroll including cost of peas, amounting to about $100,000.

Later in the season, about September 10 or 15, a large quantity of corn will be harvested and canned for the market. "We don't expect to be open very long at that time," Mr. Reinhardt concluded, "as there is little liklihood of there being a bumper crop. The pea crop was about as usual."

N. U. BOND RENOMINATED

Wins Senatorial Contest In Kentucky by Over 3,000.

Incomplete returns from the primary election held in Kentucky a few days ago, indicate that N. U. Bond, former Garrett countian, won the Republican nomination for the State Senate in the 29th Senatorial District by about 3,000 majority. He carried four of the five counties by substantial majorities and seemed to have a sligh lead in Rockcastle, home county of his opponent.

Mr. Bond served in the last General Assembly of Kentucky, having been elected to fill out the unexpired term of W. C. Mays, who resigned. Mr. Bond operates one of the largest lumber producing plants in Kentucky, having gone to that State from Garrett county a number of years ago.

KEEN RIVALRY EXPECTED IN HOTEL GOLF TOURNEY

Contestants who Have Two Legs On Trophy Are Back Again

The ninth annual Western Maryland amateur golf championship tournament began yesterday on the links of the Deer Park Hotel at Deer Park and will hold sway until Saturday evening when a special tournament dance will be held in the ball room of the hotel and which will begin at 8:45 o'clock.

The Offutt cup, trophy of this tournament, has been in competition for eight years. To become the permanent property of players, it must be won three times, but not necessarily in succession. The trophy is now in the possession of B. Lee Hutchinson, of Fairmont, W. Va., who won also in 1925. Gene Casper, of Pittsburgh, also has two legs on the championship cup. These two golfers are again in competition for the trophy this year, according to an announcement made by the secretary of the tournament. Suitable prizes will be awarded to winners and runners-up in all divisions.

The tournament got under way at ten o'clock yesterday morning with an eighteen hole qualifying round. Today the first round matches got underway with the players divided into flights of sixteen.

This afternoon the second round is going forward. Tomorrow morning the semi-finals of all divisions are scheduled while in the afternoon the finals of all divisions except the first will be played.

The finals of the first division, 36 holes, are scheduled for Saturday. An eighteen hole medal play handicap tournament, open to all players, is billed as the final event on the four day program.

At 9:30 Saturday evening, the prizes won in the various events will be awarded to the winners at the tournament dance in the ball room.

TO DISCUSS ORTHOPEDIC WORK IN OPEN MEETING

Mary E. Church to Address Audience August 26 in High School Auditorium

Miss Mary E. Church, head of Orthopedic Department, Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, and recently selected as secretary of the "Children's Orthopedic Society of the State of Maryland," will speak at a meeting to be held Friday, August 26, at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Oakland High school. Dr. Edwin Newberg, of Johns Hopkins hospital staff, will show pictures, and explain how cures are accomplished.

The society Miss Church represents is an extension of one that has been organized and working in Baltimore for some time and in order to reach children all over the state, groups will be formed in each county. In this way, children that need care can be reported to the society and through it, have the needed treatment, it was pointed out.

Miss Church wishes to meet interested people in each county in the State and is starting in Garrett county, as there has so recently been an orthopedic clinic here and a number of cases already listed. It is hoped that persons will join from every town in the county, and make the work as far reaching as possible.

Those especially interested in the work so far are the Oakland Civic club, Dr. N. I. Broadwater, Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, Accident; Dr. Hugh Strachan, Kitzmiller; Miss Rhesa King, R. N., F. E. Rathbun, Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, George D. Browning, J. C. Renninger, Rev. C. A. Shilke, D. R. Sincell, Rev. Paul Linaweaver, Rev. Archibald Moore and Dr. H. W. McComas.

Gilbert Family Reunion Held.

The fifth annual family reunion of the Gilbert family was held on Sunday at the home of J. J. Gilbert, of Sand Run, near Table Rock. There were 56 present at the family gathering where four generations were represented: J. J. Gilbert, his daughter, Mrs. Dwight Nolan, her daughter, Mrs. Ocie Henry, and her daughter, Betty Henry.

The number gathered from five states including Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Maryland. J. J. Gilbert gave an address of welcome, and W. A. Gilbert, of Aldie, Va., gave a short talk. Music was furnished by an orchestra composed of members of the Gilbert family. Fifteen of those present were from Garrett county.

MANY STARS AT MT. LAKE FOR EIGHTH ANNUAL TENNIS TOUNAMENT NOW BEING PLAYED BEFORE CROWDS

Western Maryland Championship Meet Opened Tuesday With First Round Eliminations—Some Excellent Plays Are Being Made—Will End Saturday

After the postponement of a day and a half due to inclement weather, the Eighth Annual Western Maryland Tennis Tournament got under way Tuesday afternoon, with the opening match between Gwynn King, of Washington, D. C., champion of last year's tournament, and Lieut. Fooks, of West Point, son of Senator W. F. Fooks, of Maryland. King displayed excellent form, both in his service and his ability to place his return shots out of reach of his opponent. He had little trouble taking the match 6-1—6-0.

Of the other elimination matches, the most interesting was that between Dave O'Laughlin, of Windber, Pa., and C. Front, in which the former was victor in two straight love sets. O'Laughlin looks rather formidable and should give anyone a hard fight for the cup, as should "Bill" Reed, Oakland entrant.

Stars Entered.

Among other well known players in this section entered and some of whom have already won their matches in the first round, are John O'Laughlin, a brother of Dave; John Brown, of Connellsville, champion in 1920, who incidentally took his opponent, A. L. McCardle, into camp with apparent ease in straight sets, 6-2—6-2; W. D. Reed, Oakland, champion of Culver M. A., 1925; Jarvis Adams, of Pittsburgh, winner of 1921-1925 tournament; J. Randolph, athletic director of D. & E. College, Elkins, and George A. Sawin, of Pittsburgh. The latter as well as all of the above mentioned, with the exception of Randolph, had little trouble with their opponents in this round. Randolph, however, lost to J. F. Creighton in three hard-fought matches, 6-4; 4-6; 6-0.

Adams In Lead.

Of this list only one has two legs on the Championship, Jarvis Adams, winner in 1921-1925. Should he win this year he wins the trophy as his permanent property.

Monday evening a reception and dance were given at the bowling alleys for the entrants and their friends. Tuesday afternoon tea was served; Wednesday evening the players and their friends were guests at a dance at the Deer Park Hotel, and on Thursday night the Frolic at The Pines on the Terra Alta pike; Friday night, reception and dance at the Mt. Lake Hotel, and on Saturday afternoon the finals and awarding of cups.

Play begins each morning at ten o'clock and each afternoon at 2:30.

The following are the scores and winners of each match so far played:

H. Miller—H. Mazgar, 6-0; 6-0.

Wednesday Morning and Afternoon

The matches Wednesday gave everyone an opportunity to witness some real tennis as they were between the better players of the day before. As is the case in almost all matches, the seeded players maintained their lead but will have to watch their laurels in today's (Thursday's) play. A few of the younger players and new to this section give promise of an able performance against the oldtimers. The most promising of these is Dave O'Laughlin and Friedrichs.

Winner Loser
D. O'Laughlin—J. Brown, 6-0; 6-1.
Creighton—McDonald, 6-2; 6-4.
Thomas—Carpenter, 5-7; 6-3; 6-3.
Sullivan, Staubly, 6-4; 6-4.
S. J. Adams, Jr.—Reynolds, 6-3; 6-0.
Ramsey—C. S. Weber, 6-0; 6-1.
J. O'Laughlin-W. Weber, 3-6; 6-0; 6-3
Thompson—R. Brown, 5-7; 6-1; 6-3.
King—Graham, 6-1; 6-1.
Lauler—Reed, 4-6; 6-1; 6-4.
J. R. Brown—Snodgrass, 6-4; 6-1.
Miller—Flinner, 9-7; 6-4.
Friedrichs—L. Lyon, 6-3; 6-1.
Hammer—E. Walsh, 6-1; 6-2.
Sawin—Snee, 6-3; 4-6; 6-4.
S. Graham—Porter, 6-1; 6-3.

The third round in the afternoon weeded out a few more players who gave a hard fight in every instance, the most interesting probably being those between Jarvis Adams, of Pittsburgh, twice winner of the matches in other years, and Bill Ramsey, champion of Uniontown. Although Adams took both matches, Ramsey deserves a lot of credit. Only 18 years of age, he made one of the oldest seeded players work to win and in future tournaments will be a worthy opponent to anyone. This applies as well to Bill Reed, of Oakland, who, altho eliminated in the second round, showed his ability in faultless service as well as well-placed returns.

The next match of interest was that between Col. Miller and John Brown, Champion of 1920. Brown won after a hard fought match, 6-2 and 9-7.

Results of third round follows:

Winner Loser
D. O'Laughlin—Creighton, 6-1; 6-1.
Thomas—Sullivan, 6-3; 6-3.
S. J. Adams, Jr.—Ramsey, 6-4; 6-3.
J. O'Laughlin—Thomas, 6-1; 6-2.
King—Lauler, 6-1; 6-1.
Friedrichs,—Hammer, 6-2; 6-3.
Sawin—Graham, 6-1; 6-2.
John Brown—Miller, 6-2; 9-7.

The Fourth Round.

Dave O'Laughlin, King and Friedricks and Adams easily showed superiority on the courts this morning in defeating in order, Thomas, Brown, Sawin and J. O'Laughlin.

The entire morning was certainly a treat to those in the stands as should be the afternoon matches, for rare tennis was displayed by the contestants.

This afternoon sees King, 1926 champion, defending his title against Friedricks. This will be a struggle for last year Friedricks made King work to win, both sets going above deuce. King, however, should win, is the opinion of the many.

D. O'Laughlin plays Jarvis Adams, and like his brother, will have a fight.

The following is the complete score of the fourth round:

Winner Loser
D. O'Laughlin—Thomas, 6-0; 6-0.
King—Brown, 6-1; 6-4.
Friedricks—Sawin, 1-6; 8-6; 6-2.
Adams—J. O'Laughlin, 5-7; 6-4; 6-1.

MORE INVITATIONS ISSUED IN DEER PARK TOURNEY

List Has Been Raised From Hundred to Hundred Fifty

Owing to the surprising interest in the Deer Park Hotel Tennis Tournament schedule for August 18, 19, and 20, the committee in charge has decided to raise the limit first decided on of one hundred invitations to fifty more, according to the secretary of the association.

The Tennis committee has not fully decided whether to limit the entry to those players who have been finalists in the Allegheny Mountain and Western Maryland Championships, or to confine the invitation tournament to the so-called second string players.

At the above two tournaments it has been customary to invite crack players from the East whose expenses were paid by interested fans. The proposition was made to invite only second string players because they always were the main support of any tournament, and seldom got a chance to work up to the late rounds in the other meets of this section.

TO GIVE BENEFIT MOVIE FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Picture Under Auspices of Oakland Civic Club

The people of Oakland and vicinity will be given an opportunity Monday and Tuesday, August 15 and 16, to spend what is predicted as a very pleasant evening at the movies, and at the same time to help in the work of assisting the crippled children of this community. The Oakland Civic Club is promoting this picture and everybody is working to make it a success.

In May, an Orothopedic Clinic was held and during the month of July seven of the children were sent for by those in charge of the "Children's Hospital School" and other cases will be sent for as soon as there is room for them, also cases of older persons.

Many of the people have been able to meet the expense for their children, according to Miss Thekla Fundenberg, president of the Civic Club, but others have not, and the club now wants a fund for that purpose. The members are hoping for a crowded house both Monday and Tuesday nights. The picture has been specially recommended, some of the scenes being taken in the Carnegie Steel mill, near Pittsburgh, Pa. It is called "Men of Steel" Special music will be provided.

LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE HOLDS ANNUAL SERVICE

Mrs. W. W. Grant Gives Forceful Address in Evening

The Lord's Day Alliance observed its annual day in behalf of better Sabbath observance at Mt. Lake Park last Sunday, with Dr. W. W. Davis, general secretary of the Alliance for Maryland having charge of the program.

The morning session was addressed by Dr. Davis in his characteristic way. Prof. David Roberts, of Washington, a Welsh soloist and composer, directed the singing.

The afternoon services were opened with a band concert given by the Crellin Boys' Band. Professor Roberts again directed the singing and he was assisted by a chorus of children from Oakland. The address was made by Mr. Dulaney, of Baltimore, on the subject of tithing. The speaker is offering a cash prize for the best resume of his address to any person of high school age and a member of a Sunday School. First prize will be $10, second, $5, third, $3, and fourth, $1. All material is to be turned in to Rev. C. A. Shilke within a week.

The Crellin Boys' Band gave an hour's concert before the evening program, Professor Roberts again directing the singing. Rev. R. Aspinall, in the absence of Dr. Archibald Moore, spoke on "The Pulpit and the Lord's Day." Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Oakland, spoke on "The Home and the Lord's Day." The address of Mrs. Grant was said to have been so forceful that a resolution was offered asking that it be published in the local papers and a reprint of it made to be distributed throughout the state. Dr. Davis closed the speaking with relating experiences in the recent Maryland Legislature.

DINNER ON SEPTEMBER 7 DECIDES DAIRY PROJECT

Officials Will Determine Then Whether Shipping Station Is To Be Located Here

Wednesday, September 7, when a dinner will be held at Deer Park Hotel, in the interest of having another milk shipping station locate here, will be the date they will settle whether Garrett county will start on a new era as a dairying county, or whether it will remain as formerly, said J. L. McGlone, county agent, yesterday.

A committee to arrange for the dinner on August 17 was appointed, but the date set was found to be unsatisfactory. Wednesday, September 7, seems to have been convenient for the business men, farmers of the community, and representatives of the milk concern, and so definite plans are now being made by Mr. McGlone, who is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Other members of the committee are H. V. Leighton, Harry Porter, J. A. DeWitt, S. J. Lichty, Benj. Knepp, Paul Friend, C. A. Ashby, Raymond Houck, W. W. Dawson and D. R. Sincell.

The dinner will mark the second meeting of the business men and farmers with the officials of the milk shipping station project, and John P. Dugan, general baggage agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, who is interested in the matter, the first one having been held at Deer Park Hotel on July 13.

At this meeting and banquet, the people interested in the project were very favorably impressed with the natural dairying conditions existing in Garrett county, and Mr. Dugan said that in his twenty years of experience with the railroad company in promoting dairy interests he had never been so favorably impressed with a locality as he is with this section.

The project has been worked on for more than a year, and in that time practically every district in the county has been visited, and upon one occasion a survey of dairying possibilities was made.

It is optional with those who attend the banquet whether or not they will bring their wives, Mr. McGlone said. "The officials in the project expect to do so, and it would be very fitting for all of the business men and farmers to do the same. However, this is not at all necessary," he concluded.

Announcement

There will be an all-day service held at Lake Ford on August 21, with Sunday school at 9:30, followed by singing class meeting, preaching service, dinner, devotional service, preaching in the afternoon and again at night.

CLYDE BAIN LOSES HIS LIFE WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

Young Man Was Returning to Piedmont When His Car Ran Over Mountan Side at Wilson

H. Clyde Bain, 29 years old, who was recently engaged here in managing a newspaper circulation with his brother, Leo Bain, was found dead beneath his overturned Chevrolet ear Monday morning by William Burk, a traveling salesman on his way to Kitzmiller from Kingwood, West Va.

The accident happened near Wilson Store, a small settlement along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad ten miles east of Oakland and where the Kitzmiller road crosses the tracks of the railway company. The exact time of the occurrence of the accident is not known, reports varying from 12:00 o'clock midnight until 8:00 o'clock on Monday morning. Bain came to Oakland in his car late Sunday afternoon and went to the William-James Hotel where he had dinner. He was unable to secure accommodations at the hotel for the night and left, but whether or not he remained in Oakland during the night cannot be learned.

Telephone men reported seeing him about midnight Sunday on his way to Piedmont and it is presumed that the accident occurred shortly afterward. Other reports are to the effect that he left Oakland early Monday morning in order to be in Piedmont in time to look after his business interests with the Piedmont Herald, where he was engaged at the time in managing a circulation campaign.

Struggled Hopelessly.

The chest of the unfortunate young man was crushed and several bruises were upon his face. Marks where he had bitten his lips, showed that he had struggled hopelessly to free himself from the weight of the car bearing down upon him.

His remains were taken to Kitzmiller, from which place Emroy Bolden, local undertaker, removed the body to Oakland where it was prepared for shipment to Whitehill, N. C.

Buried Today at Whitehill, N. C.

The remains were shipped from Oakland on Tuesday afternoon. Funeral services are being held today at Whitehill. Interment will be made there in the family burying ground.

The deceased was one of the Bain Brothers Company, newspaper circulation builders of Rocky Mount, N. C. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. D. M. Bain, of Rocky Mount; four brothers, D. M. Bain, Jr., of Wilmington, N. C.; D. T. Bain, A. D. Bain and V. L. Bain, all of Rocky Mount; two sisters, Mrs. A. A. Stevens, of Rocky Mount, and Mrs. B. H. Bester, of Nashville, N. C.

Parade to be Feature of Labor Day Celebration

Three prizes totaling thirty dollars will be awarded to the person or persons having the best decorated car, the most attractive float, or the most unique car or float in the parade, which will be held on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5. It is expected that many cars will be entered from Terra Alta and other nearby points. The merits of the different entries will be passed upon by competent judges. Plans are being made to make this the best and largest parade ever held by Garrett Lodge. A. R. Martin is at the head of this undertaking and is working hard to put it over in the proper manner. The ability of his assistants is unquestioned and, in short, the public is assured of a real parade.

Manager W. O. Droege is leaving no stone unturned to create interest and render efficient service in his official capacity. Although residing in Keyser, he confers with the picnic committee at each bi-weekly conference. As each chairman of his respective committee is interrogated as to what has been done the answer is progress, spoken with emphasis and gusto.

No definite information can be given as yet concerning the speakers of the day, but efforts are being made to secure the best available. The merry-go-round will be going and the ferris wheel will seemingly defy the law of gravitation but will eventually perform its duty. There will be plenty to eat not to speak of the Chevrolet which you may win.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

A Philadelphia traffic cop arrested a college professor for trying to dispute with him as to where Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. This must have been some debate, as college professors and traffic policemen know everything.

Former Resident Talks to Ladies on Club Work

The following paper was read before the Oakland Civic Club at a recent meeting by Mrs. A. E. Turner, of Honolulu, H. I., who is here on a visit following a tour of Egypt and Continental Europe:

Just as in other cities, large and small, Honolulu has its club life.

There is the Outdoor Circle that has accomplished so much in the beautifying of the streets. It is regularly organized and has its different offices filled by women of ability, with an executive head. Arbor Day is in September and while thousands of young treelets are sent to the forest reserve hundreds of young trees, already of good size are distributed by the government nursery and are set out along the sidewalks, the motif along one street being different from that of another. Along eight blocks on both sides of one avenue are the flaming poncianas. Those of you who have visited Southern Florida, the West Indies or the Bahamas, will know whereof I speak. As near as I can make a comparison for those who have not, is ask you to think of large trees whose leafage resembles, but is very much finer and more spreading than that of your locust trees, completely covered both before and after the leaves put out, with red flowers having yellow centers in color not unlike your very beautiful poppies. Think of great showers of them completely covering every tree on this street to say nothing of these same poncianas being on many lawns all over town. There are other avenues with the golden shower, a long cluster of many small yellow blossoms, hanging gracefully from every limb; and then the pink shower that cluster around the limbs, and you should see the green grass walks when these blossom fall, radiant in their reds and yellow and pinks, and the planting and culture of trees is not confined to the best or even fair residence sections of the city, but is carried as far as possible into the more humble sections, so that they also are beautified.

The Circle employs men who keep the new trees watered and trained to grow erect, etc. Then tree dentistry is resorted to whenever needed.

Neither is all this improvement confined to the city, but extends itself far beyond for miles. The helpers keep the trees trimmed under the direction of the Circle. Beside this every effort is made to protect trees from being cut down to make way for new building projects.

The Women's League of Voters is another very effective organization. Monthly business meetings are held for the instruction of any of us who from more or less lack of information in regard to things political feel the need of being coached. Our leaders are women who make a study of every phase of the situation on this very vital subject. Often presidents of Women's Leagues of Voters from the Pacific Coast or Eastern States give us, in brief talks, the results of their own experience.

By the time voting day has arrived we know much more than we did as to the qualifications or suitability of the candidates for local offices. Being a territory we have no voice in the Presidential elections; and our governor is appointed by the President, all of whom we have reason to be glad are local men of the best type and who are eminently fitted to deal with local affairs and who understand conditions peculiar to our Islands.

We already have many Japanese and other Oriental voters under the head of American citizens of Japanese or of Chinese ancestors.

Then there is our Outrigger Club, which numbers from eight hundred to a thousand members. This is of course strictly for social purposes to which all contribute a generous annual membership fee. We have large grounds and good buildings; our playground is the ocean. With few exceptions all are good swimmers, even the little folk. Added to this sport are surf-boat and canoe-riding; going far out and coming in as far as the surf will bring one; not only men, but boys and girls as well stand erect on the boards exhibiting wonderful balance as they come in ejoying the fine sport.

There are moonlight swimming parties most any part of the year, not excepting the Christmas holiday season.

There are large hau lanais, by which I mean cemented floors with trellis roofing, over which is a thick canopy of the branches of the hau tree, twining and intertwining around each other, the trunks of which are generally to be found in full growth anywhere within the compass of the floorling. Here and there are suspended hanging baskets of ferns that if left to their own inclinations will sweep the ground. Just outside on the beach are tall cocoanut trees.

Busy Japanese waiters are ready to set tables for the luncheon and suppers that you bring, serve tea, clear off and wash the dishes, so we often entertain guests. If three or four only, no previous notice need be given, but for larger parties reservations are previously made. Occasionally tables are set for as many as fifty. So here one can enjoy a feast in full view of the ocean, the surfing, the canoes riding the crest of the waves, the swimmers and often a passing steamer or a low-flying airplance.

The Pan Pacific Club might be likened to Athena springing from the brain of Zeus, for it was conceived in the mind of one man in Honolulu, which in its infancy was spoken of as "Ford's folly." Today it is a power, embracing every Pacific country in the Orient, North and South America, Australia and New Zealand and Polynesia. Its object has been to establish better relations between these countries, to study and mature plans for more intimate acquaintance and mutual interest in the everyday things of life. Congresses, both professional and economic, meet every summer in Honolulu, delegates coming from every Pacific country. Interracialism as well as internationalism is one of its hobbies.

The Institute of Pacific Relations is another organization, also meeting in Hololulu, this summer being its second annual. Its delegates are men of force and character who are only too glad to present the work for the uppermost needs of their own country.

Last year it took up the conservation of the fisheries of the Pacific. Round table conversations are held daily during the convention, each delegate presenting that which appeals to his own people for reform or different handling. Beside the Round Table talks more general matters are discussed at the public meetings given at intervals during the sessions of one of which I would like to speak.

Yen, a young Chinaman, who spoke the most fluent English, took the platform, and I shall never forget the interest he aroused; his vitality, his enthusiasm. A few years ago he conceived the idea of having seven million adults, men and women of one province, learn to read so that on a small printed daily sheet they might learn something of what was going on in their province, if not in China at large, and in the outside world. So he selected, if I remember aright, about twelve hundred of the most generally used words, and so embodied them that within a period of five months the adults learned to read. He enlisted volunteer service willing to work with adult classes of say about ten pupils each who would come nightly to these several classes. When we heard him about four million adults could read their little paper.

Yen was truly a live wire, magnetic, stirring every listener to a desire to be of more use in the world and to belief and confidence in whatever the aspiration. This Institute of Pacific Relations is now in session.

Each of the clubs mentioned have their gala days or annuals on which occasion the yearly fee of $1.00 for some is given as one enters the portals.

I recall last year's annual of the Outdoor Circle, held on the lawn of a spacious and beautiful home, where large trees, including the wide spreding banyans, colorful vines such as the bougainvillias and the pink Mexican, the Cup of Gold, the Alamanda predominated, and where pond lilies with fountains playing and gold fish darting thru the cool waters abounded; where dainty refreshments and cooling drinks were served at this veritable garden party; and where we were favored with music and Oriental dancing. How I wish you could have seen these young people in their native dances, arrayed in their native costumes, having their own musicians, all so colorful. The Koreans would have attracted you with their very short waists of white; with skirts of green or crimson, pink or lavendar; the Filipinos with their flaring shoulder costumes; the Chinese in their shirts and trousers, often of very rich material, but best of all the dainty, pretty little Japanese children in their vari-colored, richly embroidered kimonos and obis, dancing so gracefully and keeping time with their lovely fans or parasols, flitting in and out under the great vine embowered trees—just radiant bits of color, flashes of rainbow—and then our own girls in Greek costume, aesthetic dancing, etc.

The Daughters of the Revolution, a branch of the National organization to which delegates are sent, has a very large membership.

Then there are the Daughters of Hawaii; a large membership of Hawaiins, with a sprinkling of white honorary members, which hold monthly meetings at the former home of Queen Emma, the consore of Kamehameha the Vth. Records such as meles, Hawaiian shants, poems, folk lore, etc., are taken care of and added to when possible. Occasionally the public is invited and then papers are read relative to things Hawaiian—past and present. Hawaiian music is rendered, also the unobjectionable parts of the hulu dances exhibiting much rythm and grace. After refreshments, we are invited out to see many Hawaiian relics, favorably placed in a large native grass house, or we wander about the beautiful grounds and listen to the Hawaiian band.

The Rotary Club is doing a splendid work, chiefly at present along orthopedic lines. It has established an orthopedic hospital that has already accomplished wonders.

The Shriners are as active in Hawaii as anywhere on the Continent.

Besides the hospitals in Honolulu and on every sugar and pinapple plantation, there is the Children's Hospital, the building itself being the municifent gift of one of Hawaii's citizens, the orthopedic hospital previously mentioned and several large and effective tuberculosis hospitals in elevated sections of the larger islands.

We have homes for aged men on the island of Maui. The Lunalilo Home for Aged Hawaiians, both men and Women, the bequest of Lunalilo, the last of the Kamehamehas, and the Queen's Daughter for aged white women along the same lines and as well cared for as the usual church homes for women in the States.

Our Y. M. C. A. and the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. have very fine and commodious buildings and are doing a wonderful work. The Orientals also have a Christian Y. M.

The Y. W. C. A.'s new buildings, which cost us over a half million, has just been dedicated, and has many branches on the other islands.

Then there is the Y. M. B. A., doing its own good work among the Orientals who cling to the Buddist faith, although regardless of faith our own Y. M. and Y. W. work just as diligently for the Buddhists as those of any other belief.

The same earnest work is being carried on for the Boy and Girl Scouts as here in the States, though, of course, the preponderent races are the Orientals. You should see these young Oriental Scouts "lending a hand", especially on Easter morn, when hundreds of cars drive up and hundreds of pedestrians climb to the summit of Punchbowl, an old extinct crater overlooking the City of Honolulu, and embracing within its view the vast outstretching ocean. Here on this summit as many as five thousand gather in the vicinity of the immense cross erected for the occasion, electrically lighted every night for a week and visible from nearly all parts of the city, the searchlights playing upon it, adding to its beauty. Here "sunrise Easter services" are held in which ministers of all denominations participate.

A Chinese-Hawaiian minister of very fine presence generally delivers the prayer, and his gifts are such that he holds his audience spell-bound as he pours forth his thank offering for all of us, and this just as the sun rises flecked by roseate hues over Diamond Head, another extinct crater jutting out into the ocean.

Our annual Welfare Drive for not less than $500,000 goes over the top every time, and well that it does as there are twenty-three charities each awaiting their pro rata.

Then there are our libraries. One Saturday morning I chanced to arrive at the large and beautiful Public Library a few minutes before the doors were opened, and there I counted sixty-one little Japanese and Chinese children waiting to exchange their books. If you could have seen their interest and delight as they secured the books they asked for. The library has a children's department and a trained teacher who tells stories, etc., to these little folk, but the patronage of these happy little children has outgrown the department, so a new children's library situated on the same grounds is now under construction.

Then there is the Cooke Library, for which $75,000 was contributed by the family whose name it bears. To a fine collection of books, some of which are rare, there has been added an art department, which includes some original mediaeval masterpieces and also replicas of Greek satuary. This library was given to Punahou, the largest privte school in the city, the student body of which for many years, has numbered not less than a thousand.

Besides these there is our University Library. This beautiful building is stocked with books for research, books on art, etc.

Let me also tell you about our Art Museum, recently opened, occupying a whole block, the gift of one woman whose sons and daughters are an honor to Hawaii. We already have for it a rare Chinese collection dating back to the Ming dynasty, etc., Japanese and East Indian works of art, and over 50 wood prints of the every day life of the Koreans, the gift of an English woman who went to Korea to visit a cousin, intending to remain but two months, but became so interested in the life about her that she remained eleven years. I well remember her exhibit at our Cross Roads studio over two years ago and the great interest elicited, and now she gives us a half hundred copies of her years of work.

As for our churches, there is the St. Andrew's Cathedral, which includes not only Hawaii but also Samoa within her jurisdiction, still a missionary field and doing splendid work. When I went out to the Islands before annexation, it was called "The Church of England," and its Bishop, if at home in England, would have been a Peer of the Realm. Queen Emma was a member of this church and it was greatly feared by the American residents that English influence would some day control things politically.

Several years after I came to the Islands the Methodist church was organized, as was also the Christian church. Prior to that time those of these two denominations, as well as Baptists and Presbyterians, affiliated with the Central Union Church, which might be called Congregational, although you never hear the term there, though as a rule the ministers in charge have always been Presbyterian or Congregationalists.

This large and wealthy church has a membership of about 1500, generally speaking of the white population. It is called "The Church in a Garden," for its setting is eight acres of land enclosed in part by a beautiful hibiscus hedge, the deep red of its flowers reaching out so cheerfully to you. There are broad spreading monkey pod trees with many swings for the little folks; a large tennis court; a fine enclosed swimming pool; much landscape gardening; purple and flame colored bougainvilliae vines that climb over the trees and swing in the soft breezes; pink Mexican vines and the Cup of Gold vine that clamber over the four church school buildings; an embowered manse and a stone church that cost $750,000, and is so built that the sides are open to the outside beauty of flowers and vines and blossoming trees as well as the fresh breezes.

There is much more that could be told about the parish house gatherings, the annual chowder suppers preceding the yearly reports, etc.; the Lenten service suppers followed by classes and lectures; the missionaries from China and Japan and India, who going to the States for their sabbatical year, always have a message to present; the monthly letters that are read from missionaries in the Orient supported by Central Union; the plays, etc., generally pertaining to things of a religious nature, given by the young people; screen pictures, etc.

There is the Women's Board of Missions, the Women's Auxiliary that looks after the church floral decorations; the Junior League, etc., etc., too many things to here enumerate, but the church summer bible school for a period of six weeks must not be forgotten.

Just a word about Kaumakapili and Kawaiahou, the two large city native churches, Union also. The latter one was built many years ago, the structure being chiefly of coral rock which was brought the two or more miles from near the ocean in this way: The natives stood in line all that distance and passed the rock on to the other until it finally reached the church site, now quite in town. It is a fine, substantial building and the one in which is the royal pew where kings and princesses, now passed away, have sat and taken part in the Hawaiian service.

But I have not told you that the Buddhist temple is also a feature of the Hawaiian Islands. There are pretentious ones in town as well as those of less architectural merit, besides a generous scattering of minor temples throughout the Islands.

Besides these are the Christian Korean, Japanese and Chinese churches, where in addition to Oriental pastors there are faithful workers among the whites.

In closing it might be well to mention that the population of Honolulu is somewhere between 110,000 and 115,000 inhabitants.

I. David Made King.

1. Over Judah (II Sam. 2:1-14).

Upon the death of Saul and Jonathan, David knew that the time had come for the fulfillment of God's purpose, but he carefully inquired of the Lord as to the proper movement to make. God directed him to Hebron, whereupon the children of Judah anointed him to be their king.

2. Over Israel (II Sam. 5:1-5).

After the death of Ishbosheth, the children of Israel came and formed a league with David, anointing him as their king. They assigned as their reasons:

(1) He was their brother (v. 1).

This is true of Jesus Christ, who has become our kinsman through the incarnation.

(2) He was their leader in war, even in Saul's time (v. 2).

(3) He was the Lord's choice (v. 2).

II. David's Unsuccessful Attempt to Bring Up the Ark (vv. 1-5).

This is an example of a wrong way of doing a right thing. That the Ark of the Lord of Hosts, the symbol of God's presence, should be brought to the center of the nation's life was a decision worthy of all praise. David gathered together the representative men of the nation in order that the movement might be a national one. That David was sincere in this measure cannot be doubted, but he was hasty and inconsiderate, for the procedure was an express violation of God's statutes. The dictum that it matters little what you do, just so you are honest and sincere is one of the devil's blackest lies.

III. God Vindicates His Law and Holiness (vv. 6-9).

The people were very joyful as they moved on toward Jerusalem with the ark, but suddenly there was a stop to the jubilant voices and music. At some rough place in the road the oxen stumbled and Uzzah, anxious for the precious freight on his cart, reached forth his hand to steady it. This resulted in his being stricken to death, as a man who touches a live electric wire. Ignorance does not make a man immune from the death which is in the touch of the heavily charged electric wire; neither does it in the case of the violation of God's laws. Since the ark was God's dwelling place among men, they needed to know that He was holy.

IV. The Ark of God in the House of Obed-Edom (vv. 10-12).

The homes where God is welcomed are always blessed. Obed-Edom was not better personally than Uzzah and David, but he openly received the Lord and properly related himself to Him. What had been death and dread to others was life and blessing to him. This was all because of his attitude toward it.

V. The Ark Brought to Jerusalem With Great Joy (vv. 13-19).

1. Sacrifices were offered after going six paces (v. 13).

David made the start and when convinced of God's approval, he made offerings. These were both burnt and peace offerings, typifying the self-dedication of the offerers and their thanksgiving (1 Chron. 16:1).

2. David's great joy (vv. 14, 15).

The people joined him with great shouting and with the sound of the trumpet.

3. Michal's criticism (v. 16).

Even though David went to excess in his expression of joy, it was wrong in her to criticize, for God seems to have sanctioned David's rebuke of her (v. 23).

4. The grand celebration (vv. 17-19).

As a token of his gratitude to God, David generously treated the people.

5. The King of Glory, the Lord Jesus Christ, coming (Ps. 24:7-10).

This was not the psalm composed by David for the occasion of bringing up the ark; that was Psalm 105. (See I Chron. 16). It is strange that such a suggestion should have been made. This 24th psalm pictures Christ as the coming and triumphant King. At that time the gates shall open to Him and the King of Glory shall come in

GOING CAMPING THIS YEAR

If You are Look for Placard Certifying Its Sanitary Condition

Going camping this year? If you are, before you settle down and unpack your belonging, the State Department of Health advises you to look for the following Placard which certifies that the camp is in satisfactory sanitary condition:

"This camp has been inspected and approved by the State Board of Health."

This placard signed by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health will be found at the entrance to all camps thnt so far have met the State requirements this season. In 1926, a total of 49 camps were inspected and placarded. Up to the first of August of this year, 75 camps, scattered thruout the State, after inspection by the local deputy State health officer, had secured the necessary permit and had been duly placarded.

To secure a permit for the operation of a camp, application has to be made to the State Department of Health, giving the exact location of the existing or proposed camp; the purpose for which it is to be operated, whether for picnic grounds, as a tourist or recreation eamp, for religious exercises, or as a labor camp, and the approximate number of persons to be cared for. The application must also state the source of water supply; the propsed method of sewage and garbage disposal and whether or not food is to be sold. All of these things are looked into when the inspections are made and permits are granted only to those camps that are in satisfactory condition.

Special attention is paid to the water supply to be sure that it is of sufficient quantity and is protected against pollution; and to the arrangements for the disposal of sewage and of other waste. If an enclosed kitchen is provided, the regulations require it to be screened against flies. Milk or cream offered for sale must be kept in closed receptacles and at a temperature below 60 degrees Fahrenheit, and all foodstuffs must be protected against flies.

When a case of sickness with fever or diarrhoea as a symptom occurs in any camp, the person in charge shall at once notify the local health officer. The patient should be isolated but may not be removed from the camp until the permission of the health officer has been obtained.

Copies of these regulations and blue print plans for camp sewage disposal arrangements may be secured by writing to the State Department of Health, 16 West Saratoga street, Baltimore, Md.

COOPERATION—SUCCESS

Thirty-eight business men were interviewed yesterday with respect to having an active part in a business men's day at the Garrett County Fair, and everyone was enthusiastic about the idea, and promised to decorate and to furnish something for the parade—either a float or something to represent them.

It is reasonable to assume from this that when the rest of the business houses are interviewed, the result will be the same. A condition like this means only one thing—that there is going to be co-operation, and co-operation means success in any undertaking, especially where communities are concerned.

It is such a spirit as this that will work wonders. All of which means that the first day of the Fair should be highly successful from every point of view. When all business men are of the same idea and opinion, that is the time when things can be accomplished. More power to them.

WHEN RADICALS RULE

Last night Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, two radicals who were sentenced to be executed for murder, were again granted a reprieve of twelve days by Governor Alvan T. Fuller, of Massachusetts. It is impossible to describe the exact feelings manifest among real Americans when the news of the action became known.

In the opinion of The Republican, these two men were guilty, and should have been executed, regardless of all the radicals in the world. When it comes to a place where threatenings of bomb throwing, and violence can sway the mind of the courts of justice, then the American people had better descend from the government and let the anarchists take charge.

If these two men are not executed, and if every radical who stirs up trouble is not deported, then Heaven help America. She will have let the radicals rule, and they, knowing what they did in this instance, will only be incited to worse things. They must die now in order that American government can survive.

GOOD FOR GOOD'S SAKE

Three-fourths of the societies and people who do supposedly good work for a community are not a bit lax in letting the rest of the world know how good they are, and the usual result is a gross exaggeration. The other one-fourth does good and doesn't care whether people hear about it or not. They do good because they do, and for no other reason.

Under the last classification comes the Oakland Civic club, whose members have since May 28, when the first Orthopedic clinic was held in Oakland, seen to it that seven children have been sent to the hospital in Baltimore, with the possibility that there defects might be entirely cured. The idea of the Civic club at the present time is to get a fund so that children may be sent to the hospital regardless of whether the parents of the crippled child have the money or not, and for this reason, there is to be a picture at the Maryland Theatre on August 15 and 16 to aid this fund, and it should be given everyone's whole-hearted support.

But they have gone even further. The society is looking far into the future when they hope to be able to see that all the crippled children are given a chance to be cured of their defects, and they are endeavoring to organize an orthopedic society which will eventually cure them, if possible, or at least teach them how to get along in spite of their coidition.

This will be the outcome of a meeting on Friday, August 26, in the High school when Miss Mary E. Church, of Johns Hopkins hospital will speak on orthopedic work. The Civic club is starting something which is going to be beneficial to the community, and everybody should get behind them. It is for the good of others.

REDS AND RELIGION.

Quite frequently we read in dispatches from Europe that a few Christian ministers of some denomination or other have been arrested in Soviet Russia. It is generally known that atheism is one of the real principles of communism. The Reds know that in order to make the people lose faith in the sanctity of law and of personal obligations they must induce them first to lose faith in religion. For the church has always been the bulwark of the home and of those cardinal principles which go to build it up and maintain it.

The Moscow Pravda, organ of the All-Unionist-Communist party, recently urged the communists in Russia to renew their fight to wipe out Christianity in the country as the enemy of the communistic form of government. The Pravda played no favorites. It said that special attention in the way of destruction should be paid to the Roman Catholic and the leading Protestant denominations.

In view of the hostility which the Reds have always displayed toward the Christian churches and the efforts they have made to wipe out Christianity in Russia, it is rather remarkable that we have in America some ministers, supposedly of the Christian faith, who are busy apologists for bolshevism.

These ministers seem to be obsessed with the idea that they are "liberals," and that in order to belong to this cult and show their breadth of mind they must at least apologize for, if not support, some of the efforts of the communists in America and other civilized countries.

Whether these ministers are liberal or not is beside the question. "Liberalism" is another word which can be made to cover a multitude of sins. It can at least be said that these so-called Christian ministers are false to the principles and ideals of the faith which they claim to represent and are playing with dynamite. Fortunately they are few in number even if they are noisy.

Bull Associations Aid Herd Improvement

There are opportunities for the expansion of bull associations in Maryland and many possibilities for herd improvement among dairymen who are willing to cooperate in the purchase of outstanding purebred dairy sires, say dairy specialists at the University of Maryland.

The idea of the bull association, it is explained, is to breed better producing dairy cows through the cooperative ownership, use and systematic exchange of prepotent purebred dairy bulls of high-producing ancestry.

A bull association usually consists of a number of blocks or units, each composed of a number of dairymen. The members of each block or unit cooperate in the purchase of a purebred bull whose ancestry indicates ability to transmit high milk production to his offspring. The bull is used in all the herds of the unit for a period of a year and is then transferred to one of the other units of the association.

The advantages of the association over individual ownership are apparent. In the first place, dairymen with herds too small to permit the ownership of outstanding sires are able to participate in the joint ownership of an association bull. In the second place, several farmers pooling their funds should be able to secure a sire of better quality than one individual could afford to purchase alone. And in the third place a sire of good quality may be maintained in a bull association for a sufficient number of years to permit a just estimate of his worth.

The last factor is particularly important, it is asserted. The only sure way to judg the merits of a dairy sire is to know the records of his daughters. Frequently such records are not available until after the sire has been sold when it is too late to profit by the discovery of outstanding merit.

Public Library Entertainment a Financial Success.

The moving picture given for the benefit of Garrett County Free Public Library a short time ago, was a big success and the Library Committee wishes to thank the public for its generous patronage. Total receipts from the two nights were $238.01. $15.30 of this was from sales of candy and flowers. Mr. Gilbert and his orchestra and the Oakland Male Quartet, with their clever rendering of musical numbers, added much to the enjoyment of the two evenings. The Library is now out of debt and some new books have been ordered.

The attention of the public is again called to the location of the Library—in the Garrett National Bank building (sse sign on street door), and to the time it is open—Wednesday and Saturday afternoons and evenings.

The continued patronage and interest of everyone is earnestly solieited.

Accident Women's Club to Meet

The members of the Accident Women's Club will hold their monthly meeting and picnic Thursday afternoon, August 18, and are planning to have the Friendsville and Grantsville Clubs as their guests. Should it be an unfavorable day, the picnic will be held in the auditorium of the school building.

Operation of New Bus Line Deferred

The Oakland Bus Company, which was to have opened a new bus line between Davis and Oakland on Wednesday, August 3, is being held up because West Virginia license tags have not yet arrived, Raymond Ilouck, one of the owners, announced today. It was thought that they might possibly be here August 15, but no positive assurance could be given that the line would be in operation on that date.

The bus will be a seven passenger affair, three trips being made daily. The company is composed of Guy O. Yutzy, Lawrence Fraley and Mr. Houck.

Bids for County Paving Are Ready

Bids for paving sections of roads in five counties, including Garrett, were opened and read Tuesday by L. H. Steuart, secretary to the State Roads Commission.

The low bid for Garrett county, which called for 2.15 miles of macadam road from Friendsville toward the Pennsylvania State line, was made by Bruce Steel, Friendsville. The amount was $45,910. The commission was to consider the contracts yesterday at a meeting, after which the awarding would be announced.

IN AND OUT OF HOSPITALS

CHILD BROUGHT HOME

Charles Philip Gonder, five and one-half months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Gonder, who was operated upon Monday morning, August 1, in the Allegany hospital, Cumberland, was brought home last Thursday, and has been resting more or less easily since that time. The operation was performed to relieve a pressure upon its brain. Doctors still express some hope for its recovery.

Appedix Operation Successful

Blanche Gilbert, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Gilbert, arrived home today from the Western Maryland hospital, Cumberland, where she was operated upon for appendicitis several days ago.

Tonsil Operations

Henry W. McComas, Jr., who underwent a tonsil operation at the Allegheny Hospital, Cumberland, returned to his home on Sunday.

Rita, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lawton, who was operated upon for removal of tonsils, has been brought home.

Elaborate Program Planned for Enforcement Day Meeting

George W. Crabbe, general superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League, is planning an elaborate program for the annual Law Enforcement Day, to be held at Mt. Lake Park on Sunday morning and afternoon, August 21. J. C. Renninger, state's attorney, and Mr. Crabbe will be the speakers in the morning. The afternoon service will be addressed by U. S. Senator, Robert L. Owen, said to be one of the outstanding members of the legislature.

Boys Loot Former Lunch Room

Michael Boyle, who until recently had a lunch room on Oak street, between Second and Third streets, was robbed Tuesday evening of tobacco and money amounting to about $25, according to Sheriff W. D. Casteel, who investigated the case.

The bloodhound picked up the trail of the cluprits and followed it to the end of town, where he was unable to pick it up further. Sheriff Casteel said that the offenders were probably small boys. The case will be investigated further.

National War on Rats Showing Results.

Rats are probably decreasing in the United States, says the United States Department of Agriculture, although their decrease is only beginning to be apparent. The chief factors responsible for any decrease are present-day sanitary requirements and modern building, which make it increasingly difficult for rats to find food and shelter; a national urge against all unnecessary waste, and a better understanding generally of the relation of rats to human economy.

Furthermore, as facts relating to the spread of communicable diseases have become better known, more general interest in rat control has been stimulated, more effective means of destroying rats have been developed, and information regarding these methods have been widely distributed. Farmers' Bulletin 1533-F, "Rat Control," prepared by James Silvert of the Biological Survey, and just issued by the department, eontains many suggestions for the control of rats on the farm and in the city.

Permanent exclusion of rats may be brought about by rat-proofing building and other structures commonly inhabited by rodents; by removing any possible shelter; and by cutting off their food supply. Details on methods of accomplishing these objectives are discussed in the bulletin, as well as such control methods as poisoning, fumigating, trapping and use of deterrents.

Although getting rid of rats is largely an individual problem, rat infestation has a serious effect on the whole community, and organized control effort is highly desirable. A person who allows rats to increase on his property until they become a menace to the entire neighborhood beeomes an object of public concern, and a city that permits its refuse dump to serve as a breeding place for hordes of these pests is eommitting a grave injustice to its population. Ridding a whole eommunity of rats can best be accomplished by organized efforts of all the citizens. The department will gladly assist such organizations thru the Biological Survey planning, organizing and prosecuting antirat campaigns by furnishing preliminary plans, general instructions, sample copies of posters, and other publicity material, and where possible, the personal service of a leader.

OAKLAND GETS WALLOPED BY FRIENDSVILLE TEAM

Local Club Loses 18 to 2 in Saturday's Game

Airtight pitching on the part of Friendsville, was the cause of a severe drubbing received by Oakland at the picnic at Friendsville on Saturday, when they were defeated by the score of 18 to 2. The playing field was in poor shape, making errors a common thing, and according to spectators, there were plenty of them committed.

Those playing for Friendsville were: Burkhard, cf., D. Speicher, 2d, Washburn, c., Lowdermilk, lb., H. House, p., E. House, rf., A. Speicher, 3d., C. Welch, ss., Holman, lf. Oakland's lineup was as follows: G. Hanst, lf., Shobe, ss., Teeter, 2d., Hamill, c., J. Wolf, p., Hoffman, 3d., Michael, lb., Guardiola, cf., and Weber, rf.

Failure of the regular catcher to appear on the scene caused the shifting of the lineup which resulted rather disastrously for the local team.

Providing the weather permits, Oakland will play Kingwood today on the home grounds, the game having been postponed from last Thursday evening.

"Say, you ink splasher," was the greeting of Jim Kerins, good Irish friend of The Republican, and brother of George Kerins, active Fire Chief, for whom Jim is the financial manager and general custodian of things in and about Kerins Bros garage, "I am going up into Canada with four friends from Johnstown, and I intend to throw one or two or these friends out of the rear seat of the car when we reach Montreal and load in their place a barrel of Canadian Club, and then I will be able to enjoy fishing in the water or on dry land. And I don't care if you do print this in your paper." So here it is, Jim, just as you said it should be.

"Mr. A. L. Lawton motored to Cumberland this morning to place his minor operation," says a loeal in last week's issue of a local newspaper. "Scoop" wonders whether or not he placed it in good hands.

Here is another one seen in the same paper: "The Amusement hall will show his daughter, Rita, in the Allegheny hospital, where she will undergo three movies this week." Three movies a week is quite an undertaking for the daughter of an amusement hall. She should be home in bed.

A story that never got into print: Richard West, prominent lioness tamer of Oakland and vicinity, was severely bitten by a six months' old cub bear out at Houck's filling station Tuesday evening. It is said that the cub's victim was attempting to look at the size of his fangs, or else, when "Lindy," as the bear is called, and who evidently knows tender meat when he smells it, grabbed the outstretched morsel. The four doctors who examined the bear feel sure that no harm will come from the mistake. On the other hand they have assured "Scoop" that West will recover, but it will take a long time for his nerves to settle down before coming in contact with another bear.

She attended summer school at College Park, Md. Robert L. Wilson met the bride and groom at Keyser on Sunday afternoon and on their arrival here about 10:30 a large party of friends awaited them and bore them from the car amid a shower of rice to an old-fashioned carriage which they had in waiting. Charles Sprague, Sr., acted as coachman and in turning the carriage broke the tongue, consequently the bridal pair were pulled by a number of men and boys through the town amid the honking of motor horns and the ringing of cow bells.

Mrs. P. H. B. McTeely and little son Blake, of Baltimore, are here to spend a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Poole. She was accompanied by her husband and his mother, Mrs. Fannie F. McTeely, who returned to Baltimore on Sunday.

Spoke on Russian Relief.

Alvin J. Miller appeared in the Methodist church on Sunday evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society and told in a very interesting manner about the conditions in Russia since the close of the World War. He gave a very brief history of the Mennonite church, telling how it was founded four hundred years ago; how one branch migrated eastward into what is now Russia, the other coming to America. Following this he told of the suffering of the people, the work done by the various relief organizations there and in Siberia and closed with an explanation of the present state of affairs there under the Soviet government. Mr. Miller was greeted by a well filled house of much interested people, many of whom had not seen him since he went to Europe immediately at the close of the World War and where he worked with Mennonite relief until recently. Most of his time was spent in the Russian work, therefore his message comes from actual experience.

Recent Weddings.

Henry Margroff, of the Cove, and Miss Hester Beachy, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Beachy, of Negro Mountain, were married on July 12 at Gettysburg, Pa. Miss Beachy completed the course in nursing at the Western Maryland Hospital last year.

Howard Wiland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiland, of New Germany, and Miss Elsie Clark, of Lonaconing, were married by Rev. J. E. Johnson at the M. E. parsonage last Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Younkin have been advised by their son, Floyd M. of his marriage on July 3 to Miss Gladys Murray, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Murray, at the home of the bride in Paintsville, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Younkin will reside in Paintsville, where he is employed.

Road Contract Let.

A contract has just been let by the Pennsylvania State Highway Department for a piece of improved road from Springs, Pa., to the Mason and Dixon Line, near Grantsville, to M. F. McCabe & Co., contractors who have built much road in this vicinity. This contract completes Pennsylvania's portion of improved road from Salisbury via West Salisbury and Springs, to Grantsville. It is hoped that Maryland will soon extend this road from the line to the National Pike, thereby providing a short route from this village to points north, and give one of the most prosperous farming sections in this locality a much needed road.

Club Picnic.

The Woman's Club held their first annual picnic on Wednesday afternoon of last week at Hi-Point Camp on top of Negro Mountain. Although the day was quite cool, thirty-three ladies were on hand with all the good things to eat that can be procured. The following visitors were present: Mesdames Ella B. Keller, Olive Zeller, Bertha Swauger, Lulu Edwards, Alice Getty, Seymour Willets, Etta V. Engle, Minnie Boucher, Annie E. Fahey and Misses Maude Bevans, Viola Broadwater, Maggie Dorsey, Alma Landorf and Amanda Ferrell.

Another Snake Story.

Ralph Younkin and Robert Johnson while returning home from the farm of Lewis Hockman on Negro Mountain encountered a large yellow rattle snake. The sudden meeting frightened both the boys and the snake and all ran in opposite directions, however the boys felt this was not the bravest thing to do, so returned and killed the snake, bringing it into town. There were twelve rattles and a button.

Hanft Reunion.

A reunion of the Hanft clan was held at the home farm in the Devil's Half Acre, or Little Cove, on Sunday. There was a good attendance, despite the fact that the German Lutheran picnic was held that day, and the death of Mr. John L. Harmon, who resided on a neighboring farm, interfered somewhat, however, the re-uniting of the family was most pleasant and was enjoyed by all present. Those in attendance were Margaret Hanft, the mother, and J. T. Friend and family, of Bell, Pa., David Glotfelty and family, of Salisbury, Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner, John Hanft and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin and daughters, Irvin Thomas and sons, Grantsville, Otellia Urich and children, C. J. Oester and family, Harry Collier and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Collier, Robert Colfleisch, Rose Oester and William P. Hanft and family.

Buses Replace Trolley.

On Sunday night, July 31, the last trolley car was operated over the line from Salisbury to Meyersdale, Pa., thereby discontinuing a service which was in operation for twenty years. Strange, how one of the great things of the electrical industry could so soon outlive its usefulness, the automobile being responsible for this rapid change of affairs. The line originally extended from Garrett, Pa., to Salisbury, but about five years ago the line to Garrett was discontinued because of buses taking the business. Now, Mr. W. L. Morrison, proprietor of the Somerset Bus company, has made application to operate his buses from Meyersdale to Springs, and will probably start operating this week. With the contract let for an extension of this road to the Mason and Dixon Line, it probably will not be long before this service is extended into Grantsville.

Dr. Speicher Here.

Dr. and Mrs. Asa F. Speicher, of Los Angeles, California, former residents of Grantsville and natives of Garrett county, are visiting here, in the Cove and in Pennsylvania with relatives and friends. They made the journey by steamer thru the Panama Canal to New York, the trip requiring 16 days. They stopped at Panama City and Havana, Cuba, enroute. Although Mr. Speicher is 73 years of age he is still actively engaged in the practice of medicine. Both are quite well and not having been in their native locality for eleven years, are enjoying their visit very much.

The Beachy family reunion was held at the Aaron Beachy farm, now owned by J. A. Beachy, located two miles west of Grantsville on Sunday. Members of the family met for the day, which was pleasantly spent together. The orchard was used for setting up the tables where the noonday and evening meals were served. Those attending were John Beachy, from Tacoma, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Beachy and son Alvin, Mrs. Peter Beachy and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Beachy, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Beachy and children, Mr. C. A. Beachy and son Clyde, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Baker and son Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Margroff, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Beachy and children, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Beachy and children, all living near Grantsville; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook and sons, Mr. and Mrs. John Cook, of Frostburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Alva Spoerlein and children, of Somerset, Pa.

John L. Harmon.

John L. Harmon, of the Cove, died Saturday morning at his home after a brief illness. He had been in failing health for several months, but his condition was not considered serious until a few days before his death. He was born in the Cove on May 14, 1868, being 59 years, 2 months and 23 days of age, leaving a widow, nine children, ten grandchildren, three brothers and two sisters to mourn their loss. The funeral services were held in the German Lutheran church at the Cove on Monday afternoon, being conducted by his pastor, the Rev. H. H. Fiekenscher, and burial by Undertaker Winterberg, of Grantsville, in the churchyard. Attesting the high esteem in which he was held the entire countryside from far and near gathered to his funeral. He was a man of sterling character and one whose help could be depended upon under all conditions. He was married December 22, 1895, to Miss Anna E. Hochman, and to them were born Lewis, Elmer, Walter, Harry and Luther; Mrs. Clara Speicher, Mrs. Lillian Griffith and Misses Cora and Emma. His brothers are Henry Harmon, of Accident; August and Charles; and his sisters are Mrs. Melchoir Kolb of the Cove and Mrs. George Failinger, of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Lucille Cuppett Enlow.

Mrs. Lucille Cuppett Enlow, wife of Rev. J. H. Enlow, formerly a pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Grantsville, but now residing in Beaver Falls, Pa., died on August 2nd at her home after a lingering illness, at the age of 62 years. The funeral was held from the home and burial last Friday at Hoyes, Garrett county, the former home of Mrs. Enlow. She was a daughter of the late Thomas H. Cuppett, of Hoyes. She is survived by her husband and six children.

Barn Party.

Mrs. Resley Tressler and Miss Marian Folk gave a farewell barn party last Saturday evening in honor of Edgar Niner, who has accepted employment at Kitzmiller, Md., and will be leaving his home community. There were about thirty in attendance, all of them having a most pleasant evening. The entertainment was music, games and a lunch before dispersing.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mr. L. I. Prevost, of Washington, D. C., was a week-end visitor in the Park, Mrs. Prevost having come here about a month earlier. On his arrival he found a newly painted house awaiting him.

Sunday brought quite a crowd of people to the Park who enjoyed the splendid program. The Crellin Boys' Band gave two concerts. The program as published in The Republican three weeks ago was carried out.

Next Sunday is Foreign Mission Day. Mr. Edwards, of New York, will be the speaker. He is a man of extensive travel, a close observer and a great preacher.

The radio fans of the Park were delighted Sunday from two o'clock until four o'clock listening in on the broadcasting of the addresses delivered at the dedication of the new international Peace Bridge over the Niagara River connecting New York State with Canada at Buffalo. The bridge is sixty feet wide and nearly a mile long and cost over four million dollars. The speakers were Vice-President Dawes and Secretary of State Kellogg, representing the United States; the Prince of Wales, Premier Baldwin, of Great Britain, and the Premiers of Canada and Ontario. Everything came through clear and distinct. It is estimated that 200,000 people were present at the dedicatory exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar attended the Pysell family reunion at Blooming Rose on Sunday.

Some weeks ago, in mentioning the names of the pioneer settlers of the Park who still survive, we overlooked the name of Dr. W. M. Frysinger, D. D., now residing at Heraldsburg, California. He was, we think, the originator of the Mountain Chautauqua, which, under the management of Dr. W. L. Davidson, became one of the great chautauquas of the nation. We are informed that Rev. Dr. Masden, a charter member of the Park Association, is also still living. He had built and with his family occupied what is now known as "Allen-hurst." Dr. Masden was a great preacher, a popular lecturer and a genial gentleman.

Miss Carrie Rudisill, who has been visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. L. A. Rudisill, returned to her home at Castile, N. Y., Tuesday, stopping en route at Altoona, Pa., to visit other relatives.

The Park parents are well pleased with the appointment of the teachers for the public schools: Miss Emma Hamill, principal; Mrs. Laura Welch, primary department.

Miss Amelia Thomas, reported ill, is very much improved, as is also Mrs. James A. Hayden.

We notice that State's Attorney J. C. Renninger is to be one of the speakers at the Law Enforcement meeting in the Park, as is also Senator Robert E. Owen.

Warren Rathbun and son, of Uniontown, Pa., were week-end visitors in this vicinity. Mr. Rathbun and his family moved to Uniontown from Loch Lynn about four years ago.

As the season is about over here in so far as summer gatherings are concerned, it might be of interest to look over the pleasant and interesting way the people have come since June 26, when the splendid camp meeting began and which lasted fifteen days instead of ten days as in former years and which was attended by tremendous crowds and with such splendid results. Those who were present at the meetings were forcibly reminded of other wonderful years of the Park's past. The first camp meeting on these grounds was held in August, 1882, from the 10th to the 20th of July, under the management of Rev. C. P. Masden, of Wheeling, West Va., and Rev. John Thompson, of Philadelphia, with other ministers equally as well known in their day.

The Epworth League gatherings, although of more recent date, are of great significance to the future of the Christian church, as the young men and young women are not only being trained but volunteering in pushing on the aggressive and successful work of the churches of the nation.

Then the School of Theology was of great help to the young preachers in their conference course of study, which requires four years, and now the plan is to include a post graduate course to prepare them for still more efficient work in the ministry.

Under the leadership of Dr. W. W. Davis and his co-workers last Sunday was a real success and was boosted splendidly by the performance of the Crellin Boys' Band.

We notice Rev. Mr. Potts and his wife, from one of the islands of the Chesapeake Bay, and quite a number of others from various parts of the nation here for their annual vacation.

Rev. C. S. Thompson is the first to start the painting of cottages and we hope many others will follow his example this fall.

J. A. Enlow wishes to borrow from anyone having any of the early programs of the Park. 21-M is his phone call.

ACCIDENT.

Mr. Adam Hetrick and his three daughters, Bernadette, Grace and Anna, of Morgantown, motored to Friendsville on Saturday to attend the picnic. They spent Sunday with friends in Accident and returned to Morgantown Sunday evening.

Misses Grace, Ruth, Mary and Kathryn Specher, Emma Beachy, Nelle Alexander, Mr. Clayton Speicher and Rev. Arthur Scrogum left Monday morning for New Windsor, Md., to attend a Young People's Conference which is to be held at that place during the coming week and of which Rev. Scrogum is one of the instructors.

Miss Ola King is confined to her home as the result of a severely sprained ankle.

Quite a number of the people of the Accident community attended the funeral of Mr. John Harmon, which was held on Monday at 2:30 p. m., in the German Lutheran Church at the Cove.

Mr. Harry Schlossnagle and family, of Uniontown, Pa., who holds a position with the Armour company, spent a week's vacation with his sister, Mrs. W. H. Hanftling.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Speicher motored to Greensburg, Pa., Sunday.

Those out-of-town boys who spent Sunday with home folk were: Roy and Harley Spoerlein, Coit Speicher, Hubert Frickey, Charles Miller and Ross and Earl Speicher.

The Ladies Aid Society of the English Lutheran Church, of Accident, will hold a Lawn Fete on the school ground here on August 13.

A number of our young people hiked to Allegheny Heights on Sunday afternoon and attended Christian Endeavor at Lynn Dale in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Roby, of Weber, recently visited Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Petersheim.

Mrs. Anna Bittinger and son, Lawrence, and Miss Grace Mason, were Saturday afternoon callers at Mr. S. W. Slabaugh's.

Miss Myrtle White and Mr. I. L. Beckman, spent Sunday with the Lee's.

Mr. S. J. Lichty, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Swartzentruber and children, visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arnold at Sunnyside on Sunday evening.

A truck load of people left here Tuesday morning for Mammoth Cave, Kentucky, expecting to be gone ten days. Among those in the party were Mr. W. E. Spoerlein and family, Misses Bertha Lee, Bena Spengler, Vernie Hershberger, Messrs. Roy and "Boon" Lichty, "Ted" Beachy, "Red" Sisk, John Burkholder, Mrs. Ernest Ridder and daughter, Blanche.

Mr. Ray Arnold, of Sunnyside, is in the Davis Hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. The Arnold's have been having quite a bit of sickness. Mrs. Harry Moon, Messrs. Amos Martin and Lester Moon proved that "A friend in need is a friend indeed" when they took it upon themselves to ask others to contribute to the relief of this burdened family. The response was fine, for which the above named express their sincere thanks.

YOUTH HELD FOR ALLEGED ASSAULT UPON GIRL OF 19

Virgil Moyer In Garrett County Jail Without Bond For Grand Jury Action in December

Virgil Moyer, aged about 18 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Moyer, of near Wilson, West Va., is in the Garrett County Jail and is being held without bond to await the action of the grand jury to convene in December, following the serving of warrants charging him with drunkenness and with abusing and detaining Mamie Steringer, daughter of Joseph Steringer, of Bayard, West Va., in an automobile on Tuesday night of last week.

Moyer was arrested on Wednesday morning by Constable Cecil Ridings and W. I. F. Blackburn, on a warrant sworn out by Joseph Steringer before Justice M. F. Williams, of Gormania, West Va. Moyer was taken to Gormania where he was given a hearing before Justice Williams. Moyer's mother appeared at the hearing and asked for a continuance until Thursday, stating that her desire was to have competent legal representatives at the preliminary trial.

Bond was fixed and furnished in the sum of $300 and Moyer was released.

The alleged crime having been committed in Maryland, the proceedings in West Virginia were held to be illegal, and on Wednesday afternoon Constable Blackburn and the girl's father came to Oakland and laid the matter before State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger. Upon the information of Steringer and Constable Blackburn a second warrant for the arrest of Moyer was issued, in which he was charged with having criminally assaulted the girl. Sheriff Casteel went to Wilson and apprehended Moyer. He was brought to Oakland and lodged in jail where he will be held without bond until court convenes.

In the meantime the Steringer girl had disappeared and it was not until Saturday that she was located in Piedmont, West Va., by the officials who brought her also to Oakland and she was placed in jail as a material witness. Unless bond in the sum of $1500 is furnished she will also be detained until the December term.

It is said that Moyer may be liable to Federal action, as by taking the girl from West Virginia into Maryland, as stated in the warrant charging him with the offense, he has laid himself open to a white slave charge.

The girl in the case is about nineteen years of age.

CARS BADLY SMASHED UP IN SUNDAY COLLISION

Large Type Cars Met on Crellin Highway in Sidewipe Accident

A collision on the State highway between Oakland and Crellin Sunday afternoon turned out disastrously for the two cars, but rather fortunately for the occupants, according to those who saw the mishap.

A Studebaker touring car, owned and driven by J. B. Funkhouser, of Hamilton, W. Va., was damaged considerably about the left front, the axle and frame being bandly bent, the radiator demolished and one wheel entirely torn away, and other less important parts more or less broken up and carried away by the impact.

The other car, a Cadillac sedan, driven by L. H. Paulger, of Georgia, had all four fenders ruined and the body badly damaged, besides wrecking to a large extent the rear truck and driving machinery.

None of the occupants of either car were injured, but the damage resulting to the two cars will amount to several hundred dollars. Both cars are being repaired in Oakland.

Mr. Funkhouser, driving the Studebaker, took all the blame for the accident upon himself, attributing it to the result of having poor brakes.

Letter to Hotel Owner Shows Deep Appreciation

David L. O'Laughlin, who lost in the final round of the Mountain Lake Park tennis tournament to Gwynn King, evidently enjoyed his visit at the Park, if a letter received by Mr. W. C. Dunnington, proprietor of the Mountain Lake Hotel is any indication. Following is part of the note received, addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Dunnington:

"I want to thank you very much for the kindness and hospitality shown me while a guest at your hotel the past week. The associations and everything that I came in contact with were of the most pleasing variety. In closing I can say sincerely that the Mountain Lake Hotel was the most pleasant spot that I was ever in."

ROTARIANS TO BE GUESTS SUNDAY AT LAKE KOSHARE

Members and Their Families To be Entertained at Minnietoska

The members of the Oakland Rotary Club, with their families and friends will be guests at Lake Koshare, Camp Minnietoska, on the farm of Dr. Henry W. McComas, five and a half miles northwest of Oakland on Sunday, provided the weather permits, it was announced yesterday, following the receipt of an invitation by officials of the Rotary Club recently received from Frank L. Hansen, director of the camp, which was recently acquired by Mr. and Mrs. Hansen and Miss Lucy Hyde as a camp for girls, quite a number of whom with Mr. and Mrs. Hansen and Miss Hdye as director of athletics, have been in the camp for a number of weeks. The Rotarians will go to the camp, taking with them baskets and spend the afternoon and evening. The campers will stage a pageant for the entertainment of their guests and participate in other camp activities, followed in the evening by a camp fire.

The program at Camp Koshare will begin at 1:30 p. m. and will last until 9:00 o'clock in the evening. The first part will be a pageant depicting the childhood of Hiawatha, followed by a water pageant. The rest of the afternoon will be filled with field day games in which everyone is invited to participate. After supper the program will end with a camp fire and community singing.

J. L. McGlone, county agent, was the speaker upon the occasion of the last luncheon of the Rotary Club held Friday evening at the William-James Hotel. He told the Rotarians of the advantages that are certain to accrue from the establishment of a new milk and cream shipping station to be located in Oakland and of its possibilities to make Garrett county a dairy county in the main. Mr. McGlone also spoke very forcefully upon the advantages that will follow by the business men of the community giving every aid and encouragement to the Garrett County Fair and a committee was appointed by President Henry McComas to work with General Manager A. R. Martin and Mr. McGlone in carrying out the suggestions made by the latter.

BROWNINGS WILL HOLD REUNION AT FAIR GROUND

Annual Gathering Is Scheduled for Saturday, August 27th.

The Fair grounds at Oakland will be the scene of the Browning reunion for the year 1927, on August 27, according to a recent announcement.

An old time shooting contest will be held between the teams of which N. C. Browning and W. R. Browning are captains. The teams are as follows: Center Punch--W. R. Browning, captain; Mason Browning, William G. Browning, E. A. Browning, John D. Browning, Charles Browning, and Lee Browning.

Pop Shot--N. C. Browning, capt.; George D. Browning, J. F. Browning, R. S. Browning, Abel Browning, Bert Browning, and Joseph Browning. A prize will be awarded to the winning team. It is said that the Brownings are a noted family as marksmen, having descended from Meshack Browning, pioneer hunter of Western Maryland, whose "Forty-four Years of a Life of a Hunter" is a classic.

DAIRYING CONDITIONS IN MOOREFIELD INSPECTED

Party of Oakland People Visit New Plant in West Virginia Town—Impressed Favorably

A three-hour inspection of the cooling and shipping station of the new creamery at Moorefield, West Va., and several of the barns in the immediate vicinity of the town, was made by a party of Oakland people Tuesday afternoon of this week. The inspection trip was more of an edueational matter and has to do with the establishment in this community of the proposed new milk and eream shipping station here in Oakland. The party was accompanied on their inspection by L. R. Grover, manager of the plant at Moorefield, and a representative of the Supplee-Wills-Jones Company.

The shipping station was first inspected, along with records of farmers who supply the milk for the plant where it was found that the amount of milk shipped had risen from 400 gallons in October, 1926, when the dairy started operations, to 1992 gallons on Monday, August 15, 1927.

From the dairy plant the party went to several farms in the community where the barns, built originally for the accommodation of beef cattle, but which had been converted into dairy barns with the installation of the new plant at Moorefield, were examined and commented upon.

Those making the trip from Oakland were J. L. McGlone, county agent; D. R. Sincell, of The Republican; Raymond Houck, W. Marlin Wyant, Carl Frazee and Frank Rhea, consulting engineer, of Washington, D. C., who was a guest of the party.

"Conditions at this creamery only show more forcibly just what can be done for Garrett county if a new milk shipping station should locate here," Mr. McGlone said. "There isn't a bit of doubt in my mind but what it can be put over with the greatest success."

OAKLAND GUN CLUB COMES OUT SECOND IN THE MEET

Held at Moorefield—J. P. Treacy Ties for Second High Score

The Oakland Gun Club finished in the runner-up position in the Maryland-West Virginia Trapshooting League staged Tuesday under the auspices of the Fairview Gun Club of Moorefield, West Va., at Moorefield.

The Meadow Lark shooters of Keyser, West Va., again won first place with a score of 235 out of a possible 250.

Oakland's score was 229 out of a posible 250.

Moorefield was third with 228; Cumberland, fourth with 222; Lonaconing, fifth, with 221, and Piedmont last with 185.

James P. Treacy, of Oakland, tied for second place honors for individual high scorer with a score of 48 out of a possible 50.

The final shoot of the season will take place at the Oakland Fair ground on September 6th.

CAR RUNS INTO CULVERT AND SWERVES INTO TREE

Automobile, Driven by Keyser man, Completely Demolished

Running into a culvert near Thayerville on Sunday afternoon, caused the Reo automobile, driven by A. S. Nethkin, Baltimore and Ohio engineer residing at Keyser, W. Va., to swerve and literally wrap itself around a tree that stood near the highway, resulting in practically demolishing the car. None of the occupants of the machine were seriously injured. A man named Carney, a brakeman on the B. & O., who accompanied Nethkin, had two of his fingers slightly bruised.

The wrecked car was brought to Oakland and after examination by a garage mechanic it was deemed not to be worth repairing, in other words it turned out to be a complete wreck and consequently total loss to the owner.

A few minutes after the wreck occurred Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith, who had been communicated with by telephone, was upon the scene and placed the driver under arrest, charging him with reckless driving. He was detained until Monday morning when he furnished bond in the sum of $1000 for his appearance before Justice of the Peace this afternoon for a hearing upon the charge preferred against him by the officer making the arrest.

GRANGERS COOPERATING WITH MANAGER OF FAIR

Various Meetings Thruout the County Indicate that all are Helping to Make Fair Success

Various granges throughout Garrett county have assured Alvey R. Martin, manager of the Garrett County Agricultural Fair, that they will help him make the Fair of 1927 the best that has ever been held, according to J. L. McGlone, County Agent, who is working with Mr. Martin, and all have offered to cooperate with him to the fullest extent.

At the recent meeting of the Hutton Grange Mr. Martin paid all back premiums and assured the members of that organization that he hoped to pay the premiums for this year on the last day of the Fair, adding that everyone would have to cooperate with the Fair board if the Fair was to be a success. They assured him of their cooperation and will have a regular booth with more individual exhibits this year than in times past.

Ryan's Glade.

Ryan's Glade Grange, in preparation for the Fair, has called a meeting for Saturday, August 27, and everyone in the community has been notified that they are expected to do their part. The committee has arranged for a festival and literary program for the event, which will start at 8:00 o'clock, and the grangers will also be entertained by the Browning fiddlers. Grangers and non-grangers will all be welcome at this meeting.

Sunnyside Grange.

Sunnyside Grange is as usual said to be giving everyone a hard battle to win first prize over them at the Fair. A committee has already been appointed by George Breuninger, master, to prepare the booth for the Fair, and Mrs. Hope Moon has asked the assistance of all members to help arrange it. It is also said that the grange is expecting to surprise many by a novel float which they are preparing. Mrs. O. S. Ridder is in charge of this branch of the activities.

To Visit Other Granges.

The Fair committee will visit Pleasant Valley Grange tonight and Shady Dell Grange on Saturday night, at which time the same plans that have been presented to the other granges will be presented to them, and it is felt that they will give the same hearty cooperation which they have always given in the past.

Club Work.

The girls and boys who are interested in calf, sheep and poultry work will meet the County Agent, Mr. McGlone, in his office on August 31, at 8:0 0o'clock p. m. At this time they will be told of the various prizes will be offered this year.

DEER PARK TOURNAMENT IS POSTPONED ONE YEAR

Heavy Rains Wash Out Two of the Tennis Courts There

Severe rainstorms, which washed out the greater part of two of the three tennis courts is given as the reason for the postponement until next year of the tennis tournament which was to have taken place August 18, 19 and 20 at Deer Park Hotel. Cards announcing the postponement were sent out on August 13 to those who had been invited.

Work on four new courts will commence at once, J. E. Goulet, manager of the Hotel announced, so that they will be in excellent shape for next year's tournament which will probably be scheduled for the third week in August.

Sunnyside Grangers Hear Talks on Fair Problems

Sunnyside Grange meeting was full of interest on August 11, when County Agent J. L. McGlone and Alvey R. Martin, fair manager, gave quite a talk on fair problems and invited Sunnyside to put in a booth at the Fair grounds. Mrs. Hope Moon and several others will have charge of this. The grange was also asked to have a four horse wagon in the parade on Farmer's Day.

Plans of the coming banquet at Deer Park Hotel on September 7th, were discussed, when it will be decided what can be done towards getting another creamery in Garrett county. The grange hall has been painted and is said to look so different that those who haven't been attending won't know the place. The next regular grange meeting is on August 25. It meets every second and fourth Wednesday of each month.

OVER $150 IS CLEARED FROM BENEFIT PICTURE

Fund From Sale of Candy, Etc., Yet to be Accounted For.

More than $150 was cleared by the Oakland Civic Club on Monday and Tuesday night from the picture "Men of Steel," which was given for the benefit of crippled children throughout the county, according to Mrs. W. W. Grant, treasurer of the fund.

"None of the money made on the sale of candy, flowers, and from the sale of tickets has come in yet," Mrs. Grant said, "so that the total amount cleared may run considerably over the amount named."

The money is to go for the benefit of the crippled children whose parents are not able to meet the expense of sending them to Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment.

The members of the Civie Club wish to thank all who patronized the picture house and all who gave candy and flowers, and the orchestra which furnished the music and Miss Bess Hinebaugh, who rendered two delightful solos.

FIFTY FLOATS PROMISED FOR BUSINESS DAY PARADE

All Business Men Will Cooperate On First Day of the Garrett County Fair in Oakland

The promise of thirty-five floats for Business Men's Day at the Garrett County Fair was raised to fifty during the past week, according to Henry Lauer, one of the members of the committee which was appointed to arrange for the parade by the Fair board. "The progress during the past week is just a small sample of the progress which we will make from now until the first day of the Fair." Mr. Lauer said.

In order to have the floats appear as artistically as posible, arrangements have been made with the Silver Decorating Company of Baltimore, to send a representative here in plenty of time for all the business men to have him arrange their floats if they desire help.

In the meantime, members of the committee are working on the list of prizes that will be given away immediately after the parade at the Fair grounds. The prizes and those awarding them will be announced in a later issue of The Republican.

SIX NEW INSTUCTORS ARE NAMED FOR OAKLAND HIGH

Four of the Previous Staff to be Back Again—Same Instructors as Last Year for Grades

Six new instructors and four former ones will comprise the teaching staff of Oakland High School during the coming school term, according to Franklin E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Edueation. The same staff as last year, however, will teach in the Oakland grade school.

The new instructors in the High School will be Miss Elizabeth Heath, of Lovingston, Va., who will teach English; Miss Kay M. Stenholm, of Waterbury, Conn., who will instruct in music and Latin; Mr. Arthur Humbertson, of Friendsville, a graduate of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., who will teach commercial work; Foster Speicher, of Accident, a graduate of Western Maryland College, at Westminster, who will instruct in history, science and athletics; Miss Jean Hollar, of Altoona, Pa., a graduate of Hood College, Frederick, who will instruct in biology, and Miss Kathryn Stevenson, of Mountain Lake Park, who will teach French and history.

Those who have taught in the local high school in previous years and who will be back again this year are Miss Katharine Conley, principal; W. W. Jenkins, instructor in mathematics and science; Thomas Graser, instructor of agriculture, and Miss Kathrine Brown, home economics.

The Oakland Grammar School will have the same staff as last year: Miss Marion B. Leary, principal; Mrs. Ernest C. Liller, Mrs. Mabel P. Sollars, Miss Lucille Mitchell, Miss Beulah Loughridge and Miss Edna Baker.

Teachers have not been named for the following schools for the coming school year owing to the fact that the very low attendance and the small number of children at these schools do not appear to justify the placing of teachers in these schools at this time: Inskeep, Gregg, Crowe, Weir, Yough Lake-Moved and Walnut Bottom.

Neither have teachers been named for the Brant, Thayerville, Deep Creek, Shade Run and Ridgley schools owing to the fact that the children of these school communities are to be transported by bus to larger school centers.

GOD'S PROMISE TO DAVID

LESSON TEXT—I Chron., chapter 17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever a sceptre of righteousness as the sceptre of thy kingdom.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Promise to David.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Rewarded David.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Gives Us the Better Things.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Great Promises.

I. David Desires to Build a House for God (vv. 1, 2).

Having subdued all his enemies, David sat down in his new and beautiful house to meditate. While thus musing, he is led to see the incongruity of dwelling in a house of cedar while the Lord's place was so common. A truly devout soul cannot be content to dwell in personal ease and luxury while the Lord's work is neglected. David's proposition met with Nathan's approval, but the next day he came with definite instructions from the Lord regarding it.

II. David's Desire Denied (vv. 3-8).

While fully appreciating David's motive, the Lord disapproved his plan. The rejection of his plan was not because of his nonappreciation of David, for He had taken him from the lowest walks of life and elevated him to the highest place among men. He assured him also that the cause would not suffer because of this change of plan. Two reasons may be assigned for God's prohibition of David's plan.

1. David was a man of war (I Chron. 22:8; 28:3).

Since the kingdom of God is to be a peaceful kingdom, it was not fitting that a man of war should build the capital city. This was not a reproach of David for being a man of war. The enemies of the Lord must of necessity be put down. No peace or rest could be to God's people till the enemies were subdued. It showed, rather, that David had done his work and that the time had now come for another to take it up.

2. The time and circumstances were not fully ripe.

God's house should be a great house, therefore it would require a man's best energies to build it. The nation's treasury was no doubt much depleted by the wars. Since much money would be required, ample time was necessary to enable the people to accumulate funds.

III. The Lord Pledged Himself to Do More Than David Proposed (vv. 9-15).

1. David was to have a great name (v. 8).

David's name has gone down in history as one of the great men of the earth. It was a long way from herding his father's sheep to the throne of this great nation.

2. Israel to be established in a central place (v. 9).

The nation was not again to be moved away, nor to be wasted by the children of wickedness.

3. He was to enjoy God's continued favor and help (v. 10).

All his enemies were to be subdued.

4. Perpetuation of the kingdom in David's line (vv. 11-14).

(1) "Build thee a house."

This means a granting unto him of a posterity, a family line. David proposed to build a temple as a place in which to worship God. God purposed to establish the kingdom in David's line. This was to be perpetuated in David's seed after him.

(2) "Establish his throne" (v. 12).

This means the placing of him in a position of royal authority.

(3) The kingdom was to be perpetual (vv. 13, 14).

He was to be settled in his kingdom forever. Disobedience to God would be visited with chastisement (II Sam. 7:15), but the covenants were not to be abrogated. Chastisement has followed, but David's seed is destined to occupy the throne (Luke 1:31-33; Acts 15:14-17).

IV. David's Worship (vv. 16-27).

In his actual worship, note:

1. His humility (vv. 16-18).

Those who really worship God approach Him with great humility.

2. His praise (vv. 19, 20).

Out of a heart of gratitude he praised God for His faithfulness and grace.

3. His gratitude (vv. 21, 22).

He had an appreciation of God's fidelity and expressed his gratitude to Him for it.

4. His petition (vv. 23-27).

All praise and expressions of gratitude but lead up to the offering of definite petitions to God.

Peace of the Heart

Thou art the true peace of the heart; Thou art its only rest; out of Thee all things are full of trouble and unrest. In this peace that is in Thee, the one chiefest eternal good, I will lay down and sleep.—Thomas a Kempis.

Unselfishness

Unselfishness is a crown that scintillates glory long after the wearer has gone to his eternal reward.—Baptist Record.

ENGLISH ENGINE ON WAY TO CENTENARY PAGEANT

Great Britain's Best Locomotive to be Exhibited by B. & O.

Temporarily bound and fettered, like some sleeping giant, a monster locomotive is on its way across the Atlantic ocean in the steamship "City of Chicago" of the Brsitol City line, having sailed fro mCardif, England, August 5th, to take part in the Centenary Exhibition and Pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which will be held at Halethorpe, Baltimore, September 24 to October 8. It is the "King George V," the most powerful passenger locomotive in Great Britain, sent across by the Great Western Railway of England.

Accompanying it is the diminutive and historic "Norh Star," a seven-foot gauge locomotive built by Daniel Gooch, which was one of the first engines to go into service for the Great Western, making its initial trip in 1837. It weighs 14 tons as compared with the 135-ton bulk of its huge companion. This little locomotive was exhibited at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.

The two locomotives, which show in a striking way the strides made in the development of steam rail power in the last century, will be given conspicuous places in the Centenary Pageant. This parade, which will be five miles in extent, is designed to portray the major steps in the history of inland transportation in this country from the crude pack-horse mode of travel of the American Indian to the fast highly-efficient machines of today.

The big English locomotive is the first of the new "King" class of engines of the Great Western, corresponding to the Baltimore and Ohio's "President" type, of the same size, named after the first twenty presidents of the United States.

The creation of this new king class, it is said, has aroused widespread interest abroad. The length of the engine and tender together is 68 feet. The tractive effort is 40,300 pounds at 85 per cent of the boiler pressure, considerably higher than that of any other in Groat Britain. Equalized vacuum braking is operated on all the coupled wheels. The cab is spacious, well protected by an extended roof and side windows, and fitted with audible signal gear for use over sections equipped for automatic train control.

Simplicity in exterior appearance, because of lack of the various appendages required in this country, makes this locomotive look very different from the American type.

The steamship is due at the Baltimore and Ohio piers at Locust Point, Baltimore, in about two weeks, where the locomotive will be unloaded and taken to the Company's shops for assembling after which it will proceed to the exposition grounds under its own steam.

The "King George V" is the first British engine sent across the ocean to take part in an American exhibition since the railroad show at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

It is interesting to note, too, that the Great Western Railway is the one other century-old railroad in the world besides the Baltimore and Ohio which is still operating without a change in its original name or charter.

BITTINGER.

All who enjoy a thoroughly jolly picnic, in an ideal grove, should remember that on Saturday, August 27, such a picnic, in such a grove, will be held at Bittinger under the auspices of the Lutheran Sunday school. All are cordially invited to attend and all will be accorded a hearty welcome. The program will feature the usual items of entertainment.

George D. White, of Oakland, was a pleasant caller in this village last Saturday evening.

Prof. C. M. Friend and family, of Friendsville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brenneman at their home in this village last Sunday.

Mrs. Hattie D. Engle, of Baltimore, who spent the last two weeks on a visit to relatives and friends in this community, returning to her home in Baltimore last Monday morning.

A reunion of the children and the grandchildren of Mrs. Katie Ann Miller was held last Sunday at the home of Mrs. E. S. Brenneman in this village. Although it was a rainy day, we understand that all the children and grandchildren were present, along with other relatives and friends.

Many of the Bittinger folks attended the Sunday school picnic at Meadow Mountain last Saturday. It was an ideal day and all enjoyed the occasion.

Mrs. Charles Wiley and sister, Miss Ida Brenneman, left here last Monday morning for a visit with their sister, Mrs. Thomas Wiley, in Johnson City, New York.

ADDRESS OF MRS. GRANT AT LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE

Meeting Held at Park Recently —A Forceful Address

Following is the address of Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Oakland, who spoke on "The Home and the Lord's Day" at the annual Lord's Day Alliance meeting held at Mountain Lake Park on Sunday, August 7th.

The address of Mrs. Grant was said by those present to have been so forceful that a resolution was offered asking that it be published in The Republican and a reprint of it made to be distributed throughout the State.

The address follows:

The question of the Sabbath day observance holds a very important place in the minds of both the religious and the commercial world. My talk to you tonight is about the place we want it to hold in that best of all loved places—our homes.

There was a time when the Christian home and the Sabbath day were closely and firmly linked together, but the time seems to have passed, and we now have homes where people, thru family ties, are held together, but where there is little known of that old-fashioned home where there was worship and where the spirit of the Sabbath filled the hearts of its members.

Yet we all know that the foundation of every life is begun in the home. Good early religious training builds a strong structure, the rock foundation of which can and will stand all the storms and stress of life, but if there be no foundation when the storms of life come the house on sand will fall.

Blessed are those parents who early teach their children the lessons and teaching of our Saviour.

How often we hear people tell of the secred regard their father and mother had for the Sabbath day. They will tell how they all attended Sunday school, how they all went to church and sat in the family pew, and then they will add, "I don't know what father and mother would think if they could see the difference in us now."

But, my friends, why should there be a difference? What right have we to take from our children such beautiful memories and in their place, on this sacred day, put baseball, automobile trips, week-end parties or picnics?

If the Sabbath is to be saved, the Christian home, even more than the laws of the State, or the church, with its loving influence, must do it. But you ask: "How are we to do this?" We, who are confessed followers of Him, we on whom rests the responsibility of teaching our children that they must overcome this carelessness in regard to the breaking of the commandment that His day be a holy one. It seems to me there are three ways—prayer, practice and perseverance.

Some people say it is a hopeless task we are attempting—this observance of the Sabbath day. They forget that we, like Paul of old, can say: "We can do all things thru Christ who strengthens us." What better way can we obtain this strength than thru prayer? We all know from our own religious experience the power of prayer, and we all know that more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of.

He who gave the parent heart its love understands the love we bear these little ones of ours and is ready and willing, if we but ask, to guide us in our efforts to defeat the world and affix a charm all its own to the Sabbath day.

But my friends, if we are to do this, we must early begin to teach our children of God. We must begin early to teach them the sweet story of old; to instil into their little hearts and minds the love of God. Teach them to think of God as their Father and Guide and Friend. Now is the time to create in our home the feeling of Divine guidance, love and protection. Their little prayers, grace at meals, should become a part of their lives as naturally as eating and drinking. In this way they will become vital to their happiness and necessary to their contentment. Do not be afraid that the child is too young. It is in childhood that lasting impressions are made.

There is a story of a child born of parents who were missionaries. When the child was about a year and a half old the parents died, and the baby, a little girl, was sent home to England. She lived to be an old, old lady and in her last illness those who attended her were surprised to hear her crooning a sort of melody. They listened and found it to he a Hindu lullaby. She had had a Hindu woman as a nurse before she was sent to England, but since that time had never heard the songs, yet they had made a lasting impression on her little mind, young as she was.

If, then, we teach our children to know God and to love Him will they not be loyal to Him who trusted them with the Sabbath that they might make it a bright, beautiful day for Him?

Do not be afraid to talk of prayer and the more intimate religious feelings. Let us become as little children toward God in order that we may teach our children.

And now that we have asked for guidance, we must practice the truths we are trying to teach our children. To be given the care of little children is a wonderful opportunity, as well as a great care and a greater joy. Their little minds are as impressionable as a photographer's plate. When we use a camera how careful we are not to expose the plate to something we do not wish to reproduce. We are so careful to focus it just so that we get only the things we wish to see in our picture. But are we always as careful of the keen little minds which come within the range of our words and acts? Yet these words and acts of ours will make impressions that will form many of the pictures that will influence the lives of those little ones in the years to come.

If they are to grow spiritually, we with the children need to know and practice the commandments of God. We must put aside as not worth while all the doctrines which have been offered us as substitutes and excuses for the breaking of God's commandments. We must bring them to realize that if enough of them are banded together in the name of Him "who all things can do" the mighty evil of Sabbath day corruption can be stopped. We must teach our own boys and girls to keep this day and we can best teach it by keeping it ourselves. Why should we insist that they go to church and Sunday school and then decide that the day is too warm or too cold for us or that we had some letters to write, or the age-old excuse, "it's raining!" and then the next day if we are invited to a party we dress in our prettiest clothes, and if it is raining we call a taxi and go to the party. Will not the puzzled eyes of our children see that we are putting the things of the world ahead of the things of God?

Do not think that because they are small that they will not notice such things. They may be limited, but within their limitations they are pretty keen and accurate and they will discover our weakness. We must be honest and keep the faith.

The life of a child has often been compared to a book—the book of life. In the first part of the book the pages are filled with pictures, mostly of the parents and the home. Early childhood is the best time to influence these pictures, for these early pictures will determine the character of all those other ones that follow.

Our real teaching goes often much further than we think because we forget the keenness of the child for imitation. Take reverence for example. Often there is more caught than taught. To illustrate: One day in talking with one of our well known and well loved doctors of this community he told me the story of his reverence for the Bible. He said in his early days the sweet gentle little lady who taught him to make "pot hooks" always opened the school with prayer and scripture reading. The Bible was on the corner of her desk and she taught them that they must never lay anything on the Bible. It was the book of God's word and must always be treated with reverence. He said that so deeply was this instilled into his mind that even today if when called on a case he would lay his hat or gloves on the Bible and notice what he had done he had to remove them before he could go on with his work. "My common sense tells me," he said, "that my gloves or hat can't hurt that book, but the impression made on my mind won't let me leave them there."

Then take imitation. I know a mother who each night when she puts her children to bed says a little prayer over them after they have finished their little prayer. One night the baby of the family, a child of two, happened to be present when the others were put to bed and he saw them say their prayers and the mother say hers. When he was made ready for bed he wriggled off his mother's lap and going to his little bed, knelt down and said, "Prayer, muvver, prayer". His mother taught him a little prayer and although he was very young the mother felt that the sight of that little kneeling baby was precious in God's sight.

How important it is for us to see then, that these early impressions are what they should be.

If we will but persevere and continue in spite of the great difficulties of our task, Christ's work will go forward. We must persevere by telling frequently the age long stories of the men who knew Him, trusted Him and were sure that God was right and kind when He set apart the Sabbath as His day, we will fix in their memory for permanent possession certain vivid and helpful pictures that have gripped and still grip the hearts of men. They will quicken a desire for better living and in their picture book of life these stories will hold an important place, and we do not know at what time in their lives these pictures will come to their aid.

I read a story of two soldiers in the World War. Both were wounded and one was dying. As his wounded friend sat beside him he asked, "Can't you say a prayer for me?" Prayer had not been a part of his life for many a long day, but he couldn't fail the pleading eyes of his friend, and grop-ingly, haltingly he begun the little prayer that came to his mind, "Now I lay me down to sleep," and when he reached the lines, "If I should die before I wake, I pray thee, Lord, my soul to take," a smile of utter contentment and peace came over the face of his dying friend, his hand loosed and with a smile of peace he went on to meet his God. And my friends, can we not think that that little prayer also was the beginning of a new life for the soldier who repeated it for the soldier who died?

Another story of one of these early pictures was told to me by a mother of a son who had enlisted in the aviation department. He had always had a fear of the water, but thought that as a man he had overcome this fear. On his first flight alone over the water the sea was rough and he felt that old fear returning, but in a letter to his mother he said: "Like a flash came the picture of our Sunday afternoons together and the story of Jesus stilling the waves came to me again in your dear voice and I seemed to hear Him saying, 'Peace, be still!' The fear dropped away, dear mother, and it has never returned. Thank you for those sweet stories."

And so, my friends, if a new day is to dawn, a day that will cover the whole earth with the spirit of the Lord's day the light must come from the Christian home—the home lighted by the love of Him who said, "I am the light of the world"—the home glowing with the glory of Him who said, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

Mountain Empire To Become Forest Reserve

The Sunday Sun (Baltimore) of the August 14th issue contained the following interesting and splendidly illustrated article on the National Forest to be established by the Government in Grant and Pendleton counties, West Virginia, near neighbors of Garrett county, and as such is thought to be of sufficient local interest to be republished in the columns of The Republican by permission of the publishers of the Sun.

The article is from the pen of Dewey Fleming and aside from being of present-day interest it also contains some highly historical facts, and is as follows:

The Independent State of Pendleton is about to make its great contribution.

Charmingly secluded for now some hundreds of years, impenetrated by railroads, ignored by the flow of immigration and barely touched by the tides of commercialism—this little mountain empire, which has been successively the hunting ground of roving Indian tribes and the habitat of a peaceful Anglo-Saxon hill folk, is to yield the nation a new playground and a vast extension of its forest reserve.

To speak of the Independent State of Pendleton" is to indulge in figurative language and to adopt a household phrase of the inhabitants of this rugged domain. But it does not follow that the "State" is a mythical place. On the contrary, it is gloriously real —a mejestic sector of mountain finery that nestles between the stately Blue Ridge and the towering Alleghenies, a little to the north of the highlands of Virginia and a little to the south of the valley of the Potomac.

In strictest terms, it is the county of Pendleton, State of West Virginia, and out of its heart the National Forest Reservation Commission has seen fit to designate an area that is to become the newest addition to the country's reserve of perpetual forest growth.

Vast Store of Timber.

The commission selected it because of its spacious acreage of virgin timber and because it offered a logical extension of the Monongahela Forest on the west, but hastenened to say of it that "it is doubtful if there is another area of equal size in the entire length of the Blue Ridge and the Allegheny mountains that offers as many and as varied recreational features as are found here."

So that while the Government moves to increase and maintain its forest reserve, to prevent the erosion of these jagged mountains and to improve the navigability of the streams that course the narrow valleys, that well-known institution, the American tourist, will revel in the grandeur of the rugged mountains the majestic cliffs, the crystal springs, the sparkling streams, the restful coves and natural camp sites with which the area abounds. He will follow the baying hounds in pursuit of the game that ranges the hills and will cast many a tempting lure to the fishes that populate the streams.

Examiners for the Forestry Commission have drawn their lines around 84,000 acres of this montain fastness. Fifty-seven thousand of these acres lie in Pendleton and 27,000 in the adjoining county of Grant. Of this area some 8.000 acres are utilized today as agricultural or grazin glands and 4,000 are best adapted for farm woodlots.

Thus 72,000 acres are left available and particularly suited to national forest purposes. For the most part it is a virgin growth of pine, spruce, hemlock, hickory and walnut and few of the owners hold it in sufficient quantities to justify the heavy expense necessary to its operation.

The tourist will be intersted to know that this camper's paradise is but a day's motor journey from Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Richmond and other cities of the Middle Atlantic seaboard. From Franklin, the county seat, the air-line distance to Richmond and to Charleston, W. Va., is 131 miles.

To Hampton Roads, the harbor of the Old Dominion, the distance on trade routes is 279 miles; New York, the commercial center of America, is 415 miles away, while Washington, the political center, is only 187 miles distant. To Chicago, metropolis of the Middle West, the distance is 714 miles.

Readily Accessible.

But even with a State road program only partially complete, Pendleton and Grant counties today are readily accesible. Semi-hard-surface roads lead into them from the north and from the south. Except for their tortuous curves they are all that the motorist could desire. Direct east-and-west-highways through the counties are under construction and even now travel in this direction is not arduous.

It is only when one comes to seek and find the individual natural wonders of the locality that the mode of travel becomes a problem. Some of the show places may be reached in slow stages by motor. But for the most part it is advisable to make these pilgrimages on horseback or afoot.

For the trails are none other than those blazed by restless Indians in their wanderings over this once natural and immense game preserve and the sound of a motorist's horn would be strange music, indeed, to the hills. This is a fortunate circumstance, for a too bold modernization of the setting could not help robbing the God-made spectacles of their splendor.

Picking the Show Places.

What, then, are the show places of this new forest and where may they be found?

The cap-sheaf of them all, perhaps, is the famous Seneca Rocks—a stern and mighty exposure of Tuscarora quartzite that for now these thousands of years has reared its jagged peaks some 900 feet toward the clouds beggaring description. At the mouth of Seneca Creek they stand, forming the northern side of an immense notch that a turbulent little stream has sawed into North Fork Mountain.

All drab and brown and reddish and green, they keep their silent, majestic vigil over the dancing streams at the base and the adjoining farmlands that once were the camp grounds of the mighty Shawnees. Sometimes, in a brilliant sunshine, they glisten and twinkle in their skyward pose. But when seasonal rains sweep up and down the canyon they bury themselves in the billowing fog banks.

Magnificent View.

A view of rare magnificence awaits the intrepid soul who dares to scale these heights. As from the spires of a gigantic cathedral he may survey the meanderings of the swift little North Fork of the Potomac. Up Seneca Creek, to the west, he may trace the established trail of the Indians as they pushed on to Ohio and the Western frontier. He has a commanding view of small but fertile fields that line the sides of the streams.

Many are the legends that persist in the region of this giant erag of the ages. One of them, and typical, concerns a comely Indian maiden of the mighty Shawnees whose heart was sought by the hardiest of the male warriors. Herself a romanticist, the Indian girl hit upon a scheme in which she enlisted the aid of the towering rocks in choosing her companion. She would marry the one who would climb with her to the topmost ledge.

A half dozen sturdy bucks began the ascent with her. It was a fool's adventure, but the prize was enough. Up and up they clambered. At length two or three of them wearied and gave up. One fell back and was killed. Still another renounced his claim and turned back. At last the little maiden reached the top and only one of her avowed lovers continued after her.

He, too, was about to reach the crest. But no, he was becoming faint and weak. Though victory was almost within his grasp he was about to slip back to destruction. Whereupon the girl leaned over the precipice, grasped the hand of her suitor and drew him to safety and to her.

Scores of Legends.

There are scores of these Indian legends. And always, in reciting them, the residents of this Seneca Rock country drift into the recorded facts of the massacres of white settlers by these hostile Indians.

History has much to say of these periodic raids upon white settlements for the avenging of real and imagined injuries, and over the country may be found the remnants of a number of colonial stockades or forts whither the white man sought refuge when the redskin was on the war path.

One of these was Hinkle's Fort, situated a short distance from the North Fork near the village of Riverton. Across the mountain was Fort Upper Tract, and still further to the east, almost at the Virginia line, was Fort Seybert. Chronicles of Pendleton's early history have told in much detail of the bitter fights that have been waged about these rude forts and the historian of today takes pride in discovery of the ruins of these havens of safety.

Last Indian Raid.

A short distance from the Seneca Rocks, near what is now the village of Onego, the inhabitants point to the scene of the last Indian molestation of white people. Here the raid was led by Timothy Dorman, a white renegade, and the victim was a young daughter of William Gregg.

Alone in the house, the girl was scalped and left for dead. When members of her family returned and found that life was not yet extinct, they started hurriedly for Hinkle's Fort. But the girl died before the journey was half completed.

Just acress the lofty North Fork Mountain from Seneca Rocks lie a succession of other natural show places scarcely less impressive than the massive Senecas. They are in the area known as the Smoke Hole country, a rugged, wild community along the South Branch of the Potomac, half in Pendleton and half in Grant.

It derives its name from a mountain cave where Indians, and subsequently white hunters, came to dry and smoke their venison and other wild meats. The curative process was peculiar to an era when salt was a luxury and scarcely to be had. Today this famous Smoke Hole cave serves as a shelter for sheep that range the surrounding mountains.

The easiest entrance to the Smoke Hole country is by way of a mountain road that leaves the State highway at a point about twelve miles north of Franklin. Over a low hill and the visitor comes to an imposing natural gateway that is known as Eagle Rock. This huge portal is a shoulder of the gap in Cave Mountain that pushes the South Branch from its wonted course and rears skyward some 300 feet. Virginia creepers twine their way up and down the sides of this rocky promontory.

The rock takes its name from William Eagle, a Revolutionary soldier, who spent his peace-time years in this community. He sleeps in an unmarked grave beside the South Branch, almost in the shadow of the gigantic boulder that perpetuates his name.

A few hundred yards away is the Big Spring, a fountain of clear, ice-cold water that issues from the base of Cave Mountain and flows away in a dashing little stream to the South Branch. A thousand feet above this spring the wooded crest of CaveMountain is encircled by an overhanging cliff of sheer rock resembling a diadem about a regal brow. In them is the entrance to a succession of cavernous chambers, for the most part unexplored, from which the mountain takes its name.

Saltpetre Beds.

A little further into the Smoke Hole country and one comes to the Old Mines Caves, where the early settlers extracted saltpetre for use in the manufacture of gunpowder. Nearby is Featherbed Run, a sparkling little stream whose name is the product of yet another Indian legend.

The story goes that with the coming of the white man the Indians took note of his use of feathers to make his bed more comfortable. A tribesman more skeptical than his fellows found a feather and placed it on a large flat rock along the side of the run. He spent the night on it, but with results that caused him to doubt the white man's theories of comfort, and stalked away in hearty disgust. The stream has been "Featherbed Run" through all the years since that legendary incident.

Further downstream one finds Fishpot Rocks, Castle Rocks and Chimney Rocks. The latter stand out solitary and alone, surrounded by thick woods. They bear striking resemblance to the towers of feudal castles—"grand, gloomy and peculiar."

Nearby, too, are the famous Blue Rocks, so called from their beauteous bluish tints. Like stalwart sentinels they stand at a sharp curve in the river, towering several hundred feet high.

Many Unnamed Rocks.

Then there are the countless unnamed rocks that crop out at every notch or gap on these mountain stretches. Sometimes they rise perpendicularly to the sky, jutting out from the end of the mountain like boards set up in banks of earth. They are of knife-like shapness and remind the spectator of blades that have been dulled by misuse as canopeners.

At other places these exposures take circular form around the abutting peaks and become bright garlands of multi-colored tapestry. Occasionally they break out in bold relief in the very middle of mountainsides, brilliantly hued pictures painted on a canvas of forest green.

But Pendleton is not all rocks and trees. Between its broad-timbered ridges lie fertile fields and rich pastures that make the county one of the wealthiest in the States. And there are scores of lofty natural observatories from which one may view the checkered pattern of these narrow valley farm lands. One such view is from the State highway across North Fork Mountain—a vista of indescribable excellence.

Natural Amphitheatre.

Your motor tops the mountain in a wood and is about to start the long, winding descent on the west side. Suddenly it darts out into a cleared space and you are in an orchestra seat of a tremendous natural amphitheatre, where it seems that all the world might come to see a play. A thousand feet below lies a gently rolling stage carpeted with the green hues of growing crops. It is the so-called German Valley ,where early German settlers cleared the first fields and planted the first crops.

Skirting the stage with mathematical precision are the front-row seats formed by the Bland, Harper and Harmon hills. Behind them rise the succeeding rows that are Timber Ridge and a dozen others bearing local names. Behind them all is the mighty Spruce Mountain, a long streteh of the Alleghenies that commands the topmost view of this noble outdoor playhouse.

From your seat on North Mountain row, on a clear day, you can see the lookout tower on the loftiest pinnacle of the Spruce which marks the highest point in West Virginia and one of the highest east of the Mississippi River.

Obscured by Fog.

Under certain atmospberic conditions fleecy clouds hover over this colorful, elongated stage like the ceiling flies that hang backstage in any artificial theatre. At other times a great, solid mass of fog obscures the whole of the stage as completely as the tightest asbestos front curtain ever made.

A view not unlike this is to be had, too, from monumental Green Knob, a high point in the Alleghenies at the Randolph-Pendleton county line. And still another is from Haystack Mountain, a menacing peak from which the stout west winds have whipped almost every vestige of vegetation. Only a few stubborn pines are able to weather the gale and even the crowning rocks are weather-beaten and pocked.

But the giant of them all is the haughty Spruce Knob, where the rugged Alleghenies reach their zenith at a dizzy height of 4,860 feet. A little below is the tableland known as the Hunting Ground. Beyond this is the inevitable drop to the basic North Branch stream, and away from that a billowy stretch of hills, valleys and streams; hills, valleys and streams, until the eye can take in no more and the landscape is blurred in a blue haze that reaches to the sky. Here trees and skies and streams and mountains have conspired to paint a picture of unforgettable loveliness.

Rich in Resources.

Pendleton is like this throughout its length and bradth. New streams, new valleys, new ridges and new summits at every turn. A region where mineral and botanical richness have intermingled with rare success. And wellnigh blanketed by unexploited forests, anchors of the everlasting bills.

As if these were not blessings enough, the region may still boast of its beautiful and invigorating climte. The average annual temperature approximates 52 degrees, ranging from 32 degrees in winter to 71 degrees in summer. In hottest summer the mercury seldom gets up into the 90's and a record of 22 degrees below zero is the lowest that has been observed in winter. The sea is too remote to lend any appreciable influence, while, on the other hand, the Allegheny divide shelters the valleys from the storms of the West.

Pendletonians and their neighbors in Grant have rarely, if ever, "ballyhooed" the wonders of their land. They have welcomed the visitor, have lavished their native hospitality upon him and have quietly shown him these choicest scenie spots. But they have never tried to sell it to him, nor even urged him to look at it.

Natives are Content.

Rather, the native of the community has guarded this garden spot jealously, but not selfishly, for himself. Here he has been content to live comfortably, and oftimes luxuriously; to till his farm; to educate his children, and to worship God. Little has he cared that his community has not become the biggest, the busiest and the richest. What are these as compared with comfort, security and happiness?

He is just a little bit proud of the suggestion that his is an isolated heath. To be sure, he does not believe that. And, besides, it is in his creed that nowhere else is the sunshine so bright, the streams so clear, the mountains so lofty and the skies so blue. And so he chuckles, perhaps, at the money-mad world outside, and likes to think and taik of his homeland as "The Independent State of Pendleton."

Small wonder, then, that the Government has found here an ideal spot in which to enlarge its timber reserve. Experts have found that the area is remarkably free from fires and little of this vast acreage of timber has been exploited, because of its very inaccessibility and the fact that few of the individual owners hold enough to justify the heavy expense necessary to its operation. Climatic conditions are regarded as nearly perfect for such reforestation as might be attempted.

More Funds Needed.

Purchase of the tract necessarily will be slow. Not enough money is available to buy any large amount at once, and there will be the usual delays incident to reluctance on the part of some of the owners to sell.

But eventually the transition to government ownership and operation will be consummated. And as the forest preservation project goes forward the incidental recreational benefits will be discovered. Roads will be built; camp sites will be set aside; the streams probably will be restocked with fish, and new colonies of wild game will be started.

Some of this will be done by the Forestry Commission, for it is a part of its business to make forests accessible and attractive. Part, doubtless, will be done by the State of West Virginia, more particularly the game administration.

And now that the Government has taken this serious interest in Pendleton and Grant, the counties themselves have extended a helping hand. Through the Seneca-Smoke Hole Association, formed last year, a small but energetic group of men is giving Federal authorities every possible assistance.

For now it seems but a short day until men and women, weary of the noise and dust of the crowded places, will come here to linger and look and ask questions and play and find rest in this new-old sylvan retreat.

IF IT HAPPENS ELSEWHERE WHY NOT IN OAKLAND?

With the fact in mind that only one gallon of milk for each eighty acres within a radius of ten miles of Oakland would be necessary to produce 2,500 gallons of milk that the new shipping station would require, a diagnosis of the success of the creamery at Moorefield, West Va., would not be amiss.

The milk cooling and shipping station was established there in October, 1926, or less than a year ago. For six weeks following all the milk that was shipped out each day amounted to the small quantity of 400 gallons. At that time the country around the town of Moorefield was used in the production of beef cattle, with very few dairy cattle on the farms. The country was then and for many years prior a beef raising country, and there was little thought given to dairying.

Last Tuesday when a party of men from Oakland inspected the shipping station, records showed that on Monday preceding 1992 gallons of milk had been shipped and that on some days the figures had gone up to 2,100 gallons. That is the progress made in a town of less than 1,000 people whose surrounding territory was given over to the raising of beef cattle a year before.

Figure this out for yourself. Oakland could easily start with a shipment of 2,500 gallons, while the dairy at Moorefield, which is considered a big asset to the community by the farmers and townspeople as well, sarted with 400 gallons. Could Oakland do the same?

During the inspection tour over at Moorefield the men visited several barns that had been converted into dairy barns. The Supplee-Wills-Jones Company, who owns the shipping station, allowed each farmer one year in which to alter his barn, and the inspection also brought out these facts: One farmer put concrete gutters in the stable, put in twelve stanchions, sealed the roof of the barn, and put in partitions between the stalls, which cost him $85, exclusive of labor. For about $100 expense to each farmer they are now bringing into the community a monthly pay roll amounting to $11,000.

There is just one more thing to consider—the water supply. The country around Moorefield has very few wells or springs, and the ones it has are very deep wells. All water used for the cooling tank and milk house must be earried or pumped for quite a distance. On the other hand, take Garrett county. Ninety per cent of the farmers have a spring on their land that can be piped to almost anywhere they want it.

If the farmers around Moorefield can make a success of a milk shipping station under the difficulties that they had to face, is there any sufficient reason why Oakland could not make a go of a similar station under very much more favorable conditions? The facts in the ease have been stated.

KING TAKES SINGLES IN THE TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

The match required five sets to decide the winner of the finals and at the end both contestants were wellnigh exhausted. For three and a-half hours the spectators were thrilled, it is said, with the most spectacular brand of tennis ever witnessed on the Mountain Lake courts, and until the final set neither player had much advantage over his opponent.

In the first set, which King lost 6 to 8, O'Laughlin showed much more speed than his opponent and looked every bit the champion. In the next set, King extended himself and won in rather short order at 6 to 3. The third set saw O'Laughlin again come to the front, winning 4 to 6. King, in the meantime was taking things pretty easy, holding in reserve the strength and stamina to come thru in the final sets.

O'Laughlin was forced to change his clothing more than once due to excessive perspiration. The fourth set was one of those see-saw affairs where neither player seemed able to win nor willing to let his opponent win. King finally won 13 to 11.

When the score stood 9 to 8 in favor of O'Laughlin play was stopped temporarily to allow O'Laughlin time to have his knee rubbed and massaged.

The last set was rather fast, King displaying the best tennis of the entire match and showing that when neeessary he could extend himself to win, 6 to 4.

Winning this year places King in tie with Jarvis Adams of Forest Hills, N. Y., both having two legs on the championship trophy.

Mrs. Thompson Defeats Miss Zink.

In the finals of the ladies' singles, Mrs. DeLloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., defeated Miss Eleanor Zink, of Steubenville, Ohio, in straight sets 6 love; 6-2.

In the semi-finals, Miss Zink defeated Mrs. Winchester 6-3; 6-2, while Mrs. Thompson defeated Miss Eloise Roman, of Cumberland, 6-4; 6-4.

Men's Doubles.

The O'Laughlin brothers, John and Dave, won the men's doubles from Gwynn King and Porter in straight sets 6-2; 6-1; 6-love.

In the mixed doubles, Mrs. Thompson and John O'Laughlin defeated Miss Roman and Dave O'Laughlin, 6-4; 8-6.

DIPHTHERIA AND TYPHOID FEVER CASES INCREASED

In Maryland First Six Months of the Present Year

Because of an increase in diphtheria and typhoid fever throughout the State during the first six months of the present year, in comparison with the occurrence of the same diseases during the corresponding period in 1926, plans for increasing the fight against these preventable diseases were mapped out at the midsummer conference of Deputy State Health Officers at the State Department of Health in Baltimore.

Dr. R. H. Riley, assistant director of the State Department of Health and Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, who presided at the conference, said at its close: "In many parts of the country there has been an increase in typhoid and diphtheria. Maryland has shared in the general flare-up. From the first of January of this year to the end of June, 311 cases of diphtheria were reported to the Bureau of Communicable Diseases from the counties. In 1926, during the same period, the number was 232—79 fewer cases. Typhoid fever has shown a similar increase. A total of 165 eases was reported from the counties during the first six months of this year in comparison with 117 eases during the same period last year.

"Children under twelve are particularly susceptible to diphtheria. They can be protected against the disease by vaccination with what is known as toxin-anti-toxin. Before and after the schools open, in accordance with the plans worked out at the recent conference, an effort will be made by the deputies and assistant deputy State health officers to give the diphtheria toxin-anti-toxin treatment to as many children as possible, so that they may be immuized, that is protected against the disease.

"Typhoid is likely to attack people of any age from young children to men and women of advanced ages. The vaccine that will protect against typhoid is supplied free of charge by the State Department of Health and the department urges all who have not been protected against the disease within the last two years to go to their own doctor for the necessary treatments. The local or the deputy health officer will give the treatments if a doctor is not available. It is especially important for boys and girls or men and women who are going on hiking trips or camping or long automobile trips or on other vacation outings to secure this protection before they start."

CHANGES IN WEST PENN SCHEDULE NOW IN EFFECT

Through Service From Fairmont To Mountain Lake Park.

Three-hour bus service has been inaugurated between Morgantown, W. Va., and Mountain Lake Park, it was announced yesterday by officials of the Monongahela-West Penn Public Service Company. The announcement also contained information that hourly bus service between Richard and Morgantown had been started and that only through busses would be operated between Morgantown and Fairmont.

All of the changes are in accordance with the plan of the West Penn to augment and improve its bus system in this section of Maryland and West Virginia.

Faster Running Time.

The running time between Fairmont and Morgantown under the new schedule is one hour and ten minutes, or twenty minutes less than the time required by street car and bus thru the Rivesville terminal before.

All northbound busses, that is those traveling toward Morgantown from Fairmont, continue to Richard after making a stop at the Court House to discharge and take on passengers. Instead of being only a stop on the Morgantown to Kingwood, as was the case, Richard is really a new terminal.

Because the patronage does not justify it the former two-hour schedule between Morgantown and Kingwood is discontinued and instead of being a terminal, Kingwood has become a stop on the three-hour run between Morgantown and Mountain Lake Park.

Make Train Connections.

The early morning westbound bus from Mountain Lake Park to Morgantown meets B. & O. train No. 3 at Terra Alta, thus affording travelers from the east to Morgantown a saving of two and a half hours over present railroad schedules. It will no longer be necessary to make the trip from the east by way of M. and K. Junction or Grafton and Fairmont. The eastbound bus later in the day makes connections in Terra Alta with train No. 12 to New York, offering another large time saving for travelers out of Morgantown.

New Busses In Service.

In order to provide this augmented service, it was necessary for the West Penn Company to purchase five new International busses, which were put into use yesterday.

These machines have a capacity of 18 passengers, exclusive of the driver, and are said to be superior to any commercial vehicle employed on routes in this section. They are finished in bluebell with sand colored trimmings. The interior of the busses is finished in walnut with draped windows and linoleum coverings on the floors. The seats are of the bucket-type, Karpen fiber chairs, upholstered in leather, with a pitch of 26 degrees. The cushions are of the spring type, padded with curled hair.

Equipment of these machines includes a special heater system, roof ventilators, six dome lights, the Faraday buzzer system, Westinghouse airbrakes,dual tires on the rear wheels and a tarpaulin covered baggage rack on top.

The motors are of 40.8 horse power, and the machines weigh 11,500 pounds when empty. Dimensions of the busses are as follows: Overall length, 23 feet, 6 inches; wheelbase 180 inches; length inside body, 213 inches; width inside body, 83 inches; heighth inside body, 80 inches; width of entrance door, 34 inches.

K. of P. Auto Contest Assuming Large Proportions.

The picnic committee of Garrett Lodge has decided to offer a handsome prize in addition to the commission, to the person selling the most tickets in the automobile contest. No member of the lodge can participate in the contest for which awards are promised, but each member is expected to do his part in the contest and sell as many as possible. This announcement should be of particular interest to many of the young women who are desirous of winning a prize, besides their liberal commission.

The time is getting short, so each contestant must be up and doing and make hay while the sun shines. If you are interested, see A. G. Gortner who will fully explain as to the proposed award.

The picnic machinery is functioning smoothly and everyone is putting his shoulder to the wheel. Let nothing stand in the way or hinder you from giving the very best service at your command, for as you are a member of the order so should you be a worker in this picnic, for it is strictly a fraternal affair and the benefits derived therefrom are for the welfare of the organization.

The handsome Chevrolet coach may be seen from time to time on the street in charge of S. L. Townshend, who will sell you either one ticket or a whole book of twenty-five. Someone may get this car for a dime, which is almost a bargain.

We appeal to the people of the community to try to get this car and boost the Labor Day picnic. COMMITTEE.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

James Madison Durst.

James Madison Durst, a life-long resident of New Germany, died suddenly at his home on Saturday morning. He was apparently as well as usual and was engaged in performing his morning work about the place, having just completed assisting in the morning milking and cleaning the cream separator. He was working at the milk house and not returning as soon as his sister felt he should, she sent his little grandson to look for him, who found him lying face downward at the dairy. His death was instantaneous, probably caused from a heart attack. He was born May 7, 1850, being aged 77 years. He is survived by three sons, Ross, of Akron, Ohio, and Bruce and Harry, of near Oakland; one brother, David Durst, of Oakland, and a sister, Mary Jane, who resided with him, and also by fifteen grandchildren. His wife, a son and his only daughter preceded him in death. Services were held in the M. E. church at New Germany on Monday morning by his pastor, Rev. J. E. Johnson, with interment in the church cemetery by Undertaker Winterberg. The funeral was largely attended. Mr. Durst was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He held every office in the New Germany M. E. church that it was possible for a layman to hold and at the time of his death was trustee and continuously Sunday school superintendent since the congregation has been worshipping in the building now occupied, probably a period of more than fifty years. His passing is a loss to the community and the church.

A Daughter Born.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Frickey are the proud parents of a daughter, their first child, which was born on August 9th at the Meyersdale hospital, Meyersdale, Pa.

A Kansas Visitor.

Mr. D. H. Bender, a brother of J. J. and C. A. Bender, of Grantsville, and of F. W. and J. H. Bender, of Springs, Pa., who has been residing in Heeston, Kansas, for a number of years, is visiting here this week with his brothers. Mr. Bender preached in the Mennonite church at Springs on Sunday morning. He is president of Hesston College, a Mennonite school located at Hesston.

Bridge Club Pienies.

The Bridge Club journeyed to Gorley's Lake and hotel near Uniontown, Pa., last Tuesday where they spent the day in water sports and playing bridge. An elaborate dinner, served by the hotel management, was also enjoyed by the party. There were a number of visitors in the party and all are delighted with the outing.

Meeting of the Ladies' Aid.

The Reformed Ladies' Aid Society met in the home of Mrs. Ida Hershberger on Tuesday for a day of sewing, which was unusually well attended. The hostess served the noon luncheon. This organization has been engaged in making a large number of articles for sale, with a view of helping the building fund of their church and also to provide garments for the needy in time of emergency.

Tidings From China.

Father Gabriel, a former pastor of the Catholic church here, who left two years ago to teach in a college in the Province of Kansu, China, wrote a letter the day after the disastrous earthquake in Kansu and which has just been received by friends here in which he tells about conditions at his station. He writes as follows:

"Yesterday morning about 5:30, soon after I began early mass, we felt an earthquake shock. The walls, ceiling and floor suddenly began to sway and creak and as the shocks became more intense, we left the church and as we stood together in the courtyard the ground swayed back and forth like a ship on the ocean to the accompaniment of rattling windows and falling roof tiles. It lasted about three minutes. When it was over we returned to the church and I had nearly finished reading the mass when we felt another slight shock. Thanks to the local method of building, which allows for swaying a little, practically no damage was done in this vicinity. This was the second earthquake I experienced. The first was on the 8th of April, but it was not so severe as the one that occurred yesterday."

Father Gabriel refers to the earthquake of May 23d in which it is estimated over one hundred thousand persons were killed. He also states that on April 27th all Protestant missionaries, for some reason unknown to him, were called out of the Province of Kansu, leaving only Catholic missionaries in his vicinity at the time of the disastrous quake.

Occupies New Quarters.

The addition which doubled the size of the Motor Service Company's building at the east end of Grantsville was occupied for the first time last week. It gives the company a nice show room, a modern office for both bookkeeper and the management. The stock room is increased more than a hundred per cent in size over the old one and is arranged according to the latest stock room practices. A paint shop has been added; rest-rooms are at the disposal of those who stop at this modern establishement. The proprietors, Floyd C. Diehl and Harvey Gortner, are to be congratulated for their present plant. They are the local agents for Ford products and farm machinery. They have built up a wonderful business during the past five years.

Rare Find.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner, who live several miles southeast of town, recently found several Spanish coins in their garden while they were tilling it. The coins were all old, one being dated a hundred and fifty years ago. The coins are about the size of a quarter, made of silver and are in very good condition. The lettering is clear and the die work good. Besides other lettering, one is inscribed, "Carolus III—1776," and another "Carolus III —1795." Mr. Gardner is quite pleased with his fortunate discovery.

Visiting in Their Homeland.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Warner and two sons, of Whiting, Kansas, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Warner and family, of Pittsburgh, accompanied by Mrs. Ella Bird, of Confluence, Pa., visited at Spring Valley Farm and other places on Negro Mountain and around this place last Wednesday. The Warners are sons of the late Henry Warner, who, years ago, lived on Negro Mountain and is doubtles remembered by many of the older residents of the community. He moved to Kansas with his family some years ago. The visitors remember the locality quite vividly, having not seen it since they were small boys and were quite delighted with their visit to the familiar haunts. They spent several weeks at Addison, Pa., the guests of Mrs. Flora Turney.

Birthday Parties.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week the daughters of Mrs. C. J. Folk gave her a surprise birthday party in her home on Keyser Ridge, which was much enjoyed by all. Mrs. Folk has been ill a great deal during the past year, but at present is much better. Those giving the surprise were Mrs. Albert Reichenbecker and children, Mrs. J. Reichenbecker and children and Mrs. E. S. Duckworth and children.

Mrs. C. Earl Stanton gave a surprise party for her son Leslie, whose 17th birthday was celebrated last Friday. Unknown to him, about 35 of his young friends and neighbors quietly walked in and quickly disturbed his reading, bearing many presents and made the evening most pleasant with games and stunts. Leslie states he enjoyed the evening immensely.

Bridge Party.

Mrs. Effie Parmer entertained with a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon, followed by a dainty luncheon. Those attending were Mrs. Annie E. Getty, Mrs. Ella B. Keller, Mrs. B. T. Keller, Misses Ruth Keller, Ruth Stanton and Viola Broadwater. Mrs. Ella B. Keller won high honors and Miss Ruth Keller the consolation.

Sold Sugar Timber.

Joseph Livengood, residing in the Casselman Valley, near the State line, recently acquired the old Livengood farm just north of the one upon which he now resides and known as the Elijah Livengood farms. Immediately after purchasing the place, he sold the sugar timber to Davis Brothers, of Springs, well known lumber manufacturers in this community. Many people feel sorry to see the trees go, as this was a famous grove and with it Elijah Livengood earned the title of Pennsylvania's sugar king. However, Joe cannot operate the entire camp and feels that it is just as well to convert a part of it into lumber.

Miller Family Reunion.

Last Saturday was a red letter day for the Joel B. Miller clan. He was one of the early settlers of this locality and the great-great-grandfather of the smaller Millers of today. He was a man of great determination and character, wresting from the wilderness a good farm and a comfortable home for his family. Of his descendants there were about 250 present at the reunion. There were a large number of friends also present, bringing the number up to 320 in attendance. Members of the family came from Kansas, Ohio and Virginia. The visitors came from Iowa and Illinois. All provided generously of picnic food which was spread upon two large tables in the Daniel J. Brenneman grove near the State line and a real feast of good food and fellowship was held by a large family once more united. Following the feast came a program, which was enlightening and enjoyed. It consisted of group songs and a mixed quartet by two brothers and two sisters—M. B. and A. J. Miller and Mrs. Olen Bender and Mrs. Mark Bender, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Simon S. Miller. Rev. N. E. Miller offered the opening prayer and Rev. G. D. Miller, the closing prayer. Both men are at home in Springs, Pa. The speakers were Rev. D. H. Bender, of Hesston, Kansas; Mr. J. S. Shumaker, one of the visitors from Freeport, Ill., and Alvin J. Miller, who has been absent from the family circle for eight years, having been engaged during that time in Mennonite relief work in Europe.

Prepare for School Week.

One thing that children like about going to school is the new clothes that they get at this time, and new clothes are necessary for this occasion. To go back to school in the same clothes that were worn when they left school, would be like going back to the same grade that they were in when they left, and who wants to go back to the same grade? Not one, for changing from grade to grade is one of the attractions of school, as is the getting of new clothes for this event.

The school apparel offered by this store is simple, attractive and sensible. Your child will find what he wants in this selection and you will be more than satisfied with his choice, for as we have said before it is all simple, attractive and sensible apparel for school clothes, and add to that, the prices, which are in keeping with economy.

MT. LAKE PARK.

According to the published program of the Park Association for the summer, next Sunday will be the closing service in the tabernacle. If the weather permits the attendance at this service will be the largest of the summer. It is Law Enforcement day. The Gormania band is to take part in the program of the day. George W. Crabbe, of Baltimore, and State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger will be the morning speakers. In the afternoon United States Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, will be the speaker. Those who hear him will enjoy a treat.

The radio fans of the Park were delighted Monday night over the broadcasting programs which came in without interruption from 10:00 to 10:30 from Atlantic City. Goldman's famous band of sixty pieces played. Miss Marshall's solos, accompanied by the band, thrilled her hearers.

The Schrock home, better known as Army and Navy Headquarters, has had a good season. A number of outside rooms were rented to accommodate the half hundred guests. The home has its own electric, water and heating plant, vegetable garden and dairy.

Summer visitors are finding the three bus lines now in operation great conveniences as to time and expense in reaching Fairmont, Morgantown, Kingwood, Thomas, Davis, Frostburg, Uniontown and intermediate points on the routes.

The report of the operation of the pea cannery published in The Republican last week was a Garrett county booster. The pay roll of $100,000 for the month of operation certainly means much to the farmers, merchants and employes. The canning of corn to begin in a few weeks, will distribute many more dollars in the community.

Fishermen and fisherboys last Monday availed themselves of the opportunity of enjoying the last fishing day of the season at Deep Creek Lake. Some small fish were caught by the anglers.

The lawn tennis tournament last week was full of interest and was greatly enjoyed by the large number of people witnessing the various matches. It has been stated that it was the best tournament yet held in the Park.

The Allenhurst is full of guests. It has had a crowded season, turning away scores of applicants for board and rooms. A party of six were unable to be accommodated Monday evening.

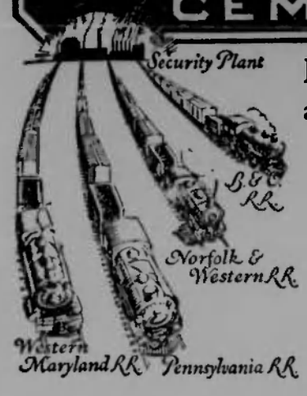
Mr. J. A. Enlow, who has resided at the Park ever since its establishment, and who was an employe of the Association for a number of years, is arranging to publish a history of the Park and its development. The Park has a most interesting history. The programs presented to the patrons in years past were the best available and included Presidents of the United States, U. S. Senators, generals in the United States army and Congressmen, the greatest orators of the ministry of different denominations, the best musical talent, both instrumental and vocal that could be had from all sections of the country. The programs attracted great crowds of people who came here on regular and by special trains. As many as four or five thousand in one day have arrived at the Park in the past years. Here gathered conventions, some of them having several thousand delegates, such as the Friends' meeting and that of the Bible Students. Such men as Lyman Abbott, DeWitt Talmadge, Sam Jones and Sam Small were on the Chautauqua program.

The camp meetings were attended by large crowds from Indianapolis, Ind., and Philadelphia, Pa., and from many other cities of the east and the west.

The nearly two score and ten years of the Park's existence have left in Garrett county hundreds of thousands of dollars and is full of pleasant recollections.

The Park and Loch Lynn, twin towns, make one of the largest villages of the county and the property values add largely to the taxable basis of the county, and the stores, garages, mills and supply store, the cannery are all enjoying a profitable business. The three churches and two school buildings provide for the religious and educational requirements of the population and during the summer season provides a fine market for the nearby farms.

Dr. Archibald Moore preached a splendid missionary sermon at the auditorium here in the Park on Sunday morning to a large and appreciative congregation.



On Sunday evening Mr. F. F. Baker delivered a splendidly illustrated talk from photographs he had taken while helping with reconstruction of the mission work in North Africa and in Europe following the close of the World War.

Rev. and Mrs. Shultz came to the Park Monday evening for a week's rest and entertainment at the Deaconess Rest Home.

ROTARIANS WILL HOLD AN OUTING NEXT WEDNESDAY

Clubs From Three States To Be Represented at Gathering to Be Held at Deer Park Hotel.

Rotarians from three states and a score or more Rotary Clubs are expected to assemble at Deer Park Hotel on Wednesday, August 31, for the annual tri-State outing and dinner under the auspices of the Terra Alta Rotary Club.

The District Governors of Maryland, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania will be present at the meeting this year and F. Roy Yoke, past governor of West Virginia Rotary, will preside over the festivities and will be toastmaster at the dinner to be served in the large dining hall of the hotel.

The Deer Park outing has been an annual affair for Rotarians of this section for the past few years with an attendance each year far outstripping that of previous years.The affair is purely social, the Rotarians and their ladies enjoying golf, swimming, tennis and other diversions at the hotel during the afternoon and devoting themselves to the dinner and dance in the evening. The affair has always been informal and will be that this year.

Record Crowd Expected.

It is expected that more than four hundred Rotarians and their ladies will be present this year. Good roads from every direction lead into Deer Park, which means that Western Maryland, Western Pennsylvania and northerly West Virginia clubs will be well represented at the gathering.

Rev. Brock Makes Address.

Rev. Walter B. Brock, pastor of the Oakland Presbyterian church, was the speaker at the last meeting of the local Rotary Club, held on Friday at the William-James Hotel. He based his remarks upon an editorial appearing recently in one of the metropolitan dailies and showed what the condition of Philadelphia and any other city would be like if there were no churches. He pictured what Oakland would resemble with no churches or other means of Christian religious teaching or training for the youth. He said the United State would retrace its steps to a state of barbarism if churches were taken out of the cities and in their places jails and penitentiaries and other penal instiutions would be erected. Hospitals and schools would disappear and a state well along the lines of the stone-age when the strong got what they wanted as against the weak would be developed and hold sway.

LAW ENFORCEMENT DAY IS OBSERVED AT THE PARK

Program Ends Season's Activities at Mountain Lake

Law Enforcement Day was observed at Mountain Lake Park last Sunday, the meeting being held in the auditorium and marked the close of the season's activities at this popular resort.

The day's program was in charge of George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League. Large audiences were present both morning and afternoon.

Superintendent Crabbe,in the course of his remarks in the morning said: "The friends of law enforcement will never accept the failure of the enemies of the law who are holding law enforcement jobs as the failure of prohibition. This policy of government will never be given a fair trial until its enforcement is in the hands of officers who believe in the law."

Renninger Speaks Plainly.

Julius C. Renninger, of Oakland, who is State's Attorney for Garrett county, pledged himself for enforcement of law, declaring that he was not only in favor of the law, but was also in favor of prohibition.

Cyrus F. Flook, of Hagerstown, talked on the importance of enforcing the Constitution. He said it was just as dangerous to disregard one part of it as another.

The Rev. Roland Aspinall, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Mountain Lake Park, also made an address upon the subject of law enforcement.

Former United States Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, who was to have been the principal speaker upon the occasion, was unable to be present on account of the illness of his son.

The Gormania Band furnished music for the meeting and there was community singing.

CAR OVERTURNS TRYING TO AVERT A COLLISION

Oakland Automobile Also Damaged in Mishap Sunday

What might have been a serious accident was narrowly averted Sunday morning at the intersection of the National Highway and the Keyser Ridge road from Oakland when an eastbound Pennsylvania car in avoiding a collision with the Chevrolet coupe, occupied by Mrs. Anna Smouse, Ralph Smouse and Irene Smouse, overturned. In making the sharp swerve the Pennsylvania car struck the rear bumper and fender on Mrs. Smouse's car and damaged it to some extent.

None of the occupants of either car were seriously injured, and the damage done to both cars was amply covered by insurance.

Mrs. Smouse, her daughter and her nephew were on their way to Weirton, West Va., to visit Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, the latter being the eldest daughter of Mrs. Smouse. They continued their journey following the accident.

Money To Be Used for Relief of County's Crippled Children

Exact figures from the receipts of the picture, "Men of Steel," which was shown under the auspices of the Oakland Civic Club for the benefit of crippled children throughout Garrett county, reveals that after all expenses are paid there will be a balance of $163.43. Large Motor Boat Launched on Deep Creek Lake.

The "Mary Jane Mayville," a motor boat approximately 25 feet long and with a beam of seven feet, was launched yesterday morning in the waters of Deep Creek Lake. The boat is owned by Cecil Ramsey, of near Oakland, who has a special permit to use it in floating the thousands of pieces of timber lining the shores of the lake to some central point or at certain points along the shore where the logs will be manufactured into lumber. The craft was built by H. W. Kahl at his planing mill in Oakland.

The boat is equipped with a Chevrolet motor and has all the appearances of being quite seaworthy and is large enough to be seagoing.

AFTER TWO YEARS HUNT MAN FINALLY CAPTURED

Floyd Bittinger Being Held In Jail on Two Charges, that of Forgery and Bootlegging

After eluding the local authorities for the past two years, who held warrants for his arrest based on indictments returned by the grand jury of Garrett county on bootlegging charges and for the forging of a check in June of the present year, Floyd Bittinger, about thirty-five years old, was taken into custody Tuesday morning at his home located somewhere east of Meadow Mountain and in the vicinity of Bond, by Constable Andrew Shartzer and Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith.

Several trips made to Bittinger's home by the authorities during the past two years have failed to find him, and it was very fortunate, according to the officers who made the arrest on Tuesday, that he was found at home this time. The officers left Oakland Tuesday morning at 4:30 o'clock and surprised Bittinger, who was still in bed at his home deep in the mountain.

He was brought to Oakland and lodged in the Garrett County Jail. He will be given a hearing within a few days on the forgery charge, while the indictment charging him with bootlegging will be taken up at the December term of the Circuit Court.

The forgery charge grew out of the conviction at the last term of the Circuit Court of Bittinger's son for bootlegging. The boy was Alfred Bittinger, said to have been the youngest moonshiner ever caught in the county. After he had been convicted it is alleged that his father, Floyd Bittinger, the man taken into custody on Tuesday, remitted a check alleged to have been made by Harvey Broadwater for the sum of $264.35 to cover the fine and costs of prosecution.

NEW YORK MEN ARE HELD AFTER CRASH ON HIGHWAY

Four Arrested When Their Machine Hits Frostburger's Car

Arrested after a crash on the National Highway near Johnson's, Garrett county, four miles west of Frostburg, late Sunday night, four men who gave their names as John Geracki, James Ross, Harry Lang and Thomas Hollanby, of Glenn Falls, N. Y., are being held in the Allegany County Jail at Cumberland pending an investigation by State police.

The men in custody told Officer Thomas Currie, of the State police, that Harry Smith, driver of the car, disappeared after the collision. Smith is still at large.

According to Cohey Engle, of Frostburg, the New York machine crashed into his car after he had swerved the machine to the extreme right of the road to avoid a collision. He declared that the driver of the other car was intoxicated and that the machine was on the left side of the highway.

Both cars were badly wrecked, but no one was injured.

Officer Currie said that a quantity of silverware, a rifle and other articles were found in the machine, leading police to suspect that they were stolen. The men said that the car was purchased in Glenn Falls last week and that they were driving to California.

Finger Amputated

Charles Fulk, farmer, of near Gortner, had the second finger of his right hand amputated by Dr. McComas on Monday, following an infection caused by a thorn which pierced the first joint of the affected digit two or three weeks ago. SMALL BOYS ARE RELEASED FOLLOWING HEARING HERE

Hoover Children, 8 and 11 Years Old, Paroled by Justice West —Charged Being Vicious

Two brothers, Melvin and Herbert Hoover, 8 and 11 years old respectively, of near Jennings, were paroled yesterday by Justice of the Peace E. I. West, following a hearing of the case in which the boys were charged with being vicious and beyond the control of their mother and with disorderly conduct.

It was brought out from witnesses that the dog of the smallest boy had killed 37 sheep, and that both of the boys had committed numerous misdemeanors. Proof that the sheep had been killed by the boy's dog, however, could not be clearly established at the hearing, and for the other offenses with which the youngsters were supposed to be guilty, the Justice paroled them.

It was admitted at the hearing that the boys had not attended school last year, but their mother, a widow, said that it was necessary for them to stay at home so that she might go out and earn a living for them. The father of the boys was burned to death about two years ago when the house in which the family was living at the time was burned.

The people bringing the charges at the trial are said to have wanted the two boys sent away to some industrial school so that they might learn what is right and good, but 'Squire West stated that now would be a good opportunity for the people of the community at Jennings to do a little missionary work themselves and with this advice he released the boys.

LETTERS BEING MAILED IN BEHALF OF SOCIETY

Civic Club Is Sending Out Notices of Meeting

Letters have been mailed by members of the Oakland Civic club asking the people for support of the crippled children of Garrett county by attending a meeting which will be held to form a Garrett county chapter on August 26 at 8 o'clock p. m. in the High School auditorium. Miss Mary E. Church, secretary, will speak and pictures will be shown by Dr. Edwin Weinberg concerning aid given to crippled children. Following is part of the letter:

"The Maryland League for Crippled Children was formed April 30, 1927, as an outgrowth of the Guild for Crippled Children of Baltimore. We believed that the problem of the crippled child in the State of Maryland had become such that an organized movement for its care, both physical and educational, was needed. In order to do this the situation will have to be studied through county organizations. At the present time, only the officers have been elected and county representation is being arranged through honorary vice-presidents. We are asking suggestions from various sections of the state along the question of vice-presidents. The chairman or president of a county chapter will be the one directly responsible to the Maryland league."

Dr. W. S. Baer is president of the organization; Mrs. H. L. Frank, vice-president; Mr. Henry Horkheimer, treasurer, and Mrs. C. N. Athey, secretary. Dr. eGorge C. Bennett is chairman of medical committee. The letters are signed by Thekla C. Fundenberg, president of the Civic club, and Mary Drake Naylor, secretary. They are using as their slogan, "Help the Crippled Children of Garrett County."

Those interested are: Dr. N. I. Broadwater, Dr. Hugh Strachan, Dr. H. W. McComas, Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, Miss Rhesa King, R. N.; Mr. George D. Browning, Mr. J. C. Renninger, Rev. C. A. NEW RATE ALLOWED FOR KEEP OF U. S. PRISONERS

Sheriffs Will Receive 75 Cents Per Day Instead of 60 Cents.

County jailers in Maryland are now allowed to charge 75 cents a day for the keep of Federal prisoners, it was disclosed yesterday by George W. Collier, United States Marshall. The new rate is an advance of fifteen cents a day over previous allowances.

The Garrett County Jail now has twelve Federal prisoners confined within its walls, according to jail officials, and the sheriff has been allowed 60 cents per day for their care. The new rating allows an additional fifteen cents per day each.

108 in County Jails.

Mr. Collier said he had received a letter from W. T. Hammack, superintendent of prison inspections, Department of Justice, at Washington, in which, following a report of investigators, the new rate was authorized. There are now confined in twenty of Maryland's county jails a total of 108 Federal prisoners.

BESIDES BEING FINED $200 DRIVER IS HELD FOR COURT

A. S. Nethkin, Who Wrecked His Car August 14, Given Hearing on Two Charges

A. S. Nethkin, Baltimore and Ohio freight engineeer, residing at Keyser, West Va., who was arrested on Sunday, August 14th, following an automobile accident near Thayerville in which the car he was driving ran into a culvert and then swerved into a tree standing nearby, was given a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder last Thursday afternoon on two charges preferred against him by the State officials.

On the charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor, he was fined $200 and costs, which he paid. On the charge of transporting liquor into Garrett county, Nethkin was held under bond in the sum of $500 for his appearance at the December term of the Circuit Court, which was furnished and he was released.

The arrest of Nethkin was made by Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith shortly after the occurrence of the wreck of Nethkin's car. He was detained until Monday preceding the hearing before Justice Gonder at which time bond in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance was furnished.

The wrecked car belonging to Nethkin was brought to Oakland and after examination by a garage mechanic it was deemed not to be worth repairing, the car having been literally wrapped about the tree after striking it.

Fortunately, in the wreck, none of the car's occupants were seriously injured, but a man named Carney, who accompanied the owner of the car, had two of his fingers slightly cut and bruised.

A Trip to Palestine.

Something new under the sun happened in Oakland last Sunday morning. A new kind of Sunday school was held at the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church. Instead of studying the usual leaflets or quarterlies, the pastor, Rev. Walter B. Brock, provided a magic carpet which whisked the entire school over to the Holy Land for a brief visit, and brought them back in time for the morning service. Mr. Brock has a new type of stereopticon lantern which projects pictures which are perfectly clear in full daylight. Beautiful views of Joppa, the ancient seaport of Palestine, and Caesarea, where Cornelius, the first Gentile convert, lived, were thrown on the screen.

Next Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock sharp, all who come to the Presbyterian church, will be taken to Palestine again for another interesting visit. Miss Marion Leary is prineipal of the Bible School.

Bears Killing Sheep.

Bears have been creating havoc among the sheep flocks of the section of country surrounding Bayard, just across the Potomac River from Garrett county. The flocks of Henry Ashby and Ernest Cullers have been visited repeatedly, Mr. Ashby claiming a loss of about twenty sheep while close to fifty are missing from the flocks of Mr. Cullers. Efforts to trap the bears have been fruitless up to this time, and sheep owners are getting greatly worried. The bears seem quite tame, one of them coming up to the barn of Mr. Cullers a few nights ago.

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS RECEIVED IN EXPLOSION

Clothing Ignited When Attempt was Made to Hurry Kindling of Fire Sunday Morning.

The explosion of the fumes of a quantity of gasoline, which she used in an attempt to hurry the kindling of a fire in the kitchen range early on Sunday morning and the consequent setting on fire of her clothing, resulted in the death of Miss Melissa Welch Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of her nephew, William C. Welch at Gortner, Garrett county, six miles south of Oakland.

With her clothing all ablaze, Miss Welch ran from the house toward the barn, located about two hundred yards distant, where a farmhand in the employ of Mr. Welch, was engaged in milking the cows. Mr. Feather, the farm hand, succeeded in smothering the blaze by the use of blankets, but the unfortunate woman was so horribly burned that her death was only a matter of hours, notwithstanding immediate attention rendered by the family physician, Dr. McComas, who hurried to the Welch farmhouse as soon as he had received the call. The woman was made as comfortable as was humanely possible, death coming to her relief at the hour above stated.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Union church at Gortner, Rev. F. L. Fultz, pastor of the Loch Lynn U. B. church officiating. Interment was made at Gortner.

The deceased was a sister of the late Silas Welch and for a number of years had resided with her nephew, William Welch, who, with his family, at the time of the accident, were on a visit to relatives in a distant state, but arrived at their home late Monday evening upon being apprized of the death of their relative.

BITTINGER.

Remember that the Bittinger Sunday school picnic, to be held in Broadwater's Grove next Saturday, August 27th, cannot be a complete success without your presence. Come early, therefore, and remain with us all day.

Last Sunday afternoon a couple of vicious dogs attacked a flock of sheep belonging to Mr. Levi Resh, a farmer residing near this village, but we have not yet learned the extent of the damage done by them. It seems that something should be done to protect sheep owners against such depredations. Many farmers have lost sheep within the past few months and as no effort has been made to enforce the dog tax law, in this section of the county at least, they have not been paid for their losses. Hundreds of worthless dogs run about continually without being tagged, which is but another evidence of the lagging of law enforcement.

Rev. E. E. Campbell, of the Lutheran church, has been holding a series of meetings in the local church. These meetings are being well attended and are accomplishing much good.

The Dunkard Brethren held their annual love feast at their Maple Grove church near here on last Sunday.

Neighbor O. C. Buckle had the misfortune to lose a valuable cow one day last week. The animal was tethered to a tree in the orchard and in some way became entangled in the rope, throwing herself and breaking her neck.

C. C. Beachy recently treated himself and family to a fine new automobile which will add much to the comfort of their motoring.

Century Old Rails Were Used on First Railroad.

Century-old wooden rails used on the original Baltimore to Frederick main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have been taken from the frame-work of a dilapidated farmhouse in Carroll county, Maryland, and will be plaeed on display among other rare historical exhibits at the Centenary Exhibition and Pageant to be held at Baltimore, September 24 to October 8.

The track is part of one of the first railroad lines laid down in this country, dating back to 1830, when the "Tom Thumb" engine, first American built locomotive, rumbled over the line.

A. E. Droman, who possesses the original deed of the farmhouse property dating back to the first quarter of the nineteenth century, discovered the rails. The ancient dwelling, set picturesquely in Carroll county hills, near Henryton, about 25 miles from Baltimore on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, is occupied by tenants of Mr. Droman.

Old-timers in this section, who recall the days when ox-carts rolled over the rough country roads in the vicinity, told Mr. Droman that some of the lumber used in the construction of his house once supported the wheels of quaint old locomotives during the first years of the railroad in America. They had heard their parents talk about it.

Wishing to prove the authenticity of the story, Mr. Droman took representatives of the Baltimore and Ohio out to see his house recently and they found four 22-foot rails holding up the back porch. Further inspection revealed more historic timber supporting the first floor and still more used as part of the framework of a large barn near the house. G. W. Hunt, maintenance inspector of the Baltimore and Ohio, estimated that there was nearly a fifth of a mile of single track represented in the building of the two structures.

The rails, of tough Georgia yellow pine, were used in a system of tracklaying very different from thatof the present time. They were fastened to heavy "sleepers," which were long rectangular blocks of stone embedded in the earth. On top of the wood, along the inside edge, was laid an iron strap, the rail proper, over which the wheels of the locomotives and cars ran.

This track remained in standard service for about four years and was then replaced by the "T" type rail. The long wooden timbers, stout and heavy, were thrown to one side as the new track progressed, and made excellent building material for those who cared to haul them away.

The house owned by Mr. Droman is decaying, but the yellow pine rails, fat with rosin, have stood strong and sound through years of weathering.

Originally, the property was owned by Henry DeVries, whose immediate forbears were farmer emigrants from Holland. Lumber was plentiful in the days when this man began the construction of his home, but it had to be hewn and cut to proper lengths, which took time and a great deal of labor. Naturally, when farmer DeVries found the railroad abandoning their fine timber, the story goes, he lost no time in securing some of it for his house and barn.

Enough of the rails have been taken from the house to complete 30 feet of track, which will be part of an assembly of ten sections of rail showing successive improvements in trackbuinding from the earliest days to the present.

EXHIBITION SUGGESTIONS FOR COUNTY FAIR GIVEN

Demonstration Agent Tells Why Articles Are Displayed.

There can be but one real purpose for exhibiting household articles at a fair or community show, namely: to place before the public the best products which the housewives or daugters of the homes are capable of making.

The purpose of the exhibit should be educational in every respect and every article shown should have some commendable feature, or it should not be shown.

Three vital steps must precede improvement: first, a recognition of defeets; second, a recognition of higher ideals; third, a recognition of methods that will help to bring about the desired ideals.

Suggestions to Exhibitors.

Bread—Bread should be baked in individual pans about 4x5x10 inches in size. The loaf should be well rounded over the top, not flattened, not extending over the edges of the pan nor cracked at the sides, and be evenly baked. Bread should be at least 24 hours old when judged.

Cake—The general appearance of the cake counts a great deal in judging. A cake should be regular in its shape; evenly risen on all sides, very slightly rounded over the top, have delicately browned crust and suggest a delicious delicacy.

Angel food cakes are better when not iced. Cake should be exhibited on some flat surface, such as pasteboard or a heavy tin.

Butter—Good premiums should be offered for good butter. Butter should be exhibited in one pound plain rectangular prints, wrapped in parchment paper.

Canned Products—Containers

The container and its appearance counts 15 in judging canned products. Therefore, the container should be a standard make of jar, with new rubbers, clean and neatly labeled. There is no excuse for soiled jars or lids, and if such is exhibited, they should either go into a class by themselves or not be accepted by the ones taking in the exhibit.

In a collection of canned products, these things are to be considered: Uniformity of jars; labels should all be the same kind and plaeed in just the same position on the jars.

Judges' Rules.

Worn or soiled articles will not be awarded premiums.

Canned fruit will not be opened except in case of doubt.

Jellies, jams and pickles will be opened by judges.

NATHAN LEADS DAVID TO REPENTANCE

GOLDEN TEXT—A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou will not despise.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Shows David His Sin.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Nathan Calls David to Repentance.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Confessing and Forsaking Sin.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance: What It Is, and What It Does.

I. David's Crimes (II Sam. 11).

1. Adultery (vv. 4, 5).

He by his kingly authority brought Bathsheba, the beautiful wife of Uriah, one of his brave soldiers, into his harem.

2. Murder (vv. 14-18).

David sought to cover up his shameful act of adultery with Bathsheba by calling Uriah from the field of battle and giving him a furlough at home with his wife. (He first gave him honorable recognition by sending a portion of meat from the royal table—v. 8.) Uriah's high sense of military duty and propriety would not allow him to do this.

Failing in this, David corrupted him by making him drunk, with the expectation that Uriah would thus go home. When these schemes would not work he resorted to the terrible crime of exposing Uriah to the most dangerous place in the battle where he would surely be killed.

II. Contributing Factors in David's Fall.

1. Idleness (11:1).

It was the king's responsibility to go forth with his army to battle. David tarried at Jerusalem because of indolence or self-indulgence.

2. He looked upon a beautiful woman (11:2).

As he was lounging in idleness, this temptation was too great for him. He yielded to his lustful impulse and sent his servants to bring the woman to him. This action on the part of David is absolutely inexcusable. David had the power to turn from this sin and thus escape temptation.

III. David Rebuked by Nathan, the Prophet (12:1-12).

What David had done displeased the Lord (11:27). What he had done gratified his own carnal lust, but the serious thing is that it displeased the Lord. Because David was God's own, God could not let the matter rest. He therefore sent Nathan, His prophet, to him.

1. The parable of the ewe lamb (vv. 1-6).

Among the Jews it was customary to have pet lambs which were brought up with the children of the family and therefore regarded with tender affection. Nathan pictures before David a poor man whose sole possession consisted of one such lamb, and a rich neighbor when entertaining a guest had appropriated unto himself this lamb instead of drawing upon his numerous flock. This so aroused David's anger that he declared that the rich man should restore fourfold, and in addition forfeit his life. Nathan declared: "Thou art the man." In spite of David's awful sin, he had burning indignation against the wrongdoer.

2. Sentence of judgment (vv. 7-12).

Perhaps no history records an indictment so terrible as this one.

(1) He recounted unto David God's peculiar favor (vv. 7, 8).

God had taken him from the sheepcote and lifted him to the throne, made him king over all Israel. He had delivered him from Saul's murderous plots and he had inherited Saul's royal possessions.

(2) David's shameful treatment of God's law (v. 9).

He pointed out that he had violated both tables of the law by worshiping the God of passion and had practiced covetousness, robbery, lying and murder.

(3) The awful judgment pronounced (vv. 10-12).

The prophet declared that the sword should never depart from David's house. He had used the sword to slay Uriah. God in His retributive justice permitted the sword to remain in David's house.

IV. David's Confession (vv. 13-23).

The confession of sin was so real to David that he declared that it had been committed against God (Ps. 51:4). He now was made fully conscious of his broken condition. He realized what it meant to be without innocence. Though he confessed his sin, as recorded in Psalm 32, and God forgave him, he had to suffer its consequence. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

The Coward

To die in order to avoid the pains of poverty, love, or anything that is disagreeable is not the role of a brave man, but of a coward. For it is cowardice to shun the misfortunes and trials of life, not undergoing death because it is honorable, but to escape evil.—Aristotle.

Prayer, a Golden Key

Prayer is a golden key which should open the morning and lock up the evening.—Bishop Hopkins.

BURDENS OF WAR FALL HEAVIEST UPON BUSINESS ENTERPRISES.

Ultra-Pacifists and political demagogues frequently assert that wars are brought about by the pressure of business interests anticipating profit from organized slaughter. Economic considerations have caused some wars, but that business men as a class are more given to the plotting of war than other elements is on the face of it an inacurate and even stupid statement.

The burdens of war fall heavily upon business enterprise. In its extravagant and wasteful expenditure burdens are created for business, always reflected in high and sometimes almost confiscatory taxes. The fabric of business is broken down, the channels of business clogged and changed. Speculators and financiers, comparatively few in number, do profit by war; the great mass of business men are its heaviest financial losers.

Those whose memories run back to the Spanish-American War cannot forget the abuse showered on President McKinley because he sought by diplomatic means to avert war. For this he was denounced on the floors of Congress as "the tool of Wall Street," deaf to the cry of suffering in crucified Cuba, and too careless of national honor to be willing to "avenge the Maine," because of the alleged influence upon the administration of great commercial interests which, it was said, opposed war. So long as Congress stood with President McKinley it was overwhelmed with a veritable flood of protests from the people because of the failure to declare war. It was Champ Clark, opposition leader in the House, who declared that the opposition party "dragged the administration into war by the scruff of the neck." This attitude of the minority was due to popular pressure. The popular demand for war seemed almost universal.

Nor can it be said that any of the wars in which this country has engaged were brought about by the pressure of business interests. The financial stake which America had in Europe had something to do with American entry into the war, but it would not have happened if German attacks on American vessels had not aroused popular feeling to a high pitch. Certainly more active than business interests in urging American entry into that war were American idealists and internationalists who believed that the cause of civilization was at stake in the European struggle, and that if the United States should remain out of the war, the defeat of the allies would be followed by attack of the victorious central powers on the United States.

Our Revolutionary War was not precipitated by business interests; most men of property in the colonies were opposed to a war for separation. It did not cause the War of 1812; it was the Jeffersonian party which precipitated it, not the business sections of the country, notably New England, where opposition to the war rose almost to the point of revolt. In these same sections the Mexican war was opposed. Great business interests of the North sought to avert the Civil War; it was a war of principle, almost unanimously supported in both sections.

It is estimated that the ultimate loss to the United States by reason of the World War will be equal to nearly one- third of the total national wealth at the beginning of the war. It created taxation of unprecedented proportions, and business as a whole suffered vastly more than it benefited by reason of the war. Income taxes rose to as high as sixty percent and never will subside to the pre-war level. Scores of thousands of men who thought they had prospered during the war discovered when deflation came that they had suffered heavy losses. No element in the country would be more reluctant to see the country become involved in another war than the representatives of productive enterprise. Indeed, one of the results of the World War has been to make war seem as terrible on the commercial side, as in loss of life and morale.

Ours is a government of public opinion, and we cannot engage in war without the approval of that opinion, as declared through the Congress of the United States, which is not in the habit of flying in the face of that public opinion upon which every member's tenure of office depends. The theory that the American people can be duped into war by prospective profiteers is no compliment to American intelligence or integrity, nor has it historical justification. Such statements are a part of the "bunk" outfit of the demagogues and ultra-pacifists.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Miller-Yoder Nuptials.

On Friday evening, August 19th, the marriage vows were solemnized in the home of the groom at Springs, Pa., between Aaron Miller, son of Rev. and Mrs. Gideon D. Miller, and the charming Miss Alta Yoder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Yoder, of near Grantsville, by Rev. Milton B. Miller. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Claud Yoder. Following the ceremony, an elaborate wedding dinner was served to about 40 guests, relatives and close friends of the young couple. Mrs. Miller was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents. On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Yoder, started on a motor camping trip, expecting to visit the battlefields at Gettysburg, Baltimore, Washington and the caverns of the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia. Mr. Miller is a promising young man, being a member of the firm of Miller Machine Works at Springs. They will reside at Springs.

The following news item appeared in Meyersdale Republican last week and is good news to all residents of this locality: "The old 'Toonerville Trolley' (P. & M. Ry.) ceased operation July 31st, but the former patrons of the rattly old street cars now have a more prompt and comfortable means of transportation.

"The Somerset Bus company. W. L. Morrison, of Somerset, proprietor, last Thursday began operating autobusses between Meyersdale and Salisbury in place of the 'Toonerville Trolley'. Not only to and from Salisbury, but as far southward and westward as Springs at the end of the fine concrete road that Commissioner Bender is credited with having secured for the south end of the county, and which forms a very important link in the highway system of Somerset county. This road is now to be extended a little more than 1.1 miles to the Maryland line, McCabe & Co., having recently been awarded the contract to extend the road from Springs to the Mason & Dixon line, where it is to be met by a spur of about two miles of concrete road from the upper end of Grantsville, Md., so as to give Somerset County another contact with the National Highway. McCabe & Co. are assembling their machinery and men to start work on their new contract, which is to be completed before winter sets in. It is said the State of Maryland will also build its part of the road between Springs and Grantsville this fall yet.

"The extension of the Somerset Bus line to Springs is a big accommodation to the people of that section and also to Niverton, West Salisbury, Salisbury, Boynton, Vim, Keystone Mines, Romania and Shaw Mines, as passengers to and from all of those places are patronizing the bus line.

"Six round trips a day are made to Salisbury, and two trips through to Springs and return. The first car southbound leaves Meyersdale at 6:30 a. m., arriving at Salisbury at 6:50 and at Springs at 7:05, arriving at Meyersdale at 7:45 a. m. At Meyersdale connections are made for Somerset and all other points north of the Morrison bus lines."

The second car for Salisbury leaves Meyersdale at 8:35 a. m.; the third at 11:05 a. m.; the fourth at 2:05 p. m.; fifth at 5:05 p. m. and the sixth at 8:15 p. m. The fifth car also goes to Springs, arriving there at 5:40 and returning to Meyersdale immediately.

Cars leave Salisbury for Meyersdale at 7:20, 9:50, 12:50, 4:00, 5:55 and 8:30.

Stops are made to take on and discharge passengers at the following stations between Meyersdale and Springs: Vim (Shaw Mines road), Boynton, Salisbury, West Salisbury, Folk Cross roads and Otto Brick Plant.

The service is to be extended to Grantsville as soon as the road improvement from Springs to the Pike is completed.

Attended Reunion.

The following named persons from this vicinity attended the Bowser-Kolbfleisch reunion, on Saturday last, which is held annually at the old Kolbfleisch home near the Cove: Sam Bowser, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowser, Lewis Bowser and family, Jonas E. Beachy and family, Irvin Baker and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Beachy and L. H. Diefenbach.

Millers To Meet.

The decendants of John M. Miller, of Selbysport, Isaac Miller, of Addison, and Israel Miller, of Cranesville, will hold a family reunion on August 28th in the Glass Grove in the Cove. All persons decending from these sturdy pioneers are invited to attend.

Visited Caverns.

Gilead Broadwater accompanied his son Hayward and wife,who are spending their vacation here and who reside at Bell, Pa., on a motor trip to Luray and New Market, Va., where they visited the famous caverns, the underground fairyland of the Shenandoah Valley, during the latter part of last week.

Mrs. Nevin Miller is home from the Dr. Wenzel Hospital, Meyersdale, where she was a patient for the removal of tonsils last week.

Mrs. Lloyd Baker and daughter Mary returned to Cumberland on Friday where Miss Mary was a patient in Western Maryland Hospital for removal of tonsils.

Picnics.

The Womans Community club of Accident gave a picnic last Thursday at the school building in Accident, which was voted quite a success by those attending in spite of the unfavorable weather conditions prevailing that day. Those attending from Grantsville were Misses M. C. Dorsey, president of the Grantsville club, Gertrude Hone, Cora Hockman, Christena Winterberg, Mrs. J. H. Dorsey, Mrs. John H. Folk, Mrs. J. Urban Stanton, Mrs. Annie E. Getty, Mrs. C. Lee Beachy, Mrs. James Younkin, Mrs. J. F. Fahey and Mrs. J. A. Bender.

The Lutheran Sunday School held its picnic on Thursday at Old Trails Inn, with about fifty in attendance. The principal features of the day were the basket lunches and games, races and a pulling contest, which proved very popular and amusing.

A picnic was held in the Glass Grove on Sunday which was widely attended by people from Somerset, the Cove, Fort Hill and Grantsville, all of them being friends and acquaintances. They report an attendance of eighty and a most delightful time together.

The picnic held at Jennings by the Lutheran Sunday school on Saturday was fairly well attended in the evening, but the disagreeable weather made the afternoon attendance very poor.

Mrs. Virginia McRoberts, of Washington, D. C., who has been spending her vacation here, the guest of the Casselman Hotel, gave a marshmallow roast for the children of the town on Saturday afternoon in the school grounds, which was attended by about thirty. The refreshments were toasted marshmallows and ice cream. The entertainment was a series of games.

ANARCHY LOSES.

In a fight to a finish contest, lasting seven years, Anarchy fought a losing fight, America finally overcoming her antagonist with a shock punsh.

The decision rendered by the referee was not so well liked by the fans favoring Anarchy and they staged several demonstrations, but fortunately in other countries than our own. If any severe outbreaks had occurred in this country it would have been the worse for them.

Anarchy, in the form of Sacco and Vanzetti, was defeated, and none too soon. If it would have won this decision, it would have been challenging the heavyweight championship in the case—Law and Order—with the odds on its side. But the odds are on the side of Law and Order, and Sacco and Vanzetti died, as they should have died.

The seven years' fight was just long enough for sympathizers to forget that these two men were murderers. They let their better judgment, if they had any, get away with them. But it did no good, for justice had to be carried out. Had it not been, there would ultimately have been the "Reign of Anarchy."

How foolish for one of the men to say just before he died, "Long live anarchy." It will never gain power now in the United States.

DON'T FORGET.

While the past week has been rather slow, with very little occurring worthy of publication, there are four events that are going to take place shortly that are well to keep in mind. In order of their coming they are:

The discussion of orthopedic work at the High School tomorrow night; the Knights of Pythias picnic to be held Labor Day, Monday, September 5; the opening of the public schools of the county on Tuesday, September 6; and the Garrett County Fair, September 20 to 23, inclusive.

It would be entirely useless to go into the details of the importance of these events.

The orthopedic work is for the good of others; the Knights of Pythias picnic is for your own good and pleasure; the opening of the schools, for the benefit of the children, although they do not see it plainly now, and the Garrett County Fair for the good of the entire community.

Of all these events, the most important is the opening of the public schools. Why? Because without the training of the children there would be no orthopedic or philanthropic work of any kind; the K. of P. picnic as an annual event would die of stagnation and the Fair would have nothing to exhibit.

So all are necessary and will be upon one before it is known if he doesn't remind himself of them once in awhile. So just take this as a mere reminder and do not read it for any deep though concealed within.

ONE LOST—TWO GAINED

Getting all "het up" over something that appeared in The Republican, a woman came into the office several weeks ago and angrily stated that she wanted her paper discontinued, which was perfectly all right as that was her privilege. But the same day there were two other people appeared and wanted to subscribe for the paper. The whole business was recalled when the following editorial was seen, and it certainly hits the nail exactly on the head. To say anything further would be saying too much, so here is the article:

We Made A Good Trade

"A gentleman got peeved at something he saw in the Telegraph last week and came in and had his paper discontinued. He didn't refuse it at the post office, which proves he had the courage to come in and tell us he didn't like the article.

"Every day we see things we don't like in papers and even in show-windows. Now, for instance, yesterday we saw a pair of shoes in a window. We didn't like the looks of them and wouldn't wear a pair like them on a bet, but we didn't go into the store and tell the merchant we wouldn't trade with him any more on account of those shoes. Later in the afternoon we passed the same store and saw the merchant taking the shoes out to sell them to a man who thought they were the very stuff. He liked them so well that he shelled out enough filthy lucre so that he might hide his ungainly toes in them and walk out among the people on Sunday.

"But getting back to the man who didn't like the article in the Telegraph. On the same day he stopped his paper, two other men came in and coughed up a dollar and a half each. They had read the same article and liked it so well they decided they wanted the paper for a year. We are as satisfied with the trade of one subscriber who didn't like the paper for two that did, as the man who traded an empty bucket for a turkey.

"We're running the Telegraph. We try to print all the news we can get, and we will continue to run the Telegraph without asking anyone what to print and when to print it. We haven't intimated that we know everything and that our ideas are any better than yours. The only difference is, we talk to approximately 2,500 people each week, where you possibly talk to 50, and we don't get peeved at a farmer when we pass his place and see where he has peas planted where he ought to have watermelons, and we don't get peeved when we pass a show-window and see something we wouldn't eat or wear. We always figure it pleases the farmer or the merchant, and possibly every other person who passes. The gentleman mentioned above hasn't quit reading the Telegraph, mind you. He'll drop around to the barber shop and read the paper from now on, and possibly cuss it, all of which worries us not a whit, as the more people reading the paper the better off our advertisers are. The old sheet's been going the rounds for nearly a hundred years and bids fair to keep going. There's strength in years, especially when applied to a country newspaper—the hardest animal in the world to starve to death."—Henmstead County Telegraph, Washington, Ark.

THE COUNTRY CANNOT AFFORD TO BE BLUFFED BY ANARCHISTS.

The anarchists, the near-anarchists, and those other persons who for various reasons may have wished that the sentence of Vanzetti and Sacco would not be carried out have created a condition in the past three days that would make any change in the announced decisions of the governor and courts of Massachusetts a most dangerous move for the country. No state and no country can afford to be bluffed or throttled by anarchists. We cannot believe, since the decision of Governor Fuller, after an exhaustive investigation of the case, that the two accused men could escape from having the sentence of the court and the law carried out. But if there was any chance for clemency for these men, after the governor's decision, that chance has surely been killed by the defiance of all law and reason in the messages which the anarchistic "defense committee" gave to the country In plainly appealing to their followers and sympathizers to create a reign of terror as a protest against the sate and the law. These massages followed by anarchistic meetings and murderous bombing outrages, in various places, have certainly made any change on the part of the state or its representatives impossible. For the state to weaken in any way, before these anarchistic threats would be to invite a reign of terror every time it becomes necessary for any governmental authority to lawfully restrain any of the radical element. Mercy is a great virtue and tolerance for the opininons of others is a fine principle.

But unwarranted mercy for the merciless and unwarranted tolerance for the intolerant are very dangerous practices. It is the business of the state, the nation and of civilized society, insofar as is humanly possible, to guarantee protection as well as mercy to the unoffending men, women and children who are liable, without warning, to be blown to pieces by members of this anarchistic cult, aided and abetted by radical theorists who think they are wise because they preach a theory that they have been told is new or modern.

It is the business of the state and of sane people to do what they can to guarantee tolerance for the opinion of those who respect the natural rights of human beings as accepted and practiced by the majority of mankind for ages.

There is too much tolerance for the intolerant radicals of Massachusetts or they would not be permitted to give out some of their inflammatory messages.—The Cumberland Evening Times.

LET'S GROW TREES

"Of all the natural resources of the United States, the most vital, according to Mr. Hoover, is land—soil, the stuff from which the future must eat. The loss of land by needless crosions is the greatest extravagance of the age. Man plows a hillside, grows crops of corn, cotton or tobacco, and after a very few crops the field is ruined. In this way the American Nation has already ruined the possible home sites of millions of men.

"The American Magazine, in its June issue, hazards the prediction that the whole science of agriculture will shortly change from the growing of short-lived crops to the growing of trees which will provide long-lived crops. Dr. J. Russell Smith, of Columbia University, the greatest authority on economic geography, explained the idea in a revolutionary interview.

" 'It is merely an accident of history,' he says, 'that agriculture started with annual plants—grasses, wheat, rice and corn—instead of with trees—dates, olive, acorn and others. People can live just as well on acorns and walnuts and similar foods, as on the seeds of wild grasses. We need now a whole series of new croptrecs, making food for men and his domestic animals, and at the same time holding and conserving the precious soils with their roots.'

"The United States is rich in native trees of great promise waiting to be improved. The acorn can be made to rival corn as pig feed and cow feed. The honey-locust bean may rival wheat. The persimmon and avocado are among the most nutritious fruits known.

"A million dollars invested during the next twenty years in constructive research and experiments on tree-crop agriculture would probably revolutionize the science of farming. Here is a remarkable opportunity for some person to create a world-famous institution and render inestimable service to mankind." —Centerville Record.

To the Editor of The Republican:

I notice that D. S. M., in his last letter does not reply to my question as to which statements "were misleading or untrue," although he warns the farmers in the conclusion of his first letter, that if we make any more statements, they will also be untrue.

We have been told that there is land enough in this vicinity to support a great many more cows.

There is land enough, but much of it is covered with ferns and brush, which would not support a cow—but might a goat.

If the farmers are able to keep more cows, they should have a surplus of hay or fodder, and pasture, but what do we see?

Every spring we see cows turned out before the pastures are settled and before the grass has grown sufficiently to maintain itself; then the cows tramp the wet ground, and the pasture cannot yield what it should; and when it gets short the cows are turned on the meadows as soon as they are mown, which reduces their yield the next year. I think the farmers would not do this if they had plenty of hay and fodder, and if they do not have more hay or fodder than they now use how can they profitably keep more cows?

It is much more profitable to feed a few cows well than to feed a great number scantily.

There are few farmers who have hay to sell, and inquiries made at the railroad station show that there was but one-third the amount of hay shipped from Oakland last year than was shipped five or six years ago.

I agree with D. S. M., "Production can be increased." It will be increased whether there are two creameries here or only one, but this lies with the farmers. We are willing to take all the milk and cream produced in this near vicinity, and pay a much better price than the farmer obtains by making butter or cottage cheese.

In a letter received from the General Manager at Parkersburg he writes in reply to my question:

"If the farmers will put their barns in suitable condition, and handle the milk in a manner satisfactory to the Board of Health of Baltimore or Philadelphia we are willing to handle it for that purpose and pay them as much as they could obtain by selling through another company.

"We are buying two grades of milk here in Parkersburg: one is produced under our regulations to supply our retail bottle trade in the city, for which we pay a higher price, and the balance we condense and pay therefore the same price we pay at Oakland."

D. S. M. writes—"The idea of getting another creamery here is to increase production." Would it?

If the Pennsylvania Railroad company should run a branch into Oakland would that increase the freight?

The American Creamery company owned this plant for two years, without making any profit from it. Would the overhead be less with two creameries than with one?

Is not the trend of business today to consolidate?

Look at the steel mills; look at the bank mergers; look at the consolidations of ice cream plants, and dairy plants.

How then is it that D. S. M. sees greater profits in smaller units, when our greatest business men are planning for larger?

This is such a small plant, that the idea of dividing this section and having two plants seems unbusiness like.

Who is D. S. M.? A farmer? I think not. A resident of Oakland? I think not, nor a resident of Garrett county.

If not, is he not jumping at conclusions, which are not warranted by facts?

The writer understands the farmer's problems from practical experience, and is willing at all times to advance their interests (and at the same time his employers). If they have a "kick coming" they may be sure of a respectful hearing at any time.

Do we need another creamery?

Do we need another bakery, or garage, or grocery?

Are there not already enough here to supply our wants?

Since writing the above, I have received The Republican, and read your article on the Moorfield creamery.

I notice you write that on their best day they received 2100 gallons of milk. I find by looking over our records that on our best day this year we received 1609 gallons, although we have tried to obtain all we could, and have several patrons who only have one or two cows and bring in very little daily, but it is all accepted.

You write that the Moorfield creamery paid out $11,000 monthly. I find, by looking at our records, that we paid the farmers last month $11,-149, and for the month of June $11,-946.03.

Now you have some figures for comparison, which speak for themselves. Respectfully,

GEO. D. SPRAGUE,
Mgr. Oakland Creamery.

AT CAMP MINNIETOSKA

Rotarians and Friends Have an Outing and are Entertained

Before an audience of perhaps a hundred persons composed of Rotarians Rotoryanns and people who had gathered in from the countryside and from Oakland, the girls at Camp Minnieoska, located on the McComas farm several miles west of Oakland, presented a most delightful pageant depicting the early life of Hiawatha.

The setting for the pageant, in the natural woodland surrounding the camp, was all that could be desired which added beauty and lent charm to the portrayal of the legend as presented by the girls taking part in the piece. The actors were costumed as near as could be in Indian dress and they showed natural talent as well as excellent training in their work.

Following the pageant, the crowd, which had by that time been considerably augmented by a number of late arrivals, repaired to Lake Koshare, nearby, where feats in life saving, diving and swimming were performed by the girls for the edification of the camp's guests. Some of the feats were really amazing when it is known that until only a few weeks ago the great majority of those taking part in the sports were not able to swim at all. One of those who has had previous experience is the proud possessor of a Carnegie medal for life saving.

Many of those who went to the camp remained until after nine o'clock in order that they could enjoy the camp fire and participate in the singing following the evening dinner.

Next Sunday, upon invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Hansen and Miss Hyde, the camp managers, the place will be open to the public. People who desire to avail themselves of the opportunity of spending the day there are invited to take their baskets with sufficient food for luncheon and dinner and to remain for the camp fire at night. The Crellin Band will be in attendance and furnish delightful music during the afternoon and evening. A program similar to the one of last Sunday afternoon will be put on by the Camp Minnietoska girls.

Mr. Charles Ream, of Crellin, chairman of the boys' committee of the local Rotary Club, is sponsoring the affair on Sunday and has invited a troop of Boy Scouts, numbering sixty, now encamped on Deep Creek Lake at McHenry, to be present and enjoy the day.

This afternoon Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell will be hostess to the camp girls and the camp officers at her residence on Second street.

Vetch Good Cover Crop For Use In Maryland

Vetch, a winter legume, is a desirable cover well adapted to many sections of Maryland and when planted in combination with some other winter growing plant, such as rye or wheat, will provide good pasture in early spring or hay if cut later in the season, says F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in agronomy for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

Vetch is seldom planted alone because of the fact that its stems are too weak to support the plant. If the crop is intended merely as a winter cover crop to be turned under in the spring, the seed is usually mixed with rye at the rate of one peck of vetch to one bushel or more of rye to the acre. Sometimes as much as a half bushel of vetch per acre is sown, but this is seldom practicable unless the seed is unusually cheap.

If the crop is intended to be cut for hay, wheat is usually seeded with the vetch because of the fact that these two crops mature more nearly at the same time. Vetch in combination either with rye or wheat may be pastured in the early spring. If the field is fenced, livestock may thus be kept off the permanent pasture until a good spring growth of grass is secured.

Seeding of vetch should be done in August or early September. Stands are sometimes obtained, when weather conditions are favorable, by sowing in the corn at the last cultivation. Good results may be expected if the crop is planted after early potatoes, soybeans or hay or other crops that are removed before early September.

Birthday Anniversary Held

A basket dinner and birthday was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Friend, near Loch Lynn, on Sunday, August 14, in honor of Joseph E. Kitzmiller's 50th anniversary. Those present were:

Oakland Mothers Being Organized.

Miss Amy L. Ridgely, field manager and organizer of the Child Conservation League of America, is organizing the mothers of Oakland into a local circle for the study and betterment of child life.

During the past ten years this league has been extended over many states and its work has ramified into many ways of usefulness unthought of by its organizers. The original purpose was to furnish the mother with helps and training, looking toward the moral development of the child, but as progress was made, many things of practical benefit to community life were added by local circles. The league now endeavors to furnish help not only in the moral training of children, but devotes attention to vocational training, indoor and outdoor games and pastimes, civics, social betterment, health and everything that looks toward a high citizenship.

Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, formerly of Northwestern University Medical School, Chicago, Ill., is the national president. The organization meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Guy Hinebaugh, August 22. An efficient corps of officers was elected: Mrs. Ralph Weber, president, Mrs. James Treacy, vice-president, Mrs. Delbert Davis, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Naylor, treasurer. An interesting program has been arranged for the next meeting, which will be at the home of the president, Mrs. Ralph Weber, on September 6, at 8 o'clock.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

In looking over my column in last week's Republican, I was terribly surprised to find that "my writs will be in first class shape." After the paint-wielding job of last week, one could either take "writs" to mean wits or wrists, and I hope nobody thought that I was taking credit for the first one.

And, by the way, when letters are addressed to me, don't write "Scopp" as was erroneously reported in this same column last week.

Bobbie Writes Letter

Robert T. Hoffman, popular young postman of Oakland, finding his duties so numerous that he did not have time to solve the mystery of last week, has written a letter to Scoop.

Dear Scoop—I can't make that d--n joke of yours out. Put the answer in next week's column as I couldn't scrape up two cents to have it sent to me. Curiously yours,

Bobbie.

Don't let your curiosity get the best of you.

EXTRAVAGANCE IS THE CAUSE OF HIGH TAXES

Army of Officials Riding Around at Expense of the Public.

Upon request of Senator A. D. Naylor the following article from The Maryland is reproduced in The Republican:

(From The Marylander)

There is a very evident impression and one that is growing in strength that there must be a new deal in the political affairs in both parties prior to the next State and City election and that the time is about to come when those who have the interests of the public at heart, regardless of partisan politics, will be obliged to assert themselves in order to stem the rising tide of public extravagance and call a halt on the reckless expenditure of money for all sorts of things, which are unnecessary for the well-being of the people.

On all sides, in county, city and state, at the present rate, the taxes levied, instead of being reduced will mount up, and with additional loans and bond issues year after year, the levies will reach almost confiscatory amounts and any great increase in the assessments will render it practically impossible for people of moderate incomes to own their own homes or to own property, to rent at a profit. Even now, it is less expensive to rent residence property than it is to own it in Baltimore City and in the larger towns, and rents have already reached the highest point which people of moderate means can afford to pay, and with assessments on the increase, and the consequent increase in taxes, property owners are in a quandary as to what they shall do. Taxes, insurance and repairs are now eating up a large share of all incomes from residence property, and there is apparently no possibility of any reduction in the amounts required.

And there is no probability that the extravagance in the public expenditures will become any less in the near future. As the late Governor Hamilton used to say, in his contests with the politicians, "the tax-payers are continuing to build palaces for the tax-eaters to live in." What would he say now, were he living, and would see not only the vast palaces they build, the quadrupling of salaries, the vast increase in the army of office holders, and others feeding at the public crib, but greatest of all extravagances if he were to see this vast army of office holders riding to and from their offices, going around, when on duty and off duty, in automobiles, hundreds of automobiles, owned, furnished and maintained by the State, city and county governments. No official today of even second rate authority and importance is without an automobile furnished and maintained at the public expense. All the officials of the higher grades have large, expensive cars, which they and their families use as their own, and for which the repairs, renewals and gasoline are paid out of the public treasury. The subordinate health inspectors, both men and women, cannot go around on their tours in the usual public conveyances—they all have State owned and maintained automobiles. School attendance officers, both men and women, in the city, the county and the towns ride around in automobiles (and an arrogant lot they are), and when one machine gets worn out or becomes old, a new one is promptly furnished. And recently it is reported that one of the departments of the State government purchased at one time for the use of his force twenty-four Ford cars—and there are literally hundreds of them is use by officials of all grades, from one end of the state to the other. And at times the congestion of city-owned cars parked at the City Hall is so great that it is impossible for any ordinary private citizen, in his humble car, to get within a block of the municipal palace where the great chiefs of the army of tax-eaters hold sway, surrounded by their obedient satellites. And even the satellites, when they go on errands, have their city-owned and maintained Fords in which they are enabled to take their families out to visit their country relatives and their friends on Sunday—or if they have no families they go joy riding at the public expense, not only on the Holy Sabbath day, but along the tree lined roads of the suburbs after the shades of night have clothed the earth in darkness.

In the olden days, not so long ago as time flies, city officials either walked or rode on the street cars when on duty, at their own expense. The only official who ever had a conveyance was the late Mayor Latrobe, whose old gray mare (it was his own, and was not maintained at puhlic expense) was famous in song. He used an old-fashioned buggy, and Robert, his colored driver, would take him down to the City Hall in the morning. Robert was not a feeder at the public crib and the Mayor worked early and late for $5,000 a year—the highest salary paid in the City Hall was $8,000 to the tax collector, and other salaries were in proportion—and all walked, while attending to their duties, or else rode on the street cars at their own expense, and, even then, public extravagance was denounced.

But the extravagance in those days was rigid economy compared with the reckless riot of expenditures of today, and the only wonder is that taxes are not higher than they are when it is considered what is going on in city, county and state governments without let or hindrance.

But the people, if they ever choose to assert themselves, can have the sort of government they want. If they want to put an end to this political joy riding on the part of their officials, from the highest to the lowest, they have it in their power to do so.

DEWITT CLINTON ENGINE TO BE IN B. & O. PAGEANT

First Iron Horse In New York State in Exhibition.

Venerable and dignified with the pride of a retired veteran who has seen long years of service, the famous DeWitt Clinton locomotive, the first iron horse to puff its way in the State of New York, has arrived in Baltimore and is patiently awaiting the day when it will take a prominent place in the Centenary Exhibition and Pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to be held at Halethorpe, Baltimore, September 24 to October 8th.

The old engine, with its curious train of antique-looking carriages, is reposing in temporary obscurity at Baltimore awaiting the curtain call.

The historic locomotive was sent to Baltimore by the courtesy of the New York Central Lines to take part in an elaborate pageant, a major feature of the coming railroad exposition, which will show in detail the chief phases in the development of inland transportation in this country, from the erude slow vehicles used by the American Indians to the swift efficient steel giants of the modern railroad.

The DeWitt Clinton train was one of the first to carry passengers in the New World—the third locomotive built in the United States for actual service.

It was in 1831, at a time when the iron horse was a gawky, puffing preposterous affair, that this old engine successfully wheezed its way over the seventeen miles between Schenectady and Albany, amazing those who witnessed this new spectacular triumph of man's ingenuity. It was the central feature in the centennial exposition of the New York Centrall Railroad last year.

The old-timer is but a short step removed from the once-popular post coach which used to rattle over the national turnpike on fixed schedules. It was planned by John B. Jervis,chief engineer of the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad, and was built by Dave Matthew, who was also its first engineer.

The DeWitt Clinton, with its long up-turned nose of a smoke-stack sticking high in the air, large queer looking wheels, and quaint set of remodeled stage coach carriages, forms a striking contrast when compared with a modern locomotive and train. Its maximum speed is fifteen miles an hour, which in its day was considered breathtaking. Its weight is 12,000 pounds, or less than the weight of one pair of wheels of the largest present-day type of engine. Its stumpy, old-fashioned, ungainly appearance sets off in a vivid way the long graceful lines that spell speed and power in the locomotive of today.

If preliminary tests are successful this time-honored locomotive will run under its own steam in the pageant at Baltimore next month.

Exhibit To Be Open To Public

The Centenary Exhibition and Pageant will be a public affair, to which everybody is cordially invited. There will be no admission charge of any kind or special invitation required.

The President, Director and officers of the Company extend a hearty general invitation to everyone.

The exposition will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until six o'clock in the evening. The Pageant will be held in the afternoon. There will be a grandstand for viewing this feature, seating twelve thousand, in addition to ample standing room on the lawn nearby the route of the Pageant.

Shaffer Reunion

The descendants of John and Catherine Shaffer, deceased, will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Shaffer, of Horse Shoe Run, West Va., on Sunday, September 4. All relatives and friends of the family are cordially invited to attend.

Stephen Family Reunion.

A reunion of the Stephen family of Garrett county was held at the home at New Germany on Sunday, August 21, where three generations were well represented and also other numerous friends and relatives were present. A large table was erected in the orchard where a bountiful dinner was served. After dinner the guests were entertained for some time by Mr. David D. Broadwater, brother of the elder Mrs. Stephen, with some lengthy recitations and speeches, including Washington's last message to Congress. This was followed by an interesting address by Mr. Melvin Durst, a young ministerial student.

August 20, 1927.

Mr. John L. Fitzwater,
School Attendance Officer,
Court House, Oakland, Maryland.

Dear Sir:—

After reading in the County papers of last week an article entitled 'Concerning our Public Schools," I have a few questions to ask.

1. I am the father of five children. My oldest boy Henry is 16 years and 1 month old. He has not completed the elementary grades and therefore does not have a Certificate of Graduation. Must he attend school this coming school year?

2. My next child Mary is 15 years and 2 months old and has her Certificate where she has completed the elementary grades. Is it necessary that she attend school?

3. Robert is 13 years and 4 months old and has also a Certificate where he has completed the elementary grades last spring. Is he required to attend school?

4. Sarah will be ten years old her next birthday and her mother needs her help about the house. Must she start to school September 6th, or can we keep her home for a month or two to help with the work?

5. My youngest child, Calvin, will be six years old the 28th of this month. I would like to start him to school on September 6th, but do not like to have him vaccinated now. Can I send him to school until he is seven years old before having him vaccinated?

6. If two of my children should get the measles, whooping cough or mumps after school starts, must I send my older children to school while these two children have the measles, whooping cough or mumps or keep them at home?

I might add that the physical condition of all my children mentioned above at this time is such that do not make it necessary for them to be absent from school.

Awaiting your reply, I am,

Very truly yours,
H. SAMUEL STONE.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Oakland, Maryland, August 23, 1927.

Mr. H. Samuel Stone,
Kitzmiller, Maryland.
Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your letter dated August 20th, asking for certain information in regard to school attendance, etc., of your children.

In reply thereto, I desire to give the following information concerning the questions you have asked.

1. Since your son Henry has not completed the elementary grades, he is required to attend school at least 100 days as nearly consecutive as possible, beginning not later than November 1, 1927. If he is not regularly and lawfully employed he is required to attend school every day the school is in session, beginning September 6, 1927.

2. According to the School Attendance Law, your daughter Mary is excused from attending school since she is 15 years of age and has a Certificate showing that she has completed the elementary grades.

3. Robert is required to attend school at least 100 days as nearly consecutive as possible beginning not later than November 1, and if not regularly and lawfully employed he is required to attend school every day the school is in session beginning September 6, 1927, even if he has completed the elementary grades. I suggest that you have this child attend high school, if possible, since he holds a Certificate of Graduation.

4. The School Attendance Law requires that Sarah attend school beginning September 6, and attend every day the school is in session. She should not under any condition be kept home to work.

5. In regard to your son Calvin entering school without being vaccinated, the State law says:

"Every child, before being admitted to any public school shall produce a certificate from a regular physician that he has been properly vaccinated."

Therefore, he must be vaccinated.

6. In case any of your children develops a disease such as measles, whooping cough or mumps after they start to school, all other children in your family must stay at home if they have not had the disease; if they have had the disease they may continue their school work.

Trusting I have given you the necessary information and if not, will you write me further, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
JOHN L. FITZWATER,

RESTRICTIONS ON DEEP CREEK LAKE EXPLAINED

Commissioner Earle Expresses Willingness of His Department to Cooperate With Citizens

Before the representative business men and sportsmen of Oakland, Conservation Commissioner Swepson Earle expressed the willingness of his department to give them full cooperation in regulating the sports, pleasures and development of Deep Creek lake, at a meeting held Friday evening in the Town hall.

The special meeting was called by W. R. Browning, president of the Garrett County Game and Fish Protective association, in order that Mr. Earle could inform the people of Garrett county why they have been restricted from wild fowl shooting in the past and why motor boats have not been allowed.

Explains Restrictions

Mr. Earle pointed out that the department was not in a position to give permission last year to any person to eross the strip of land around the lake, which is controlled by the Eastern Land Corporation, but thru the aid of Senator A. D. Naylor and Delegate Arthur H. Green, of Garrett county, an agreement was reached with Jesse N. Bower, of Baltimore, counsel for the corporation, and a suitable bill drawn which is the law under which the department now operates.

The length of the lake, it was pointed out by William R. Offutt, chairman of the meeting, makes it necessary for power boats to be used in the development of the 65 miles of shore line which surrounds the lake. Mr. Earle said that the reason power boats have not been permitted was due to oil pollution and its effect on fish life. Nevertheless, it was thought that this may be overcome, as he saw the advantage to be gained by better transportation over the lake by means of row and sail boats.

Senator Naylor informed the meeting that the Conservation department had been most helpful in the passage of the Deep Creek Lake bill and that it was going to do much for Garrett county by bringing in settlers and aiding in the development of the county, especially in the vicinty of the lake.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Earle was assured of the fullest cooperation by Garrett county citizens. The department has placed several hundred thousand rainbow and brook trout in the lake.

Get Large Fish

A special license permitted anglers to fish there from June 1 and a number of out of county residents and county residents have been successful in landing large fish. Several Inns have been erected on the banks of the lake and a number of row and sail boats have been built for use upon its waters. Some of these have been built on the Eastern Shore and transported over the Allegheny Mountains to Garrett county.

Small Fire Saturday Evening

Practically no damage resulted from a fire of undetermined origin at the home of David Collins, just west of town, on Saturday evening about 6:15 o'clock. The Oakland Fire Department responded to the call but their help was unnecessary as the fire had been extinguished prior to the arrival of the equipment.

Passion Play Pictured

Pictures of the play, entitled "The Passion Play," were presented to members of the Red House Lutheran church on Tuesday evening, August 30, by Rev. E. R. Hauser, of Clearfield, Pa. Mrs. Hauser sang the song "Tell Mother I'll Be There" while pictures portraying the sentiment of the song were thrown on the screen. A capacity audience was present to get a clear conception of the passion of our Lord. Reverend and Mrs. Hauser were formerly members of Red House church.

To Enter Universities.

Recent graduates of Garrett county high schools who are expecting to continue their studies in higher institutions are: James A. Lee, McClelland Dixon, Carl McIntire and Irene Smouse, all of Oakland High, who will enroll in the University of Maryland at College Park; Katherine Speicher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Speicher, of Accident, who will matriculate at Western Maryland college at Westminster; and Mitchell Franklin, of Oakland, who will enroll in Randolph-Macon academy, at Front Royal, Virginia.

ARE THEY READY TO ENTER SCHOOL ON TUESDAY?

Have the Children Been Vaccinated and Otherwise Prepared?

Jack and Elizabeth will start to school in a few days and their families, like those of thousands of other prospective first-graders, are in the midst of preparations for the event, getting suits, dresses, and the rest of the little outfits ready. A reminder, from Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, of even more necessary preparations that should be made for these five and six year olds, follows:

"If you are going on an important journey," he said, "you would take your car to the nearest garage and have it put in the best possible order. Your small son or daughter is going to start on the road to the three R's this Fall. That road, as you will recall, is full of ups and downs, but the grades can be made most easily and comfortably by the child who has been safeguarded by the right sort of attention to his physical machinery.

"Be as careful of your boy or girl as you would of your car. It you have not already done it, take him or her to your doctor for a thorough going over. Pay especial attention to the weight, whether over or under par; to the posture; have the eyes tested for vision, the ears for hearing and the throat and teeth carefully examined. Attention to these essentials now may prevent wreckage along the road later on. And don't forget that no child can be enrolled in our Maryland schools who has not been vaccinated against smallpox."

What the Examinations Disclosed.

A report from the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, of the child health conferences held throughout the State, under the auspices of the Bureau, during the six months ending June 30, shows that 3609 children under seven years old were brought to these conferences for a complete physical examination. One out of every three—a total of 1065—was free from any menacing handicap. Of the rest, 569, or one out of every six was underweight and therefore under par. "Faulty posture" was entered against 73; "heart disease" threatened 46. One out of every four—a total of 998—had decayed teeth or teeth otherwise in need of dental care. Almost as many—902—had questionable looking throats with enlarged or infected tonsils; 136 were mouth breathers, 360 had adenoids; 60 responded poorly to the eye tests and 48 had defective hearing. Every child in need of follow-up care was referred to the family doctor.

MAN IS DISCOVERED DEAD IN OAKLAND HOTEL ROOM

T. A. Hughes Found Lying in Bathroom of Hotel Early Monday Morning

Whether the body of T. A. Hughes, aged about 37 years, who was found dead Monday morning in the bathroom of the Oakland Hotel, corner of Third and Oak streets, would be interred in Oakland or in southern Tennessee, was still a question at noon today. Mrs. Hughes, wife of the deceased, was expected to arrive some time today from her home near Copper Hill, Tennessee and complete arrangements for burial will be made when she arrives.

The body of Mr. Hughes, who was said to have worked for the carnival that showed here for a week recently, was discovered early Monday morning. He had been attended to the previous evening by local physicians and it is thought that death was due to either apoplexy or heart trouble.

The authorities were notified of the death, but the body was not removed until 5 o'clock Monday evening. It was then taken to the D. E. Bolden Undertaking establishment where it was prepared for burial. Telegrams sent to Blue Ridge, Georgia, and Copper Hill, Tennessee, got in touch with the man's wife, who is expected sometime today.

Personal possessions of the deceased amounted to practically nothing, and officers stated there had been no signs of foul play.

COUNTY ORTHOPEDIC CLUB ORGANIZED ON FRIDAY

Garrett is First of Counties in State to Form a Society—Officers Elected

Before a good sized audience, consisting of both summer and resident people, Miss Mary E. Church, head of the Orthopedic department, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and recently selected as secretary of the Children's Orthopedic Society of the State of Maryland, spoke on the needs of the crippled children and how they may be met and the interest which all could have in the matter, last Friday night in the auditorium of the Oakland High school.

Dr. Edwin Weinberg, of Johns Hopkins Hospital staff, also showed pictures and explained how cures were accomplished for crippled children. Rev. C. A. Shilke, of St. Mark's Lutheran church, was chairman of the meeting.

First County Organized

The meeting last Friday evening saw the first formation of county orthopedic society in any county in the State, and the officers elected were: Dr. W. E. Gattens, president, Miss Thekla Fundenberg, secretary, W. W. Dawson and George Browning. This committee is to serve throughout the remainder of the year.

Another committee representing the organizations of the town was also appointed. Its members are W. W. Dawson, Masons; H. A. Loraditeh, Knights of Columbus; Dr. H. W. McComas, Rotary; Paul Naylor, Knights of Pythias; Mrs. Milton Sincell, Civic Club; George Browning, County Commissioners; J. L. McGlone, county agent; Miss Rhesa King and Yolanda Clawson, health nurses; Mrs. Arthur Townshend, Pyhian Sisters, and Mrs. Harold Harned, Eastern Star.

Miss Church's Address

The address of Miss Church centered around the needs of the cripples and what could be done about it. Following are some of the more important parts: "People almost invariably say that there are no cripples in their vicinity but experience has taught us that such an observation is carelessly made. Cripples are found everywhere and they need special attention.

"The needs of cripples are particularly the same everywhere although this does not mean that they are to be met in exactly the same way in every locality. The need is probably first professional. There must be orthopedic specialists, hospitals, facilities for care, vocational guidance, etc. In the second place there is a great economic need. The cost of care, relief, education and replacement must be made available to all. This need may be emphasized by philanthropic agencies, but primarily must be met as a state responsibility.

"There is also a humanitarian need. No one can estimate the good which has been done in this respect by say groups, such as Rotary, Kiwanis, Women's clubs and by fraternal organizations. They are bringing this concealed problem out into public view."

In answer to the question, "What is to be done?" Miss Church pointed out that the most effective solution of the problem lay in a coordinated effort on the part of those representing the interested professions, lay organizations and the state, and it was for this reason that such an organization was formed Friday night.

Long Misunderstood

In conclusion Miss Church told that until recently the problem of crippled children had long been misunderstood and therefore, woefully Ignored and badly handled, but that now it was looked upon as a soluble problem, and that more has been done toward the solution of the problem in the last ten or twenty years than in all previous history. Definite plans are now being laid to hasten the development of the solution by organizing such societies to carry on the work as was formed last Friday night.

Sessions Started This Morning in Oakland High School—More Than 200 are Present

The two-day's teachers' meeting of all the instructors in the Garrett county public schools opened this morning in the Oakland High school building, with an enrollment of over 200 according to Prof. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent. The main topic for the institute will be to encourage the purpose of Good Fellowship with the idea that it shall prevail throughout the schools of the county during the coming year, Mr. Rathbun said.

The mornings are being devoted to general administrative features conducted by the county superintendent; to the improvement of the attendance of pupils at school conducted by John L. Fitzwater, school attendance officer; and to furthering the teaching of music throughout all schools of the county, conducted by Thomas L. Gibson, state supervisor of music.

The afternoons are being devoted to round table discussions conducted by the four supervising and helping teachers with the individual teachers of their supervising unit. The institute will begin at 9 o'clock and continue until about 3:30 in the afternoon, with plenty of time at noon in which to eat, it was stated.

At Camp Minnietoska.

At Camp Minnietoska, six miles west of Oakland, on Snaggy Mountain, a large crowd of people from town and the surrounding country was present upon invitation of the mangers of the place, Mr. and Mrs. Hansen, Miss Hyde and Miss Church. The Crellin Boys Band, under the able leadership of Director Mickey, gave concerts during the afternoon and in the evening. It is estimated that more than three hundred persons were present and enjoyed the day. The program rendered by the young people in the camp included swimming exhibitions and later in the evening they presented the pageant "Hiawatha" to an admiring group who remained until evening. The camp fire at nine o'clock was also an enjoyable affair. Many of those spending the day there took with them their lunches. The managers, instructors and children at the camp were guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. McComas at a five o'clock picnic dinner. The camp closed today.

Cement Work Being Repaired at The Garrett County Court House.

Eight thousand dollars was appropriated for the repair of the cement work and other necessary repairs and alterations at the county temple of justice. About one-half of the sum appropriated will be used at this time.

FLOYD BITTINGER HELD FOR GRAND JURY ACTION

Produces $900 Bond and Is Released at Hearing

Floyd Bittinger, 35, who was taken into custody Tuesday morning, August 23, after having eluded the local authorities for the past two years, was given a hearing before Justice E. I. West last Thursday. He was held for action of the Grand Jury at the December term, and was released under $900 bond, $400 under the charge of forgery, and $500 under the charge of bootlegging.

Bittinger, according to the officers, has been an elusive article, and it was not until Tuesday a week ago that they were able to apprehend him. He was arrested at his home located somewhere east of Meadow Mountain in the vicinity of Bond, early in the morning before he had arisen from his night's sleep, and brought to the County jail at Oakland where he was held until the hearing.

The forgery charge grew out of a remitted check in payment or his son's fine, which was alleged to have been made out by Harvey Broadwater for the sum of $264.35. The son, Alfred Bittinger, was convicted at the last term of the Circuit court for bootlegging.

Helbig's Grove Satisfactory

Helbig's Grove has been the seat of the Labor Day picnics for eight years and has always been found to be satisfactory. This year, in order that bigger crowds may be taken care of, extra parking space will be provided next to the picnic grounds free of charge. Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, under the management of Scoutmaster Scott Shirer, will direct the traffic and take care of the parking lots. People with cars are requested to be guided by the orders of these voluntary workers.

The increasing of good roads connections from many parts of West Virginia and surrounding territory leads to the prediction that the Eighth Annual Labor Day Picnic will be he biggest attended picnic ever held by the Knights of Pythias. "Bill" Droege has had charge of the affair this year.

DAIRY MEETING FRIDAY COMPLETES FINAL PLANS

Everything Is In Readiness for Banquet of Farmers and Business Men Wednesday Night

Final arrangements for the dairy banquet, which will be held on Wednesday, September 7, at the Deer Park Hotel in the interest of having another milk shipping station locate in Oakland, were completed at a meeting of the dairy committee held in the office of County Agent J. L. McGlone last Friday evening.

Thomas A. Gonder, chairman of the Oakland Business Men's Association, was also present at this meeting and assured the committee that it would have the full cooperation of the business men both in putting over the dinner and assisting in the new project.

John P. Dugan, general passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, who is interested in the matter, was also present.

A committee composed of R. D. Houck and Mr. McGlone was appointed for the purpose of soliciting for a contingent fund.

It was announced at the meeting that more than 200 farmers and their wives were expected to be present at the banquet, and this number, coupled with the business men who will attend, will bring the total to approximately 235 or 250. The dining room at the hotel will be reserved especially for the dairy dinner, and there will be no other guests in the room at the time, it was stated.

Visit Moorefield Creamery.

Within the past few days another group of people interested in the dairy question, made a visit to the Moorefield creamery and found that their interest was no less than was evident after the visit of a few weeks ago. The party was accompanied on their inspection by L. R. Grover, manager of the plant, and also by the county agent located at Moorefield. They visited one of the largest farms in that section given over to dairying and saw the number of improvements that would have to be made to fit the local farms for dairying conditions as required by the promoters and the company interested in the establishment of a like enterprise in Garrett county.

Those in the group visiting Moorefield included Paul Friend, Benj. H. Friend, E. R. R. Ice Liller, Albert Smouse, O. C. Bittinger, H. J. Rinehardt, Harry Porter, T. C. Bittinger, Sam Beachy, Noah Beachy, Will Sanders, C. L. Wilkins, Mrs. Nellie Bower, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lee and County Agent McGlone.

Estimates Being Made.

Roy E. Carpenter, agricultural engineer from the University of Maryland, and C. E. Wise, specialist of the Portland Cement Company, have been calling upon a number of the farmers of Garrett county during the past week or two and have been making estimates of the probable cost of improving the present barns to the extent that the new company would require, and it was stated that the cost would be very low and the number of things necessary to be changed very few. Several of the farmers have already contracted for the improvements, according to Mr. McGlone.

Mr. McGlone and others have been holding meetings at certain points in the county during the first part of the present week and have arranged to be present at others yet to be held. They are interesting the farmers in the project and in the banquet to be given at the Deer Park Hotel on Wednesday.

"We will know for a certainty after this dinner whether or not there will be another milk shipping station established here," Mr. McGlone said. "It can be done if the farmers and business men are willing," he said.

Examinations for Motor License to be Held Every Monday Morning

Examinations for motor licenses will be held at the Court house by the Commission of Motor Vehicles of Maryland every week instead of every two weeks as formerly. These examinations will be held from 8 until 12 o'clock each Monday morning.

Foreign Visitors At The State Department Of Health

Recent visitors at the State Department of Health have included two Hungarian health officers and one from Japan—Dr. Francis Hofer, Dr. Charles Schubert and Dr. Kyoge Kuroda. Dr. Hofer is district health officer of a section containing thirty-five villages, with duties corresponding to those of the Deputy State Health Officers in Maryland, and his interest lies especially in rural health work and in public health administration. Dr. Schubert is particularly interested in child hygiene, in child health conferences, medical examinations of school children and in all activities relating to the care of mothers and children. Dr. Kuroda is medical officer of health at Tokio and during his visit to this country has made a special study of organized health activities.

The three visitors were much impressed by the emphasis laid in public health work in this country, on preventing disease, on keeping people well, on protecting them against sickness and ill health, and by the measures that are used for the control of the diseases that spread easily from person to person, such as typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria and other communicable diseases. Dr. Hofer and Dr. Schubert are studying American methods at Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Public Health Nursing Activities

Mrs. John Paul Troy, Advisory Nurse of the State Department of Health, reports the appointment of Miss Yolanda Clawson as public health nurse in Garrett county. Miss Clawson will assist Miss Rhesa King and will have her headquarters at Kitzmiller.

Every county in Maryland is now supplied with one or more public health nurses. Allegany county leads with six nurses; Baltimore county has four; Anne Arundel, Carroll, Frederick, Montgomery and Washington counties each have three nurses; Calvert, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Kent, Prince George, Talbot and Wicomico counties each have two nurses and each of the rest of the counties has one nurse.

Three colored nurses are now doing public health work in the counties, one in Frederick, one in Kent and the third in Calvert county. In each section there activities are directed by the Deputy State Health Officer and their activities are limited to work among colored people.

Lesson for September 4

SOLOMON'S WISE CHOICE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 3:4-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Happy is the man who findeth wisdom and the man that getteth understanding.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Solomon's Wise Choice.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Young Man's Wise Choice.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Best Things in Life.

Following the death of David, Solomon was anointed king (I Kings 1:5-40). David had failed to show the people who should be king after him (v. 20). Though an old man, he is stirred into action by the combined appeals of Bathsheba and Nathan. He immediately sent for the faithful three—Zadok, Nathan and Benlah, and commanded them to anoint Solomon king

I. God's Gracious Offer (vv. 4, 5).

Solomon made a lavish sacrifice to the Lord. The magnitude of the offering shows that he had strong impulses toward God and that he was unwilling to hold anything back from God. Following the sacrifice, the Lord made to him this gracious offer. This offer was not on the basis that the Lord cared for the number of animals, but the attitude of the man's heart toward him. "Ask what I shall give thee," placed very wide possibilities before the king. God, as it were, signed blank checks and turned them over to Solomon to fill in any amount that his heart desired. This was not a reckless act on the part of God, for He foreknew what was in Solomon's heart to ask. This offer to Solomon is no exceptional one, for opportunities equally limitless are placed before us. God is saying to every one of His children, "Ask and it shall be given you." The matter with its limitations is placed before us in John 15:7. "If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." These unlimited offers are open to those who abide in Christ and let His words abide in them.

II. Solomon's Wise Choice (vv. 6-9).

The Lord's gracious offer brought the king face to face with the responsibility of making a choice. There was no middle course open to him. God deals with all His children in such a way that a choice must be made by them. Solomon was keenly aware of the difficulty and responsibility of his position. David was a great king. For a young man to take up the work of an illustrious father and push it to completion is a most difficult task. Comparatively few ever succeed. Besides this, he had to deal with the disturbing elements which had been set in motion by the usurper, Adonijah. Being made to shoulder so great a responsibility so suddenly, brought him to keenly feel his insufficiency. In his reply to God he pleaded that his being king was not of his own choice but an act of God's loving kindness. He argued that, since God had made him king, He was bound to qualify him to fill the place. All who have been called of God to fill positions of honor and trust can surely exercise that same boldness of faith. When called to positions of honor and trust we should humbly present ourselves before God for help. To feel ourselves unworthy and unfit for great and responsible work and to cast ourselves upon God for help is not cowardice, but a good sign that we shall not fail at the critical moment. Solomon's object in asking for wisdom was not for display but for the good of others.

III. God's Unstinted Gift (vv. 10-15).

Solomon's speech pleased the Lord. God gave him more than he asked. Because he put wisdom first, God saw that he could be trusted with material good also. Christ saw the same thing when He said. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). He who puts God and spiritual things first in time and importance can be trusted with temporal things. That which God promised him above what he asked was riches, honor and length of days. All who feel the lack of wisdom can go to God with confidence (Jas. 1:5). God blessed Solomon with a singularly comprehensive mind (I Kings 4:29-34). He was a botanist, zoologist, architect, poet and moral philosopher.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Dr. John R. Edwards, of New York, spent most of last week here closing up the business of the season. On Sunday he preached an excellent sermon for us, and gave an interesting account of his visit to some of the mission fields. At night he gave an illustrated lecture of the work being done by the missionaries in China. The meetings were held in the M. E. church instead of the auditorium because of the cool weather.

Rev. J. H. Enlow and son spent one night last week with Upton Cuppett, and was calling on other friends.

Thoburn Inn is now closed for the season but all the other houses are open with a number of guests. By next Saturday several of the cottages will be closed, so as to get their children ready for school.

The weather has been rather cool, but the people seem loathe to leave, as they are greatly enjoying their stay with us.

The White reunion last Thursday was well attended and was greatly enjoyed by all. The Harvey reunion will be held on next Saturday at the Shook Shop School grounds in Ryan's Glade.

John and Gay Hayden were Sunday guests at the home of their parents, Captain and Mrs. J. A. Hayden.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Richardson and daughter, Miss Frances, closed their cottage Tuesday and returned to their home at Piedmont. Their son motored here and took them to their home.

Several Park people have returned to their homes because of the opening of the public schools. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cummerford and daughter, Miss Rachel.

Mrs. Speers, of Speers, Pa., was a last week arrival. The Speers were among the early Park citizens and property owners.

Dr. and Mrs. Logan, who have been motoring through the New England States the past several weeks, are enroute to the Park.

The Hamill's had a very delightful reunion the past few days. It took place at the home of Misses Anna and Emma Hamill. Those present were Mr. John Hamill and family, of Mill Creek, W. Va.; Mrs. Harvey and family, of Ryan's Glade; Mrs. Howard Smouse, Mr. Smouse and son, John, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. Nan Rockhold of Baltimore; Mrs. Revile and husband, Cashier Neville, of Bayard, W. Va.

Misses Bertha Lee, Emma Burkholder, Messrs. Isaac Beckman and Albert Sisk spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. James Gower at Mountain Lake Park.

Mr. Melvin Durst, student at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., spent last Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Yoder and family.

Mr. Carl Swiers and sister Pearle called on Miss Myrtle White Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Rotruck, of Greenland Gap, West Va., spent last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. Noah Schrock.

The following named people from Grantsville spent the week-end at Gortner and Aurora, West Va., Misses Fannie Hershberger, Anna Wenger, Anna, Katie and Lucy Petersheim and Anna, Bertha and Fannie Yoder; Messrs. Allen Wenger, Simon Beachy, Jonas Petersheim, Jacob Yoder and Elmer Hershberger; Mrs. Dora Yoder, Mrs. Lela Brenneman and children, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Yoder, Mr. and Mrs. Menno Hershberger and Mr. Evan Miller.

Quite a number of our people were over the new Seneca Trail to Cheat River bridge over the week-end. Mr. Spoerlein took a truck load of folks to that point on Saturday and Monday and a number enjoyed a picnic dinner there on Sunday. Everybody is delighted with the scenery.

SCHOOL DAYS.

School days, school days, saddest and gladdest of the year. Saddest for children, who, with the first day of school, must bid farwell to the freedom of vacation days and gladdest to mothers who then begin their vacation.

It is hard for out-door and play-loving boys to return to school, but after a day or two they find that school isn't a bad place after all. The three R's are not such a bitter pill when taken with liberal doses of sports, recess games and school-day companionship. There have been two revolutionary developments in education—free schools and popular schools. Once parents could not keep their children in school. Now they cannot keep them out of school. The schools, not the children, deserve the credit.

Mother breathes a sigh of relief when school opens, for then she can pack the little Indians off to school and enjoy a few hours of peace and quiet, but when the summer recess arrives she will welcome relief from those two "packings" a day. Teachers who have had practical experience in getting a child ready for school can appreciate what they ask when they urge their pupils to report each session with clean faces and hands, clean clothes, hair combed and teeth clean.

Soon the great trek back to the schoolroom will begin and the shouts and laughter will not be distinguishable from those that accompanied the equally great exodus last spring.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I have just returned home from a ten-days' vacation at Mountain Lake Park, which was my first visit to my boyhood summer home in fourteen years. I was delighted with the up-to-date roads and the ever-changing beautiful scenery, but I was disappointed in not seeing the Park more progressive and stirring.

There is a great future for it if some live business men would take hold of it and bring some modern amusements there. It needs a good live advertising manager, for the natural beauty is there and the roads are wonderful. The climate is so ideal and if my line of work (office) would pay there, I would not hesitate to live there all the year around.

My father taught in the summer school there from 1893 to 1906, but now there are no more classes and the Chautauqua is dead. It is a shame to see that building empty, for I believe it could be used for up-to-date pictures and concerts during August.

I am tempted again to have a summer home there but I would like to see the Park run more modern than it is now.

Yours very truly,
A. E. RAMBEAU.

Washington Spring, Once a Place of Beauty and a Favorite Resort For Young and Old. Is Now a Place of Filth and Wreckage.

To the Editor of The Republican.

It is with deep regret we see the condition of this once beautiful spring located on the west end of the Baltimore and Ohio Hotel propery.

The house over the spring has been torn or has rotted down, the large stones flanking it on three sides pushed out and some of them rolled into the spring. Filth of all kinds is about this once beautiful place.

Why can't the people of Oakland restore this spring to its original beauty and attractiveness?

I am told that enough men will donate their labor to help in this work of restoration.

Why can't the citizens of Oakland interest themselves in rebuilding the structure housing Washington Spring where hundreds of people in years past hy spent many pleasant hours?

Today Oakland has not one single place of natural beauty to point out to a visitor.

Have we lost our high sense of natural beauty and pride to allow such a condition to exist?

PAPER IS READ AT CIVIC MEETING; REPORTS GIVEN

Club President Talks On Early Days of Deer Park

Interesting reports by Mrs. W. W. Grant, Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Miss Rhesa King, and the reading of a paper on the "Early Days of Deer Park," by Miss Thekla Fundenberg, featured the August meeting of the Oakland Civic Club which was held Tuesday afternoon at Crook Crest.

Mrs. Grant gave a report on the benefit moving picture, Mrs. Naylor on the organization of the Garrett county chapter of the Maryland League for Crippled Children, and Miss King gave an account of her recent visit to Baltimore, when she accompanied two children to the Children'd Hospital School. Miss King attended an orthopedic clinic and made visits of inspection to two hospitals used for this class of work, and also visited each child from Garrett county. These she found in good care, very happy and making good progress toward recovery.

She also reported on money received by her for the benefit of the crippled children of this community. Among the amounts received was one of $100 donated by the Oakland Rotary club.

A paper was read by Miss Fundenberg on the early days of Deer Park, as described in a book found in the Oakland Public Library entitled, "The Life of Henry G. Davis." Following is a short resume of the points taken from the book:

Early Days of Deer Park

One of the pioneers of Garrett county, Henry Gassaway Davis, opened his home here 1867 and lived here during the summer until 1892 when he moved to Elkins.

In 1878 he records having a shipment of salmon trout for three pounds, consigned from Smutsoma, Saskhika. In 1881 he raised 6,000 bushels of oats, weighing 34 pounds to the bushel, 300 bushels of buckwheat, and 300 tons of hay.

Through his owning a summer home here and being acquainted with John W. Garrett, of Baltimore, at that time president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Mr. Garrett built a summer home and his son, T. Harrison Garrett, built another. Mr. John W. Garrett went farther than this and in conjunction with Mr. Davis, the Deer Park Hotel and cottages were erected. In a short time Deer Park became the summer's capital. It was easily accessible to Baltimore and Washington and several handsome summer homes were built, and many noted people visited at the hotel. On June 3, 1886, President Grover Cleveland and his bride, came to Deer Park, occupying one of the cottages.

Senator Davis helped to entertain them, with pleasant drives and good trout fishing on Deep creek. They brought the president and Mrs. Cleveland to Oakland on Sunday to attend church in the Garrett Memorial church.

In August 1887, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, visited ex-senator Davis. Mr. Harrison was senator at that time and later, in 1889, he became president and occupied the cottage owned by Mr. Spencer for one season.

Cardinal Gibbons came frequently to Deer Park, and was entertained in various ways.

Henry G. Davis was born in Baltimore in 1823 and was taken by his father to see the "laying of the first stone" for the Baltimore and Ohio in 1828. He lived part of his life in Maryland until 1902 when he gave up his home here. He developed coal and timber land all through West Virginia, building the West Virginia Central Railway to Elkins and the Coal and Coke railway from Elkins to Charleston.

Child's Eye Is Removed.

Beulah Virginia Kahl, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Kahl, who had her eye punctured by an ice pick several weeks ago, was operated upon Saturday for the removal of the injured optic. Physicians attending her think that her condition is improving, but it will be several days before she can be brought to her home in Oakand.

The ice pick was plunged into her eye by her little brother on Tuesday evening, July 19, and it was thought at the time that her sight would not be impaired. The condition of the organ, however, continued to get worse, and as a last resort it was removed.

Card of Thanks.

We desire in this manner to express our heartfelt thanks to the friends and relatives for their love and kindness during the illness and after the death of our husband and father. We also extend our thanks to those who donated the use of their cars; also for the Christian spirit shown us; for the floral tributes and the words and letters of sympathy.

A solo by Donald Birchdorf of the Terra Alta club and several numbers by the Terra Alta club quartet composed of Karl Brown Donald Birchdorf, William Miller, and L. F. Everhart, were the musical features of the banquet.

Kingwood Has Largest Delegation

The silver cup presented by the Terra Alta club to the club having the largest delegation at the outing went to the Kingwood, W. Va. club. The silver cup given by Dr. A. Welton, of Terra Alta, to the club having the largest delegation of ladies present, was awarded the Kingwood club.

The weekly luncheon of the Oakland club, on account of the presence of Ridgeley P. Melvin, of Annapolis, who is governor of the 34th district of Rotary International, was changed to the noon hour yesterday instead of being held on Friday evening.

Mr. Melvin, in the course of an able address, stated that his appearance in Oakland marked the beginning of his visits to the clubs of the 34th district. He made an impressives appeal for faith in the principles and objects of the organization and recounted some of the impressions he received at the great convention of Rotary International held at Ostend, Belgium, in June.

Mr. Melvin was accompanied to Oakland by Mrs. Melvin. He is president emeritis of the Maryland Press Association and is at present a leader at the Annapolis bar besides being a member of the Anne Arundel county Board of Education.

General Braddock's Arrival In America Responsible For George Washington Again Turning To A Military Career

The house was three years old when in February, 1775, General Braddock landed his two regiments, the Forty-fourth and Forty-eighth, lately mutinous in Ireland, at Alexandria, and with a presentiment of his fate set about ordering the colonials to give him service of transportation and supplies for the march across the mountains and through the forest to throw the French out of Fort Duquesne, now Pittsburgh.

In the blue room of the Carlyle House, preserved for the imaginative visitor as a chamber of the past, the general met the Governors of the American Colonies which were going to help with men and wagons—Dinwiddie, of Virginia; Shirley, of Massachusetts; Delaney, of New York; Sharpe, of Maryland, and Morris, of Pennsylvania. They sat by a charming fireplace in a pleasant room and discussed discouraging prospects, not knowing the half of them.

The legend of the house is that the American Revolution started there and then, twenty years before its first shot was fired at Lexington, because the royal Governors told Braddock that Great Britain never would get anything out of the stubborn colonists except by taxation.

A former licutenant-colonel of Virginia milita, George Washington, aged 23, who thought his defeat the year before by the French in the Pennsylvania mountains had closed a military career, rode over from Mount Vernon and made the acquaintance of the general. The fascinating Sally Cary Fairfax also graced the house, and she is thought to have told Braddock that the young Washington, however dejected by failure, was the best officer in Virginia.

Braddock liked the young man and offered him a post as aide-de-camp. Mme. Washington, his mother, protested in apprehension and annoyance, but her son went soldiering again. The event was momentous. It restored his confidence.

From Alexandria Braddock moved his troops by way of Winchester in the Shenandoah Valley to Fredericks-town, and there he and the colonists almost came to blows. They were not furnishing him with horses and wagons, and his men were becoming mutinous again on short rations and no pay. There was a road to be cut, and his regulars couldn't do it and would not do it.

He had been promised Cherokee and Catawba Indians as scouts and forest fighters. A few hundred of them came. They brought their women. The redcoats beguiled the forest ladies. The scalp dances of the warriors were intended by the British officers to accustom the rank and file to the maniacal terrors of an Indian onset, but they only horrified the regulars and fixed in them a premonition of doom in the dark forest. With this done, the Cherokees went back to their mountains.

Pennsylvania Germans and Quakers were at outs with the Virginians over this western land, were opposed to the attack on the French and would not supply horses. The road was a Virginia road to be cut through Pennsylvania to the Ohio, and if cut and kept open it would be available for Virginia land takers and traders.

George Croghan, the great scout, land looker, trader and Indian agent of the Northwest, got Braddock some horses and eight Indians. Benjamin Franklin visited the general at Frederickstown and promised him some horses. He got them by pledging his own credit.

Braddock moved his troops on to Will's Creek, Fort Cumberland on the Potomac. Will's Creek is at the Narrows. It is the jump-off into the wilderness of mountain and forrest and rivers. The frontiersman, Thomas Cresap, had been employed by the Ohio Company of Virginia five years before to make a trail from Will's Creek to the forks of the Ohio. Cresap had a Delaware Indian, Nemacolin, blaze it. Washington and Christopher Gist, a pioneer land looker, had traveled it when Washington carried the Virginia orders to the French in the neighborhood of Lake Erie to get out of the Ohio territory. Washington had traveled it again in 1754 with a force of Virginians and an independent company of British to throw the French out. He was defeated in Fort Necessity at Great Meadows.

The trail had been a buffalo trace through Maryland and Pennsylvania and an Indian portage route. Washington had widened it to permit the hauling of his two swivels, small guns swinging on pivots. Braddock needed a wagon road for his guns and his supplies, and 600 choppers cut a swath up and down the mountain slopes, over Great Savage Mountain, Meadow Mountain, Negro Mountain and all the grades the motorists take now on the National road from the headwaters of the Potomac into this region of the Middle West and out to the Mississippi. Nemacolin had blazed virtually what became the first great national highway, and Braddock was to travel it in the thrust into the interior.

The army made nineteen encampments following the choppers. It was a terrible experience for European trained soldiers. It was June and July. Woodticks were even worse than rattlesnakes and scalping Indians. At what is now Braddock, where the steel mills of Pittsburgh cover the ground, seven miles from the French fort at the forks, the French, actually desparing, inspired 600 Indians with sufficient courage to strike a blow July 9.

For a second Braddock had his deserved success in his hands. The gallant Beaujeu and Dumas rallied their panicky red allies. Thereafter it was warfare as one side knew it and the other did not.

There was the massacre and the flight of the supply teams and the reserves. Daniel Boone was one of the teamsters who cut his traces and fled.

The dying Braddock was carried off the field back the melancholy road which had been cut with so much hardship. There is a bronze tablet in the steel town of Braddock marking the farthest advance of this army for the conquest of the West for English speaking people. Braddock sleeps by his road, the National road. His grave is between Stone House and Farmington, not far from Uniontown and close by the tablet along the road which calls attention to the site of Washington's Fort Necessity.

Braddock was a better soldier than he has lived in American tradition. No British general in America ever had a harder task. None showed more courage. He died saying, "Who would have thought it?"

Franklin thought Braddock was over-confident and did not comprehend his danger. He told Franklin he would move north from Fort Duquesne to take the French fort at Niagara, His military judgment was against the Ohio expedition, and he was right.

Niagara was accessible, and it was the hook by which the French forts dropping down to the Forks were held. Niagara was the controlling position, but Braddock was sent into the wilderness because the Ohio land company of Virginia and London wanted its grants made available.

Franklin thought the general would have his long column, trailing along its 12-foot cut through the forest, ambushed and destroyed. It wasn't. He encountered the enemy, seeking it with an advanced detail, at Washington's suggestion, and his first volleys were almost decisive.

He has lived in American history as the blockhead martinet who would not permit his men to scatter and fight in Indian and frontier fashion under cover. They wouldn't. They didn't know how, and he knew they didn't. They were terrified out of mind and discipline. They would or could not obey orders. Washington thought they were poltroons, and Franklin said the colonies had a new idea of the British regular. He could be made to run.

The officers whom Washington had thought effeminate sprigs of English fashion died charging where they could not lead their men, and their bewildered men did not bolt until Braddock had lost four horses under him and himself was shot off the fifth. Washington lost two horses and had bullets through his clothing.

Braddock had begun his military life as an ensign in the Coldstream guards. The guards sent a detail in 1913, when the Braddock monument was dedicated. The great monument is the old buffalo trace, Nemacolin's trail, Washington's swivel trace, Braddock's road, and the National highway of today.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Scoop likes to take exception to things that he knows are taking in too much territory, and he saw one of these things last week camouflaged as a news article on the front page of a newspaper, blazoning forth the merits of that particular sheet.

Forty-two years a subscriber to this particular paper, the editor boasts, and in further boastfulness asks, "Who can beat it?" After a challenge like that, Scoop combed the old files and records of The Republican and found many names of subscribers as old and as well paid up as the single one he boasts of.

Just One Example

Truman W. Casteel, of near town, was a subscriber to The Republican on March 3, 1877, the day the first issue of the paper appeared. That was over 50 years ago, and he still subscribes and is still paid up. This is only one of many.

Readers, please notice that this is not on the front page, that it is not a camouflaged news item, and that it is Scoop's own thoughts.

GIANT ENGINE TO TAKE PART IN RAIL PAGEANT

Railway Engine Employs New Water-Tube Boiler System

The John B. Jervis giant locomotive of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, employing the new water-type boiler system, will take part in the moving drama of inland transportation in America at the Centenary Exhibition and Pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to be held at Halethrope, Baltimore, September 24 to October 8.

The John B. Jervis weighs 314 tons, with its tender has a total wheel base of 74 feet, 11½ inches, carries driving wheels 57 inches in diameter, and exerts a maximum tractive effort of 84,300 pounds. Its tender has a capacity of 16,000 gallons of water and 20 tons of coal.

The locomotive presents a singular appearance due to the fact that the steam dome, smoke-stack, whistle, bell and other appliances, ordinarily protuding from the engine roof, are all sunk down on a level with the top. This was done so that the highest points on the engine would not exceed the standard height of locomotives prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The engine will come to Halethrope under its own steam to accompany other great examples of the latest designs in modern locomotive construction taking part in the pageant.

The engine is built with improvements in the fire-box which uses water tubes to conneet it to the regular cylindrical barrels instead of the general standard fire-box in which flat stayed plates are used, the purpose being to enable the boiler to carry a very much greater amount of steam pressure—400 pounds to the square inch instead of about 250 pounds. It is what is known as the cross-compound consolidation type of engine. The proportion of heating space in this engine is tripled. At this time, the railroads are giving attention to the designing of the type of fire-box used in this locomotive.

BITTINGER.

Last Saturday morning the committee in charge of arrangements for the annual Sunday school picnic awoke to find a most uncomfortable east wind blowing, accompanied by a drizzling rain. However, they continued their preparations, repaired to Broadwater's Grove with their generous supply of refreshments and a hope that the sun would shine upon their venture. About the middle of the forenoon folks from every quarter began arriving on the ground and by the afternoon a considerable crowd had gathered, some with winter overcoats and some shivering in summer attire, but according to reports the day proved enjoyable and successful and the visitors returned to their respective homes none the worse for the outing.

As an aftermath of the picnic we had in our midst over the week-end Cleaver Brenneman and family, of Akron, Ohio; Henry Bittinger and members of his family from the same city; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buckle and children, of Cumberland, and other guests whose names we have not been able to learn.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle, who have been in Akron, Ohio, for some weeks, returned to this village last Friday and will remain indefinitely.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley, of Grantsville, spent Saturday and Sunday with her children here.

Johnny Miller, recently of Akron, O., is visiting his parents near this village.

Lawrence Brenneman has a number of men at work building a new spring house on the Patterson Engle farm just south of Bittinger.

Clarence Brenneman is assisting in the re-painting of the barn and other out-buildings on the Stone House Farm near Grantsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fortney are entertaining relatives from Lumberport, West Va., at their home near here this week.

Messrs. Jacob Brenneman and C. R. Broadwater, the district assessors, were in Oakland on business one day last week.

Gilbert Green is having a new porch built at the front of his residence, which will add greatly to the appearance and value of his home.

Deputy Sheriff Griffith and Constable Andrew Shartzer, of Oakland, came to this village one morning last week and placed Floyd Bittinger under arrest and later lodged him in jail to await the action of the court upon a charge of forgery, and also a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Albert Wiley attended the funeral of his uncle, the late Alfred Garlitz, at Cumberland, one day last week.

Asa J. Orendorf recently purchased a new Dodge coupe and is now able to travel about with much more comfort.

Albert Wiley recently caught a fish in a pond on his place. The fish was of the carp species and measured 21 inches in length and weighed eight pounds.

The series of services being held in the village church by the Rev. E. E. Campbell are being quite generally attended and are resulting in considerable good.

Farmers in this section are now in the midst of their oats harvest and it is said the crop of that grain will not be up to the average.

Mrs. J. R. Watkins and son, Denny, of Johnstown, Pa., will return home this week after spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hetrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nile and family, of Garrett, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. John Spear and family, of Confluence, Pa., were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clemens Goehringer. Mrs. Nile will remain at her brother's home this week.

Speicher, and Miss Cleda Wiesseman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Wisseman, of near Grantsville, were quietly married on Monday evening at the parsonage by Rev. Arthur Scrogum. They expect to make their home in Oakland where Mr. Speicher will be engaged this winter as an instructor in the Oakland High school. Mr. Speicher is a graduate of Western Maryland College, and the bride was one of Garrett county's well known school teachers.

Miss Nora Kahl, little daughter of Lewis Kahl, of near Accident, who was thrown from a horse about six weeks ago, and had her arm badly broken and crushed, is still in the Western Maryland hospital. Although for a while it was thought necessary to have her arm amputated, surgical skill has restored it to the extent that she has partial use of it at the present time.

3,000 PRESENT AT LABOR DAY PICNIC HELD MONDAY

Knights of Pythias Have Ideal Weather For Annual Affair —Biggest Ever Held.

With ideal weather and a crowd of over 8,000 people, the Eighth Annual Labor Day picnic, held under the auspices of the local lodge, Knights of Pythias, in Helbig's Grove on the eastern edge of town, was said to have been the biggest gathering ever assembled in Oakland. Even with the extra available parking space, many automobile parties were unable to find room near the grounds, and the immense crowd lingered until after the fireworks display at 9:30 in the evening.

The parade in the morning marked the beginning of the day's activities. As sceduled in the program, it formed on Third street and going west on Alder turned into Second street with Guy O. Yutzy, William Casteel, Wade H. Hinebaugh and Alvey R. Martin as marshals, followed by the Crellin Boys' Band and Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America. The Oakland fire department, with its engines 1 and 2 and the chemical truck, followed next in line, and these in turn were followed by the automobile containing the speakers of the day, who were Mr. Charles W. Ream, who made the address of welcome upon reaching the picnic grounds.

Mr. Julius C. Renninger,Past Grand Chancellor of Maryland, introduced to the assembly A. Millard Tawes, present Grand Chancellor, who made a telling speech and was listened to with great attention.

Amusements Hold Crowd.

The ferris wheel, merry-go-round and numerous other amusements held the majority of the picnicers until late in the evening. The Crellin Boys' Band entertained during slack moments with four concerts, and the Oakland troop of Boy Scouts took care of directing and controlling the traffic which averted what might have been serious tie ups among the hundreds of cars driving in and out of the grove.

In addition to the above appearing in the parade from the Knights of Pythias building to the picnic ground were several members of the Knights of Khorassan and a pet bear, and a trades display representing ten of Oakland's business establishments. Three frisky clowns were also prominent along the line of march.

No Figures Yet.

While no figures are available at this time as to the financial success of the picnic, those in charge stated that indications are that Monday's gathering was the most successful one ever held. This was said in spite of the fact that a greater expense would have to be met this year than formerly. It will not be known definitely until the grounds have been cleaned up at the end of this week just what the net figures will total, but it will be well up in the thousands.

Mr. Sprague Gets Automobile.

The drawing card at the picnic this year, as has been in past years, was the giving away of an automobile. This year Mr. George D. Sprague, local manager of the Oakland Creamery, was awarded the machine,a Chevrolet sedan, purchased by the lodge from C. U. Edwards & Sons, Grantsville representatives of the manufacturers.

Started Eight Years Ago.

Eight years ago the first Labor Day picnic was held in Helbig's Grove. It was considered so much of a success that decision to make it an annual affair was made at once. Since that time attendance has increased with each recurring year, and the eighth annual, held Monday, was considered the biggest of them all.

Plans are now being made, according to those in charge, for next year, which is expected to eclipse any previous picnic ever held.

Martin Family Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Martin family of Garrett county was held on Sunday, September 4th, at the home of John L. Martin, where a basket dinner was served in the orchard. The Oak Grove band furnished splendid music throughout the day, having been brought to the reunion by Henry O. Martin, of Gormania, W. Va. A donation of $8 was given for their benefit.

About two hundred relatives and friends were present and everyone enjoyed the day so much that all are hoping that they may meet again next year, September 2, at the same place.

Burruss, inspirational sales counselor, who now resides at "Love Nest," near Table Rock, will give a humoristic lecture tonight at the Maryland Theatre, in connection with the benefit being given by the Rotary Club for the Free Public Library. His address will be entitled, "Wishers and Wanters."

The address of Dr. Burruss will be preceded by a musical program including a solo by Mrs. Brann, numbers by the Oakland Quartette, and by the Oakland Orchestra and two reels of comedy moving pictures. The admission will be fifty and twenty-five cents.

Mr. Burruss is a nationally known speaker, having selected and trained speakers during the World War and is known everywhere as the originator of the famous "four minute speeches" which were so popular during the many drives for Liberty Bonds.

According to the press of the country, "Mr. Burruss handles his work earnestly and conscientiously as a football coach. He marshals his hearers quickly, through forceful direction and masterful delivery, and does what very few publis speakers are able to do successfully. He humanizes his appeal and talks a language that is direct and effective."

274 PUPILS ENROLLED IN THE OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL

Oakland Grammar School Has a Total of 233—Classes Begun on Tuesday Morning.

With an enrollment of 274 pupils, the Oakland High School opened for the nine-months' school term on Tuesday, September 6, more crowded than ever before, and with the apparent necessity of employing an additional instructor to teach mathematics and general science.

The Oakland grammar school has a total enrollment to date of 233, with the probability of several more, who are usually delinquent in starting in, according to Miss Leary, principal of this school.

Conditions Crowded.

Conditions at the High School seem to be extremely crowed, the number of pupils present exceeding that of last year by about fifteen. It has been necessary as a consequence, for the assembly room to be converted into several class rooms and the other rooms are filled beyond comfortable capacity. The freshman class alone totals 147. there being 76 boys and 71 girls registered in this class.

Classes are being conducted on a temporary schedule until a more complete and permanent one can be arranged.

"This cannot be done until another teacher has been secured," Miss Conley, principal of the school, said yesterday, "because every instructor has more students now than can be conveniently looked after."

Instructors Listed.

The instructors now include Miss Conley, principal; W. W. Jenkins, mathematics and science; Thos. Graser, agriculture; Miss Kathrine Brown home economics; Miss Kay Stenholm, music and Latin; Miss Elizabeth Heath, English; Arthur Humbertson, commercial; Foster Speicher, history, science and athletics; Miss Jean Hollar, biology; Miss Kathryn Stevenson, French and history.

Teachers in the Oakland grammar school are the same as last year: Miss Marion B. Leary, principal, who has an enrollment in the seventh grade of 36; Mrs. Ernest C. Liller, sixth grade, with an enrollment of 39; Mrs. Mabel P. Sollars, fifth grade, with enrollment of 36; Miss Lucille Mitchell, fourth grade and part of third grade, with an enrollment of 47; Miss Beulah Loughridge, part of third grade and all of second, with 45; and Miss Edna Baker, first grade, with an enrollment of 30.

Instructors in the grammar school also have too many pupils to care for conveniently, according to Miss Leary, but in order to secure another teacher there must be an average daily attendance of 241. The number now enrolled lacks nine of equalling the number necessary to be present each day of the term.

Must Be Vaccinated.

All school children must be vaccinated against small pox before being allowed to enroll in the public schools. The State of Maryland stands second among th estates of the nation in the rigid enforcement of this law. Several children are staying out of school because they have not been vaccinated, it has been said. and these in attending would raise the total enrollment to almost the required 241.

DEER PARK HOTEL HEAD SAID TO HAVE SKIPPED

Unpaid Bill Claims, Now Filed, Total Over $1,000

The report was circulated this morning that Joseph E. Goulet. manager of the Deer Park Hotel. at Deer Park, six miles east of Oakland, absconded some time late yesterday afternoon leaving many unpaid bills. The total amount of claims already filed with a local attorney amount to well over $1,000.

It is alleged that Goulet drove his car from the hotel about noon yesterday, but that he returned later when attachments were laid against some of the hotel property. Immediately following the laying of the claims, it is said he left the hotel and evidently walked to the place where he is supposed to have left or hid his car and since that time his whereabouts are not known.

The Hotel closed last night after the banquet of the Garrett County Dairy Committee.

Mrs. J. A .King, of Dayton, O., and Prof. T. A. King and daughter, of Wheeling, West Va., and Mr. Russell King, of Cumberland, spent Sunday in Oakland where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bush.

WASHINGTON DAIRY PLANT WILL LOCATE IN OAKLAND

This Was Assured the Farmers, Business and Professional Men At Banquet Last Night

The Chestnut Farms Dairy of Washington, D. C., will locate a milk buying and shipping station in Oakland in the very near future is the assurance given by W. V. Davison, superintendent for the Chestnut Farms Dairy, at a meeting of more than 200 representative farmers and business and professional men at a banquet at the Deer Park Hotel last night.

During the entire day yesterday Mr. Davison, accompanied by several farmers and business men, toured the county and inspected a large number of farms and much farm land, and Mr. Davison was pleased with the natural dairy conditions existing in the county and expressed himself, in behalf of his company, that they would erect a plant here with a capacity of handling 10,000 gallons of milk daily. He stated, however, that his company would start operations as soon as 1,000 gallons of milk could be obtained from the dairymen in this section.

Commenting on the subject, he stated that a survey would be started immediately by the Garrett County Dairy committee working in conjunction with the milk transportation division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, of which Mr. John P. Dugan is the general agent.

"About four months time will be consumed before the actual operation of the new shipping station begins," stated J. L. McGlone, county agent, this morning. "A survey of the possibilities of the increase in production and other details will be completed a short time after the Garrett county Fair which will be held this month from the 20th to 23rd inclusive," continued Mr. McGlone, "and some time will be needed for the dairy barns to be put into sanitary conditions to meet the requirements of the Board of Health of Washington."

Mr. McGlone advises the farmers not to make their improvements individually, but rather apply to him for the valuable service extended by extension service of the University of Maryland. He assures them that much money can be saved the farmers of the county if they follow the directions of the extension service.

A program for last night's affair was prepared by the committee in charge and was presented in an interesting manner to the farmers and others present.

Included in the program was a solo by Miss Kay Stenholm, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Heath on the piano. Both young ladies are instructors in the Oakland High school. Speakers for the occasion included County Agent McGlone, Dr. J. C. McDowell, of the United States Department of Dairying; Mr. Dodd, county agent for Hardy county, West Va.; Dr. W. B. Burruss, Mr. William R. Offutt, Mr. John P. Dugan, Miss Keller, State Demonstration agent, and Mr. W. V. Davison.

Mr. John P. Dugan, in his address, stated that he felt the additional shipping station would increase production of milk in this section to the extent that two stations could be supported better than one has been in the past. He admonished the Dairy Committee to ever keep in mind that a debt was owed the Oakland Creamery company for their activity in the county in developing the county in dairying to the extent it is now developed, and he stated in order to repay such a debt that the milk needed by the new company should be procurred by an increase in supply such as would give to the present creamery even more milk than it is now handling.

An added attraction to the evening was the rendition of several selections by the North Glade Band, and the Oakland Quartette.

Mr. H. V. Leighton, Mt. Lake Park, read the following resolutions which were adopted unanimously by the 213 guests at the banquet.

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Garrett County Dairy Committee, composed of a large number of farmers, business and professional men of Garrett county, to entertain at a banquet in the Deer Park Hotel, at Deer Park, Maryland, Wednesday evening, September 7, in the interest of a second milk shipping station to be located in Oakland, and

WHEREAS, Mr. W. V. Davison, superintendent of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, of Washington, D. C., Dr. J. C. McDowell, United States Department of Dairying. and Mr. John P. Dugan, general Baggage and Milk Agent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, were guests of the Garrett County Dairy Committee.

BE IT RESOLVED That a hearty vote of thanks be expressed to these gentlemen for their support in promoting a second milk shipping station to he located in Oakland, and

BE IT FUTHER RESOLVED That Mr. Davison carry the compliments of the Garrett County Dairy Committee to Mr. Henry Browner, president of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, assuring him of the unanimous support of those present at this banquet and many other interested parties throughout Garrett county in carrying forward the industry of dairying and utilizing the natural and most valuable dairy conditions existing in the county.

There were forty ladies present at the banquet.

THREE AUTO WRECKS OVER LABOR DAY ARE REPORTED

Two of the Mishaps Are Alleged To Have Been Hit-and-Run

Three automobile accidents, two of them being classed as "hit-and-run" affairs, were the only accidents listed over the week-end and Labor Day, according to Sheriff Casteel. While the cars in all three instances were damaged considerably, none of the occupants were seriously injured. Two of the accidents resulted in the machines being upset.

One wreck occurred at Dodge school house, about three miles north of Oakland, when a car, driven by a man from Deer Park, and another driven by a man from Cumberland, collided, causing the upsetting of the Cumberland car.

Two "Hit-and-Run" Cases.

The other two accidents,one at Keyser's Ridge, and one at Red House at the intersection of the Northwestern Turnpike and the Oakland road, were not correctly reported to the officer, because the drivers of the cars involved failed to stop. Arrests of these men are expected soon, the Sheriff said.

GARRETT COUNTY FAIR WILL OPEN IN TWO WEEKS

Tuesday, September 20, Will Usher in Four-Day Celebration and Exhibition

Just two weeks from last Tuesday, the gala event of the year for Garrett county will be ushered in, when the first day of the county Fair opens up a four-day celebration and exhibition of the best line of farm products and fruits, live stock and domestic articles, at the fair grounds adjoining Oakland.

The Eleventh Annual Fair will be ushered in on Tuesday, September 20, with what is expected to be the largest display of business establishments ever to join in a parade. "Business Men's Day" will see a parade consisting of more than fifty floats, and in order that they might look more attractive, the Silver Decorating company, of Baltimore, has sent a representative to Oakland who will visit all the business men and give helpful suggestions about fixing up their window displays and floats for the parade. He will have his office upstairs in the Gonder building.

Parade Every Day

There will be a parade every day of the Fair, the second day being given over to the school children. The third day will be "Garrett County Farmers' Day," and the fourth and last day will be "Automobile Day."

Ichi and Naito, Japanese contortionists of a world wide reputation, will be present and feature a potpourri of Japanese Perch, juggling and contortion work, while A. H. Herman Checker Shows with three big rides and six tent shows will show daily. There will be a riding tournament, shooting matches, and other forms of amusement.

The Fair dates have been moved up one week this year in the hopes that better weather would prevail and insure the complete success of the Eleventh Annual exhibit. The Fair grounds are being put in first class shape and the buildings will be thoroughly cleaned before the exhibits are brought in, is was stated this morning.

WOUNDED BEAR TOPPLES FROM TREE; GUNNER RUNS

Sheep Killing Bruin Eludes Trap Set For His Capture

A huge bear that has the record of having killed fifty sheep belonging to Ernest Cullers, near Bayard, W. Va., just across the Potomac River from Garrett county, was almost the quarry of the farmer, but managed to get away after making things exciting for Cullers and his dog, leaving behind him a trail of blood.

Cullers had traps set, and hearing the bear in the darkness, took his gun and dog and investigated. The bear came into the pen where the traps were set, pulled out the sheep used as bait and started away.

Cullers had been sure that the traps were sufficient to catch the animal and did not shoot until after he found that it had evaded them. The bear, pursued by Cullers and the dog, went up a tree. Again Cullers shot and apparently hit his target, as the bear dropped from his perch almost on top of the hunter, who made a hasty retreat. When he returned, the bear had made good his escape, leaving only a trail of blood behind him.

The Big Parade.

Where were the other Five Hundred? might easily be asked after seeing six members of the Knights of Khorassan and a bear parade in the main show of the street celebration on Labor Day. But that can easily be explained. They were all out at the picnic ground waiting for the crowd to follow the clowns to the grove.

Those who have no ambition will look with envy on little Howard Naylor. At least once a year he gets to take his bath in public, and he can splash all he pleases without getting any water on the bathroom floor.

Re-Assessment in Oakland Has Been Completed and Officers Making It Endeavored to be Fair and Impartial, According to The Letter Herewith Published.

To the Editor of The Republican.

The following, addressed to the Supervisor of Assessments, Mr. E. R. Jones, and the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county, and is reproduced inthe—D bmm mm mm published at the request of the writer, Mr. Ault, one of the assessors:

"My good companion and fellow-workers, Mr. J. S. Gnegy, and I have completed the task assigned to us as assessors for the town of Oakland, Maryland, and we trust the results will be satisfactory and meet the approval of all concerned.

"In making assessments, we have endeavored to fair and impartial. No doubt we have made some errors, for we are only human, therefore ask your indulgence.

"We want to thank those upon whom we called for the courteous manner in which we were received and for the assistance they gave us.

"While we heard considerable complaint about the high taxes, we cannot forget that this burden must be borne by all of us and each one willing to carry his share. This is the age when we all expect so much: good roads, good schools, fine homes and many other things, for which we must pay through taxation.

"Perhaps there is a remedy; let us hope so and earry on.

"Respectfully,

"JOHN AULT."

THAT BOARD BILL.

One of the most intimate problems with which the average American has to deal is his board bill, whether he be living the life of "single blissfulness" or happens to have been fortunate enough to have persuaded some good woman to divide with him the responsibility of managing a home. Wise men or women calculate most religiously just how much it will take to meet the requirements of the family table and then strive to keep within reasonable bounds. All this being true, it would seem that every thinking consumer ought to give heed to the needs of agricultural recognition, knowing full well that if the basic industry fails or the number of producers are reduced materially the final losers will of a certainty be those who are compelled to visit the market place and meet current prices for food supplies.

Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board of New York, recently sounded a well-timed warning which should be heeded by all reasonably minded citizens. Among other things, he said:

"Soon there'll be no more second helping at Mrs. American Farmer's boarding house, where city and industrial workers are getting cheap and bountiful meals, unless they pay the landlady more for her food so she can afford to stay in the business. Though the city workers and the city industries are profitting today by the cheap food that they get at the farmer's expense, all economic experiences shows that they cannot evade paying their board bill, though it may take another decade for the farmer to colleet it. In the long run, the farm and the factory are mutually dependent and there can be no permanent prosperity for one at the expense of the other. The time has come in the life of the American people when we must deliberately and wisely formulate a National agricultural policy. This issue is inescapable, even though it may be postponed. Whether you look at agriculture as an industry, as a business, as an occupation, or as a way of living, it is no longer possible to ignore the great economic and social problems which its situation presents."

There was much more of this same kind of logical argument in Mr. Jordan's address, but we have quoted enough to show "what fools those mortals be" who think that "bleeding" the farmers is to be a permanent pastime.

"USE ALL OR NONE OF IT."

Breathes there a man in Garrett county who, standing before a piece of "copy" that is being sent to The Republican, has said that such a work of literary composition could not be improved? Breathes there the same man who, after sending the piece of "copy" in and having it changed and composed into a really good news story, has said that his "stuff" must be used word for word, or he would refrain from giving out any information whatsoever?

Yes, there is such a man! There are several such men, but the only consolation is that there are ever so many more who are just directly opposite of them.

The Republican does not want to make it appear that it knows everything that is to be known, but it does claim that it knows how to write news stories in proper form for publication. All who read the columns of the paper want the real news of the county, and they want it and should have it in readable form. Anything that has no news value has no business in the paper, and that is why some things are cut out of articles from time to time.

Ninety-nine per cent of the articles submitted for publication are accompanied by a note stating that if the wording is not quite correct for the editor to please make the proper changes and present it in a readable form. The other one per cent think that there is no literature like their own, and to further impress the idea upon the editor a letter was sent to him recently by one of the one per cent notifying him that if the entire article was not used, not to use any of it.

Well, the editor did not use his material and got a much better story from another source.

The one per cent may know their Bermudas, but they don't know their news, and there isn't a bit of use getting sore about it either.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

During the past week two letters came to The Republican with valuable news material enclosed. The editor did not know whether the news was authentic or not, and he took a chance that if he did publish it and the article caused trouble he would have no way of knowing who submitted the matter in question.

It so happened that the news was found to be authentic and for that reason is being published in today's issue. But that isn't the point. Every news item, story or letter to the editor should have the name of the sender attached to it. That is not for the purpose of using the signature for publication, for it will always be withheld, but it is simply to show good faith on the part of the contributor. Signed articles are nothing more or less than a guarantee on the part of the writer that the matters are true and in a way vouch for their authenticity. So if you want to be sure that your articles get into print, sign your name.

Eighth Annual Harvey Reunion.

One of the largest reunions of the oldest family in Garrett county was held at Shook Shop Grove, Saturday, September 3. The day was an ideal one and the place one of the old favorite spots of upper Garrett county where the Harveys, their relatives and friends have met annually in reunions for the past eight years.

The program as rendered was as follows: Call to order, Mr. J. D. Harvey, president; selections by the Oak Grove band under direction of Prof. Mickey; song, "America" by those assembled. This was led by Rev. E. C. Cuppett, of Mountain Lake Park; prayer by Rev. F. L. Fultz, U. B. minister of Loch Lynn; address of welcome, J. D. Harvey, president; duet, "The Unseen Hand," Revs. Cuppett and Fultz; address, Miss Clara Rightmire, of Morgantown, West Va.

The address of Miss Rightmire outlined a plan looking to the publication of a history of the Harvey family and each member of that family was requested by the speaker to send all important information concerning their family to Mrs. I. L. Neville, at Bayard, West Va., for compilation and publication at a later date. Miss Rightmire also invited the Harveys of Maryland to unite with the Harveys of West Virginia and other states at a reunion held annually the second Sunday of August at a place along the highway between Philippi and Elkins, West Va.

Reading, "Dad, I and Mother," W. E. Moon, Omaha, Neb.; "Come Thou Almighty King; call for dinner and all assembled around great tables laden with an abundance of food at which the doxology was sung and thanks returned by Rev. Brown.

Following the dinner a concert was given by the Oak Grove Band and an address was made by Capt. George Wilson, mayor of Elkins, and one by Rev. Brown, of Deer Park.

An old fashioned corn roast was held in the evening which concluded the events of the reunion of this most excellent family springing from those truly great pioneers who conquered the wilderness and made it to bloom.

PULLMAN COMPANY TO HAVE EXHIBIT IN PAGEANT

Will Show First Sleeping Car in Contrast With Latest Model.

The Pullman Company, as one of a number of companies connected with transportation, will have an interesting exhibit at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Centenary Exhibition and Pageant, to be held in Baltimore, September 24th to October 8th. It will show the first Pullman sleeping car, in contrast with its most modern form of travel luxury, an entertainment car. These exhibits will be displayed on the tracks adjacent to the Hall of Transportation at the big railroad fair.

The original sleeping coach, representing the early days of railroading, made its initial run on the Chicago and Alton Railroad from Bloomington, Ill., to Chicago, in 1859, carrying a few passengers, among whom was George Mortimer Pullman, its inventor. According to records of the Pullman Company, no women made this journey, and the few men who did were loathe to remove their boots. "Number 9" the first Pullman was called. It is about 44 feet long and a little more than 6 feet high on the inside, with flat roof like a modern box car. It was lighted by candle. Its windows were narrow, one-sashed. Upper berths were provided in it by raising and lowering a shelf. Bedding was kept in a compartment at one end of the car. Curtains were hung before and between berths, and heat was provided by two wood-burning stoves, the fuel being kept in boxes. Hands and faces were washed in tin basins, in the open.

Side by side with this first crude attempt to furnish the traveler with sleeping quarters nearly 70 years ago, is the Pullman Company's latest innovation, the entertainment car, affording the traveling public access to a moving picture show, dancing, exercise, radio concert, etc., to pass away the hours in transit.

The builders of this latest "palace-on-wheels" have used every bit of the 82-feet length of the car. In addition to the dance-hall, or moving picture parlor section, are a gymnasium equipped with mechanical horse, punching bag, medicine ball, chest weights and rings, etc., a barber shop and shower bath, a library lounge and a library shelf of 100 volumes.

The Pullman Company's exhibit of its oldest and its latest rounds out the display of the old and the new in railroad equipment, helping to make this assembly the largest transportation exhibition yet gotten together.

SOLOMON DEDICATES THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings, chapter 8. GOLDEN TEXT—I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Worshiping in God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC— Young Man's Love for God's House.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of God's House to a Community.

The first task of Solomon after his coronation was the building of the temple, a privilege which was denied to his father, David. In his preparation for this task he secured wood from King Hiram of Tyre, stones for the foundations from the Phoenicians, skilled workmen also from King Hiram. It was located on Mount Moriah (II Chron. 3:1). The suitableness of this place was due to the fact that the Lord had appeared here to Abraham. Its dimensions were 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. It contained the brazen altar, the laver, the golden candlesticks and shewbuns. The dedication of the temple was arranged to take place at an auspicious time. The dedicatory services consisted of:

I. Bringing Up the Ark (vv. 1-11).

The ark of the covenant was typical of Jesus Christ. God dwells among men through Jesus Christ (John 1:14). The ark was God's holy dwelling place. This, therefore, must be brought up first and placed in the temple. For the manifestation of the divine presence was the real dedication. When the house of God was to be dedicated the king arranged for a representative gathering of the people, consisting of the elders, princes and heads of the tribes. There were many great men present, but only the priests, God's appointed ministers, moved the ark. The fatal experience of Uzzah in David's time was doubtless clear in their minds. Solomon profited by the blunder of his father. Connected with this service was a very great sacrifice, one in keeping with the occasion. The ark with the two tablets of stone under the mercy seat shows God manifesting Himself to His people on the ground of a law perfectly kept and since atoned for by the shedding of blood. At the completion of the sacrifice, the temple was filled with the glory of the Lord.

II. Solomon's Address to the People (vv. 12-21).

He points out to the people that God had chosen David to be king, not for certain reasons He would not allow him to build the temple, promising that his son should do the work. Now that the work was done, the temple was built and the ark of the covenant was in its place, they could be assured that God had raised him up in the room of his father.

III. Solomon's Dedicatory Prayer (vv. 22-53).

The ark having now been placed in the most holy place, and the address to the people being ended, the king pours out his soul to God in prayer. In this prayer Solomon gratefully acknowledges God's goodness in the past, giving glory to Him, and pleads that His promise to his father be verified (vv. 22-26); he prays that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple which He had now taken possession of (vv. 27-53); so that (1) in case of contention between parties He would judge between them (vv. 31, 32); (2) in case of being smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, upon confession of the same, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34); (3) in case of famine as chastisement for sin, upon confession and prayer before the temple, God would forgive and send rain (vv. 35, 36); (4) in case of pestilence and sickness, if they pray to God toward the temple, God should hear and forgive (vv. 37-40); (5) in case of the coming of the foreigner who comes at the news of God's greatness, and prays toward Jerusalem, his prayers should be heard (vv. 41-43); (6) in case of going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45); (7) in case of being in captivity because of sin, God should hear their prayers and restore (vv. 46-53).

IV. Solomon Blesses the People (vv. 54-61).

On the strength of the covenant promises he invokes His presence always with them to keep them faithful, and exhorts the people to have their hearts perfect before God, walking in His commandments and statutes.

V. Solomon and the People Offer Sacrifices of Thanksgiving (vv. 62-66).

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Cemetery Cleared of Rubbish.

The Cemetery Committee is to be commended upon every appearance of the cemetery grounds, which has been accomplished by the expenditure of a very small amount of money. The entire plot was mowed and put in fine condition. The owners have co-operated in a most splendid way also by removing surplus earth and keeping things tidy. There are a few exceptions, however, where rubbish is occasionally carelessly thrown aside instead of being deposited in the rubbish heap where it can be burned or taken away. When this rubbish is cast it is usually left upon another's lot, as there are no large vacant spaces. This causes discontent at times and it is the wish of the committee that care be used in this respect, as it aids materially in keeping the grounds in presentable condition.

This work is carried on by the committee entirely from donations by lot owners and those having friends buried there. Recent donations have been received from Mrs. Annie E. Getty and son William, of Iowa, Mrs. James K. Smart, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Allie Getty, of Meyersdale, Pa. All persons who desire to see this sacred field kept in good condition should contribute liberally. Remittances should be sent to the Cemetery Committee, care the First State Bank at Grantsville.

Seeks Reelection.

John H. Bender, of Springs, Pa., a brother of J. J. and C. A. Bender, of Grantsville, and a former resident of this community, has served two terms as County Commissioner in Somerset county, Pa. Mr. Bender has made a splendid record while in office, having always worked for the good of the people and always favored projects which were strictly for the public benefit. Because of this splendid service rendered in the past, his many friends in both parties have prevailed upon him to be a candidate for a third term and the indications are that he will be elected.

Birthday Party.

David Broadwater, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Broadwater, celebrated his sixth birthday last Friday afternoon by having a party with all the boys and girls of his age in attendance for an afternoon of games, which was directed by Misses Kathleen Grathouse and Thyra Waltham, of Baltimore. There was a nice big birthday cake and a little lunch for all. Those attending were A. C. Stanton, Jr., Edgar Allen Bender, Mark Schaefer, Grace Hanft, Claudie Paul, Joseph Paul, Florence Davis, Robt. Davis, B. T. Keller, Jr., Dale Miller, Lucille Patton, Russell Shearer, Rozella Hanft, "Johnnie" Bittinger, Vera Miller, Delmont Miller, Mary Jane, Mildred, Betty Jane and Jimmie Beachy, Mary Helen Gnagey, Fred Broadwater, Grace Swauger, Mabel Broadwater and Junior Schaefer.

Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Zach Sibert, of West Salisbury, Pa., who lived for many years on Keyser Ridge, six miles west of Grantsville, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday, August 30th, at their home.

Pastor Called for Local Church.

Prof. Karl H. Beck, Martinsburg, Pa., a returned missionary from China, has accepted a call to be the pastor of the local Reformed congregation, it being a part of the Wilhelm Charge of St. Paul, Pa. This congregation has been without a pastor for several months, the former pastor, Rev. Samuel E. Lobach, having accepted a call to Waynesboro, Pa.

Left For a Visit to France.

Harvey Gortner, ex-service man and a member of the Motor Service Company of this place, left Tuesday evening with his brother Ernest, of Gortner, Garrett county, for New York City, where they will embark for a French port on the steamer DeGrasse to attend the American Legion convention to be held in Paris. The two young men expect to be absent for a month or more and will visit the principal cities of Europe before they return to America.

Opening of School.

The high and elementary schools of Grantsville were opened on Tuesday morning under the direction of Prof. J. Edward Ford, principal, who comes from Sharptown, Md., with a gratifying number of pupils enrolled for the opening day, which usually is not as good as it should be, due to children being needed at home for various tasks, which are pressing upon people at this time of year. Enrollment in the elementary school was 78, and in the high school was 72. It was estimated by Prof. R. W. Webster, principal last year that there could be a possible enrollment in the high school of 90, therefore an attendance of 78 on the opening day of school is very good. Professor Ford, in addition to his supervisory duties, will teach mathematics and one other subject. Mr. Ira M. Straley, who was on the high school faculty last year, will teach English and one other subject; Miss Emily Friel, a graduate of Notre Dame and whose home is at Queenstown, will teach science and one other subject; Miss Eva Falkenstein, a graduate of Hood College, Frederick, and whose home is in Oakland, Md., will teach vocational home economics; Mr. G. E. Bishoff, a graduate of University of Maryland, and who comes from Delaware also, will have charge of the vocational agriculture department. In the elementary school Miss Ida Frisse will teach grades 1, 2 and 3, and Mr. Frank Getty will have charge of grades 4, 5, 6 and 7. It is hoped that another teacher can be secured for the elementary school, as an enrollment of 81 is required to secure the third teacher, therefore, it is only necessary to enroll three more to get the additional help.

The object of this suit is to secure a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, for the sale of the real estate of which James Carey, late of Garrett county, Maryland, died seized and possessed, and the distribution of the proceeds therefrom among those entitled to the same.

1. That James Carey, late of Garrett county, Maryland, deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of five certain parcels or tracts of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett county, Maryland, as follows, to-wit;

(1) A parcel of land containing 61 acres and 63 perches, more or less, composed of Military Lot No. 601 and part of Military Lot No. 602, being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from John B. Wright and Thomas W. Forrest, executors, by deed dated August 7, 1901, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 40, folio 18, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1.

R., No. 28 and folio of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 365, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 2.

(3) A parcel of land containing 15 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from Richard Beall and wife, dated May 26, 1888, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 32, folio 90, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, in which said deed there was also granted the right to the said James Carey to take water from the spring known as Cold Spring situated on that part of Lot No. 596, lying south of the old National Road, the said water to be taken from said spring and conveyed to the property granted by said deed by means of a pipe line. One-half of the minerals underlying said tract of land also being excepted and reserved from the operation of this deed, the original of said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 3.

(4) A tract of land containing 132.45 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by Carrie G. Coulehan, dated January 21, 1906, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 32, folio 90, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, in which said deed there was also granted the right to the said James Carey to take water from the spring known as Cold Spring situated on that part of Lot No. 596, lying south of the old National Road, the said water to be taken from said spring and conveyed to the property granted by said deed by means of a pipe line. One-half of the minerals underlying said tract of land also being excepted and reserved from the operation of this deed, the original of said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 4.

(5) Military Lot No. 597, containing about 50 acres and being the same which was devised to the said James Carey by the last will and testament of Daniel Carey, dated October 26, 1893, probated in the Orphans' Court for Garrett county, Maryland, on April 21, 1905, and duly recorded in Liber I, folio 158, etc., one of the records in the office of the Register of Wills for said Garrett county. A duly certified copy of this will is herewith filed, marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 5, and together with the deeds heretofore mentioned and herewith filed, is prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint.

2. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said James Carey departed this life intestate at his home in Garrett county, Maryland, on the 10th day of June, 1926, leaving surviving him the following next of kin and heirs at law, to-wit: Ada Carey, his widow; Rose E. Carey, a single son; Hazel V. Meese, a daughter, who intermarried with George Meese; Annie L. McKenzie, a daughter, who intermarried with Thomas McKenzie; all of the aforegoing being adults and residing in Garrett county, Maryland, with the exception of the last named, who reside at Three Forks, in the State of West Virginia; Francis Andrew Carey and Mervin Odell Carey, infant children of Mervin A. Carey, a deceased son of the said James Carey; which said grandchildren all reside in Garrett county, Maryland; and Lenora Agnes Carey, Sarah Ada Carey, Elmer Francis Carey, Minnie Ethel Carey, Emma Viola Carey, Walter Franklin Carey, Enid Carylon Carey and Georgia Indialee Carey, infant children of Grover F. Carey, a deceased son of the said James Carey, said grandsons and granddaughters of the said James Carey, now reside at Orange, Texas, the said Mervin A. Carey and the said Grover F. Carey both having died prior to the death of their father, James Carey.

3. That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein and in order to make a division of said interests it will be necessary that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

4. That it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of the said parties, and especially of said infants that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof, so far as the interests of said infants are concerned, be invested in some more productive fund for their benefit, and the balance distributed to those entitled to the same.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate, for the distribution of the proceeds among the parties to this case according to their respective interests and for such other and further relief as the case may require and for a writ of subpoena and order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 31st day of August, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 1st day of October, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendants, Annie L. McKenzie and Thomas McKenzie, her husband; Lenora Agnes Carey, Sarah Ada Carey, Elmer Francis Carey, Minnie Ethel Carey, Emma Viola Carey, Walter Franklin Carey, Enid Carylon Carey and Georgia Indialee Carey, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 17th day of October, 1927, to show cause if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

SERMON ON STEWARDSHIP

Malachi 3:10: Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house; and prove me herewith, saith the Lord, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

Using the above as the basis of his Sunday morning discourse in the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church in Oakland on August 28th, Rev. Walter B. Brock, pastor, preached the fourth of a series of five sermons on the five essentials of Christian living: Worship; Bible Study; Prayer; Stewardship. The fifth of the series, Service, was preached Sunday morning of this week.

"The two principles of Christian living which we have been studying last Sunday and this," said the speaker, "are intimately related. Christian prayer and Christian stewardship cannot be separated: we must pray in order to be able to give; and we must give in order to pray effectively.

"In the tenth chapter of the Book of Acts we read the story of Cornelius, said to be the first Gentile convert to Christianity. An angel appeared to this Roman captain and said, 'Cornelius, your prayers and your alms have risen before God.' It is as true of us as of Cronelius—our gifts are the wings of life which carry our petitions up to the very throne of God.

"Have you ever had the experience which I have had of struggling in prayer, striving to hurl my petitions upward toward heaven only to feel them fall back like leaden weights to earth? Why is it that sometimes our prayers are lifeless and meaningless? Well, there are a number of reasons, but I will tell you the chief one—it is possible only for a giver to get into harmony with the Eternal Giver of every good and perfect gift. When we share with others, we become like God; when we serve our fellowmen we become like Him who came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many; the current of our life flows in the Divine channel; our heart pulses in the rythm of the Cosmic Heart; we are in tune with the Infinite, and our little lives thrill through and through with the Divine life.

"Giving is itself a form of prayer, and only the prayer of a giver reaches the throne of the Infinite Giver and comes back freighted with blessing; for giving is love in action. 'God is love, and he that abideth in love abideth in God and God abideth in him.'

"A selfish man cannot commune with God; for love is the divine language, and only he who speaks God's language can hear God's voice.

"The Ancient Mariner looked over the side of his boat becalmed like a painted ship upon a painted sea. He saw the water snakes and he recoiled in horror and loathing from these slimy things upon a slimy sea. He looked to heaven and tried to pray, but his heart was as dry as dust. Again he watched the water snakes, leaving trails of golden fire in the black deep as they coiled and swam. How beautiful. 'O happy living things,' he cried. A spring of love gushed from his heart, and he blessed them unaware. He looked upon these creatures now as the loving Creator looks upon all His creatures. And he knelt down and prayed, for he touched God's hand in the dark.

"'He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small;
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all.'

"Love is the language of prayer. And giving is the test, the acid test, of the genuineness of love. God so loved the world that He gave His Son to die for us. If our love is genuine it will express itself in giving, unstinted, sacrificial, God-like giving.

"This is the explanation, I believe, of the unanimous testimony of tithers—that they get more joy, more downright satisfaction out of the money they give away than from all the money they spend upon their own pleasure and comfort.

"Not long ago, in a meeting of the executive committee of the new Boy Scout council in Cumberland, which we organized this year with an annual budget of five thousand to six thousand dollars, I heard a banker, who, I believe, is the wealthiest man in Cumberland, make this remark: 'Say, I'm getting the biggest kick out of this thing that I've had in many years.' That was his way of saying what Lowell has expressed in more classic form:

"'He is dead whose hand is not open wide
To help the need of a human brother;
He doubles the length of his lifelong ride
Who gives his fortunate place to another;
And a thousand million lives are his
Who carries the world in his sympathies—
To give is to live.'

There is a law of life which is as inviolable as the law of gravitation—help another and you help yourself; harm another and you do yourself a greater injury. The good that we do for others invariably returns to us with multiplied blessings. The evil that we do—whether in the form of active injury or mere passive indifference to the cry of another's need—inexorably comes back to curse our souls.

"The penalty of selfishness is death. Do you know why the Dead Sea is dead? Because it is always receiving and never giving out.

"Intelligent business men are beginning to understand this. That is why, a few months ago, we read the astonishing news that fourteen prominent citizens of San Francisco have combined to organize a $100,000,000 corporation for the sole purpose of furthering philanthropic and educational projects along lines similar to the Rockefeller and Russell Sage Foundations.

"'Stewardship is the needle's eye by which those who have riches may enter the Kingdom of Heaven.'

"Wealth invested in human welfare becomes a golden ladder by which its possessor mounts to the very throne of God. But wealth, selfishly grasped, is a weight that drags us down to hell, like Silas Marner's heavy bag of gold found clutched in the fist of a skeleton at the bottom of the mill pond.

"Imagine a rose that would say to itself, 'I cannot afford to give away my sweetness; I must save it for myself; I will close my petals and withhold my fragrance.' But, lo! the moment the rose tries to store up its treasures of color and fragrance to withhold them from others they vanish. These qualities do not exist in the unopened bud. It is only when the rose begins to unfold, to share its sweetness, its life, with others, that its beauty and fragrance are developed.

"So human selfishness defeats its own ends. He who refuses to give himself to others, who closes the petals of his charity and withholds the fragrance of his sympathy and love, finds that he loses the very thing he tries to keep.

"'He that saveth his life shall lose it; but he that loseth his life, for Christ's sake, shall save it.'"

False Fire Alarm Saturday

Oakland Fire Department responded to a false alarm on Saturday evening about seven o'clock when it was reported that the home of Mr. S. E. Shiver was burning. The strongest evidence, however, was a slight smell of smoke, upon which is said to have been the basis of turning in the alarm.

HISTORICAL AMERICA

Washington, On Mission To French In Western Pennsylvania, Proves Self Quick On The Trigger.

By CLIFFORD RAYMOND, in theBaltimore Sunday Sun, Sept. 4.

WASHINGTON'S first experience with the country beyond the mountains was when he went across the Blue Ridge into the lower Shenandoah Valley with George Fairfax to survey the lands of Lord Fairfax. He was then 16.

His second of importance was when he carried the letter of Governor Dinwiddie of Virginia to the French in northwestern Pennsylvania, warning them to keep out of the Ohio company's land. He was then 21 years old and the famous frontiersman, Indian and scout, Christopher Gist; the Hollander, Jacob Van Braam, and a Seneca chief with some Indians went with him. Van Braam had taught Washington fencing.

He had some use of French, not reliable in all the panches, and was to act as interpreter. The Seneca was known to Washington as the Half King, he being in a way a proconsul of the Iroquois among the Ningoes, Delawares and Shawnees of the Ohio country.

This mission took Washington to the forks of the Ohio, Pittsburgh, and up the Alleghany river, Beaver creek and French creek to Fort Le Boeuf, on the site of the present Waterford, Pa., twenty miles south of Lake Erie.

These regions, although traveled by a few English traders, were far beyond the English colonial frontier of the day and many a later day.

Of all the great Americans of the Revolution and of the formation of the Republic, Washington had the earliest and the keenest frontier sense, the perception of national expansion and western development of roads and waterways and the necessity of thus knitting the new West beyond the mountain to the old colonial East of the seaboard. It came from his early experiences and later judgment.

This wilderness trip of 500 miles in the hardships of severe weather gave the young Virginia major an unfavorable impression of French character. He thoroughly distrusted the cordiality of the hospitality offered him at Fort Venango, at French Creek and the Alleghany, Franklin, Pa., and farther on, at Fort Le Boeuf.

St. Pierre, the commandant at Le Boeuf, and his officers in the hilly wilds were courteous, although they were firm in their refusal to obey Governor Dinwiddie. The land was French, they said, and the English were interlopers, but the letter should be forwarded to Marquis Duquesne, the Governor, in Canada.

Wine glasses were filled and the young Virginian was entertained with every delicacy the French stores in the wilderness could supply,but Washington watched his hosts with ceaseless suspicion. He was sure they were falsely cordial and that they intended to detach his Indian guides from him by getting them drunk and making them promises, winning them to the French interest.

This probably was true and Washington repaid them by getting all the military information he could. He was anxious to be gone on the return. The French were anxious to detain him.

The convicition that they were treacherous was a part of the caution of a young provincial militia officer conscious of a heavy responsibility. Although Virginia had not yet seen what New England and upper New York had experienced of French and Indian ferocities in war, Washington knew he was in the company of his natural enemies and if they were polite he thought it masked a purpose.

The French supplied him generously with wine and supplies for his return, hut his concern was all to get his Indians out of their hands before they were beguiled away to the French side. When he and Gist had pushed on ahead of their horses, baggage and Indians, three days out of Venango on the return, "we fell in with a party of French Indians, who had lain in wait for us. One of them fired at Mr. Gist or me, not fifteen steps off, but fortunately missed."

Washington was convinced that his recent hosts, the courteous French, had tried to assassinate him. He nearly lost his life by poling himself off a raft in the rapids of the Alleghany in trying to cross it. It was the latter part of December and the cold was extreme. It was a hard trip even for Gist, who froze his fingers and toes, and it was a part of the early discipline of the young man, Washington. It was the middle of January when he reported back to Dinwiddie in Williamsburg.

The experience had fixed in his mind an idea of French duplicity and treachery and it was to have consequencies which may still have considerable interest and importance for modern consideration, although they were quickly absorbed,so far as Washington himself was concerned, in his world consideration.

He was made chief actor in an atrocity story spread over Europe by the French to prejudice opinion against the English and the least pleasant feature of the narrative was that it had his signature to attest its truth. He was, by his own statement, the assassin of an envoy on a peaceful mission to him, protected by a flag of truee.

When Dinwiddie had the French reply refusing to get out of the Ohio company grant and claiming possession by right of discovery and by the burial of claim plates, some of which have been dug up in our own times, he set to work to throw them out. To validate its grant the Ohio company was required to build a fort and settle one hundred families in the territory.

While Washington was carrying the message to St. Pierre, Dinwiddie had sent out a party of carpenters under a guard and with William Trent in charge to build a stockade at the forks. Washington passed them going out as he was coming in. It was a certainty that they would be driven out by the French unless supported, and Dinwiddie tried for Colonial cooperation with Virginia in sending an army west. Inasmuch as the possession by the Ohio company was an assumption of Pennsylvania lands by Virginia, there was not much enthusiasm in that direction, even against a common enemy.

Dinwiddie gave the command to Col. Joshua Fry, professor of mathematics at William and Mary College. Washington was commissioned lieutenant-colonel and raised two companies of volunteers at Alexandria, about 150 men, and went to Wills Creek, Cumberland, Md., the jump-off for the wilderness, in April, 1754. He was now 22 years old and, as events proved, he was to have entire responsibility for warfare with French soldiers in a time of peace between France and Great Britain.

At Wills Creek, Washington took advice as to procedure. Reinforcements came to him, but so also did news from the Forks that the Frenchmen had dropped down the Alleghany river with a large force in boats, had taken the fort and were sending the carpenters and their guards back over the wilderness trail.

The expedition which had been intended to hold a position already acquired against an attack upon it by the French now was in the quite different position of being required to march against French soldiers in possession and throw them out. In one case the French would be making war in peace time; in the other the English would be.

Washington, nevertheless, decided to go on. He had two swivel guns which would need a widening of the trail blazed by the Delaware Nemacolin and traveled by Washington and Gist the year before, the trail which later was Braddock's road and is now the National Road.

Washington had with him an annoyance in a company of British regulars from South Carolina under Captain McKay who, with a royal commission, declined to receive any order from a lieutenant-colonel with a colony commission, and his men refused to do any road making, which irritated the hard-working Colonial soldiers almost to insurbordination.

Colonel Fry, hurrying to get to his command, fell from his horse at Wills Creek and was killed. Washington had all the responsibility, although he did not want it, saying that he was inexperienced. The regular army captain did as he pleased. The Colonial officers wanted to go home. The enlisted men wanted rum to carry them through their hard work and the wading of streams, and the number of the enemy was reported to be overwhelming.

Even if it were the future Washington, at 22, the task was great. The decision was to push ahead over the mountains and through the wilderness and build a fort at Redstone Creek, near the present Brownsville, Pa., and hold it until supplies and more men could be sent in.

The Colonials, with the company of British regulars, penetrated to a spot between the present Stone House and Farmington on the National Road, beyond Grantsville. There was some rolling meadow land, and there Washington decided to build a fort to fall back on if the French appeared in overpowering numbers. It is conceded that in his inexperience he selected a bad place, and that his men would have been better in the brush than inclosed in any stockade.

The monument which is by the roadside now calls attention to the fort site, which is 300 yards distant and is itself marked by a tablet. On down the road is Braddock's grave and monument, a memento of the following year's disaster.

Washington's Indian scouts had brought him word of a French party in the vicinity. Their traces had been found and they obviously were tracking the expedition, spying on it and noting its progress.

With Indian trackers and forty men Washington started out to deal with this French force. It was raining and his Indians at last brought him off the trail beyond Laurel Hill to an overhang of rocks under which the French were taking shelter.

Their arms were stacked. The two parties were thus popped into each other's view, neither knowing what the immediate intent of the other was. The French naturalily jumped for their arms. The English immediately fired. The French returned the fire, killed one Colonial and wounded others, but the little engagement was over in fifteen minutes and the living French were prisoners.

Among their dead was a gallant young Frenchman, the commander, M. De Jumonville, of a seigneural Canadian family.

He had double instructions from Contrecoeur, the commander at the Forks. One was to scout the advancing army and report their numbers and movements. The other was the utterly contradictory order to deliver a message to the English commander. The letter was found on his body. As an ambassador he had thirty-six armed men. As a scout he had a letter.

An older and more experienced soldier than the 22-year-old lieutenant-colonel of Virginia militia might not have been so quick on the trigger. He might have seen that his men had the French covered, and even as they sprang for their arms have given them an opportunity to surrender, but Washington's experience had filled him with distrust. He did not take chances.

Later it was Jumonville's brother who led the French against Washington when he tried to hold his poor Fort Necessity against the superior numbers which had driven him within his makeshift fortifications. An all-day rain made defenders and attackers miserable through the fight. At night he French offered a parley, which Washington of necessity accepted.

The French wrote out the terms of surrender. Van Braam translated them. There was a great wind blowing and one candle, with difficulty shielded against the blasts, by which to read the articles. The English were to go home and not to serve again for a year.

Van Braam stumbled over one stipulation, and whether in precaution or in error, mistranslated it. It was the acknowledgment of Colonel Washington that he had "assassinated" Jumonville. Van Braam, by the wavering candle light, read an acknowledgment that Jumonville had been killed in a fight and Washington signed it as it had been interpreted to him.

His own dairy and other papers were taken by the French. The articles of surrender, with the apparently authenticated confession of assassination, were published in Paris and circulated throughout Europe to prove the French contention that the English, with whom they were at peace, were warring upon them in America with savage barbarities. Washington was an assassin and this was his atrocity.

In all the barbarities of French, English and Indian war in America, wars already of record and wars yet to come, this episode with the French under the overhanging rock beyond Laurel Hill was a trivial episode in which the English had the jump and shot first. Washington's Indians scalped the dead. They always did and generally got a price for the scalp. But it had its propaganding value as an atracity and was so used.

Washington returned to Virginia, defeated, dejected and more than half convinced that if a military career had been opening to him, as he desired, it was forever closed on the spot of Fort Necessity in the Pennsylvania mountains.

TAKE NO CHANCES

There is But One Preventive Against Rabies.

Commenting on the death that occurred recently in Baltimore from the effects of the bite of a rabid dog, Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, said: "There is just one preventive against rabies, as the disease which follows injury by a rabid dog is called, and that is the Pasteur treatment. The treatment requires twenty-one inoculations, one each day for twenty-one days. If the treatment is not given, the disease is inevitably fatal. The old name for it—hydrophobia—meaning fear of water, comes from the horrible spasms of the throat which accompany it and which are aggravated by the sight of water or food or anything that suggests the sensation of swallowing.

"The man who died recently did not have the Pasteur treatment. He was bitten by a dog that was acting suspiciously. His wound was dressed, but he made no further effort to be protected from the horrible disease from which a mad dog suffers and which is passed on to the victim that is bitten.

"In the thirty years since the Pasteur treatments were started in Maryland—back in 1898—approximately 1500 people have been given the protective treatments against this dreadful disease. Among those treated there have been less than five deaths. Each of these occurred because the treatments were started too late.

"An unnecessary and preventable disease like the one that occurred recently serves as a terrible warning. The person who is bitten or otherwise injured by a mad animal or by one that is acting suspiciously should apply at once for the Pasteur treatment. If the animal was not killed and was placed under the care of the nearest veterinarian or of the State Department of Agriculture—which is what should be done—a few days under such care will show whether the animal is normal and can be released. If the animal is not mad, there is no need for further treatments. If the animal was killed, tests made at the State laboratory will show whether or not the creature was mad and will determine whether or not the treatments should be continued until the full number have been given.

"There has been a steady increase from year to year in the number of people who have been bitten by mad or vicious animals, probably due to the carelessness of the owners in allowing dogs to run at large and to the great number of stray, ownerless, dogs. Since the first of the current year, over 100 persons who had been bitten or otherwise injured by the rabid animals have been given the Pasteur treatment and have been protected from rabies. Of that number 53 were treated by Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, chief of the Pasteur Division of the State Department of Health, and the rest by their own physicians."

DUPLICATES OF HUNTERS' LICENSES NOT TO BE HAD

Conservation Department Officer Issues Annual Warning.

Every year as the hunting season opens, the Conservation Department receives inquiries from persons claiming to have lost their hunting licenses and requesting a duplicate.

Chapter 568, Acts of 1927, provides: "Hunting licenses shall be issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the counties and the Clerk of Court of Common Pleas, Baltimore City, and shall be countersigned by the clerk issuing the same as well as the State Game Warden," therefore the law does not provide for duplicate licenses and it would be impossible for the department to supply the same.

Each year approximately 75,000 hunting licenses are issued, and to make a duplication of this number would be impossible from a financial standpoint.

Each license is numbered and of course, the duplicate would have to correspond with the number of the original. Persons losing their hunting licenses are required by law to secure another. The law requires each persons hunting game protected by law to have a hunting license in possession and tag displayed on outer garment between shoulders. However, persons losing the tag may procure a piece of white cotton duck and paint thereon the year, whether a non-resident, State-wide or county resident license, and the number, and use that in place of the lost tag.

Persons found hunting without the proper license in possession and the tag displayed, will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law by the wardens, who have received explicit instructions from the department to that effect.

BUICK for 1928

When Buick improves upon Buick —the standard for the year is set

Buick for 1928 introduces a higher standard of beauty and luxury than the world has ever known. Buick interiors are as modish as exquisite drawing-rooms—as harmoniously colored—and as comfortable. Buick's new Fisher bodies are low-swung without any loss of head-room or road-clearance.

And so, down to the smallest detail of construction, wherever refinements could be made, Buick has made them. Again Buick has improved upon Buick. Again the standard for the year is set.

WHITE WAY PROPOSITION DEFEATED FRIDAY NIGHT

Additional Lights Authorized to Be Installed by Council—Will Improve Second Street

Oakland's opportunity for a "White Way" along the main streets of the downtown section was defeated Friday night at the meeting of the Mayor and Town Council when only one of the councilmen voted in favor of the proposition. In its place, however, five additional lights were authorized to be placed in conspicuous places along the main thoroughfares and in the residential sections, it was stated yesterday by Mayor Lawrence Fraley.

The agitation for a "White Way" was started about two months ago, when Charles Snyder, a representative of the West Penn System, offered to supply the necessary equipment free of charge, install it and therefore the only expense that the town would have to meet being the extra charge attached to the lighting bill. It was felt at the time that the ehances were good for establishing the new lighting arrangement, but since that time some members of Council have been more or less opposed to the innovation.

To Improve Second Street.

Second street, from Oak to Water street, will be improved with the same material that has been used on other streets of the town, the Council decided. This will make Second street the only entirely improved thoroughfare for its entire length in town.

Other matters claiming the attention of Council at its meeting was the passing upon of the monthly pay roll and discussing of minor public matters.

The next regular meeting of Council will be held on Monday, October 3.

Various demonstrations of what club members learn will be shown by the Maryland 4-H club members before the crowds attending the exposition. One feature will be a demonstration in frying chicken Maryland style staged by the club girls. Methods of fattening poultry and of cleaning and proparing the fowls for frying will be demonstrated by the boys.

Another demonstration that will be put on by request will be staged by Dorothy Hutson and Ruth Judy, of Allegany county. These two club members will show how correct posture affects health and recently won a silver cup presented by the Rural Women's Clubs of Maryland in a contest held at the University of Maryland during Club Week.

Garrett county will be represented by Dorothy Stevenson and Dorothy Welch, of Mountain Lake Park, who will give a bread demonstration. Two years ago Garrett county sent Miss Alverta Miller, of Grantsville, to the camp.

Machine Upsets When It Runs Over Embankment Near Town

Mrs. C. S. Wood, Mountain Lake Park, and Miss Ruth Weaver, Morgantown, West Va., both had their collarbones broken, and Stanley Wood, youger son of Mr. and Mrs. Wood, had his arm and chest severely injured when the lights of the car in which they were riding suddenly went out and the car turned over. The accident occured in a lane leading from the State road near the home of H. W. Kahl, adjoining town, to the old Bishop farm, last Friday night about ten o'clock.

The driver of the car, young Wood, was unfamiliar with the road and when his lights went out he was unable to bring the car to a stop before it ran over a steep embankment, turning the machine completely over and pinning him beneath the steering gear. The boy's younger brother, who was on the back of the truck, jumped clear of the wreckage.

Mrs. Wood and Miss Weaver sustained their injuries when they were thrown bodily from the machine as it upset.

The two women and the young man were taken into the home of Harry Hershman, in front of whose residence the accident took place and Dr. N. I. Broadwater was summoned, who rendered them surgical aid. They were later removed to the home of Mrs. Woods at Mountain Lake Park.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOLS INCREASES DURING WEEK

Oakland High School Enrollment Is Raised From 274 to 283—Grammar Increases to 248

One week has seen the enrollment of both the Oakland High and Grammar schools increase, the High School raising its number from 274 to 283, while the Grammar School has increased from 233 to 248, with the expectation of more students being enrolled within the next few days.

The Oakland High School, which was more than overcrowded last week, is now "sticking the students into corners and down in the furnace room," according to Miss Katherine Conley, principal of the school.

Mrs. Julius Littman, of Oakland, is assisting as a substitute teacher until a permanent instructor can be found. The enrollment was found to be so large at the opening of the term that another teacher will be necessary to give attention to the student body.

Grammar School May Get Another Teacher.

If the Oakland Grammar school has an average attendance of 241, another teacher, under the provisions of the school law, will be employed. This number in attendance was reached yesterday morning, it was stated by school authorities. On Tuesday there were 240 present and 6 absent.

With 241 present yesterday morning there were 7 absent from their classes.

Enrollment at Parochial School Increases.

One more grade, the eighth, has been added to the school this year, four instructors taking care of all the work. Students attend this school from Terra Alta, W. Va., Hutton, Loch Lynn, Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park and Oakland.

"BUSINESS MEN'S DAY" TO OPEN THE COUNTY FAIR

Four-Day Celebration and Exhibition To Be Ushered In On Tuesday, September 20.

Business Men's Day, September 20, the first day of the Garrett County Fair, will usher in what is now predicted to be the largest fair in the history of the county, if present indications can be accepted as a standard of judgment. During the morning of the twentieth, all the exhibits will be taken to the exhibition building and then everything will be in readiness for the Business Men's parade at 1:30 to open the four days' celebration.

All Stores to Close.

All business houses and stores will close at 12:00 o'clock noon on the first day of the Fair, and all persons interested in making the parade a success are expected to be in the formation not later than 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The first day, which has been given over to the business and professional men, will officially begin when the parade starts at 1:30.

The Line of March

The parade will form on Oak street east of Third street, and will cover all of that street to the beginning of the Mountain Lake Park road, if necessary, it was said by the managing committee of the day's activities. The parade will then get under way and traverse Third street to Alder; Alder street to Second; Second street to Liberty, and thence west on Liberty street to the Fair grounds.

It is urged by the committee in charge of the first day that every business house in town close at the appointed time and if they are not represented in the parade for the business men to follow it out to the grounds.

Approximately sixty floats have been promised for the parade, and a card will be sent to each business firm reminding them what is expected of them in helping to make the fair a success.

Pardes Each Day.

There will be a parde each day of the Fair, the second day being given over to the school children of the county. Many schools from all over the county will be present in this parade. Special prizes are offered on this day for floats depicting health.

The third day will be given over to the farmers of the county, and Alvey Martin, manager of the Fair, has said that he wants to see every farmer of Garrett in Oakland on that day to partake and join in their own celebration. "A farmer's day without all the farmers of the county taking part," he said, "would not be a real farmer's day."

It has been specially requested that all the farmers arrange their work on that day so that they can all attend.

All special premiums, as advertised, will be awarded the winners on this date.

Community Auction Sale

The fourth and last day will be "Automobile and Community Sales Day." There will be a street parade, showing new automobiles, demonstrating their performance, and at one o'clock a community sale will be held on the Fair grounds. Anyone who has anything to sell may bring it to the Fair on that day and have it auctioned to the highest bidder. At four o'clock the wrist watch and living room suite will be awarded.

Metropolitan Shows.

The Metropolitan Shows, consisting of six shows and three rides, will replace the A. H. Herman Checker Show which was to have been here.

Building In Sanitary Condition.

The floors of the buildings have all been scrubbed and made ready for occupancy, according to Manager Martin, and all windows in the exhibit building have been cleaned, making the place attractive. As a consequence farm products, fruits and domestic articles will be shown to greater advantage and will be in large abundance.

May Show Dairy Refrigerator.

J. L. McGlone, County Agent, is endeavoring to get in touch with John P. Dugan, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in regard to bringing a refrigerator car to the siding near the Fairgrounds, such as is used in the shipping of milk and cream. This would be on exhibit throughout the four days at the Fair near the Standard oil tanks close to the grounds. No definite arrangements have as yet been made, however.

School Activities.

The Maple Land Agriculture Club and the Junior Cow Testing Association of the Agricultural Department of the High School, were revived and will be operated this year along the same lines as last. These organizations were brought into being under the guidance of Prof. M. W. Whiteford, who was instructor in agriculture during the past two years. Emerson Bishoff, the instructor this year, is getting his department into shape for a good year's work.

The Grantsville High School Athletic Association was organized last week, electing the following officers: Casper Loechel, president; Allen Baker, secretary-treasurer; Ralph Younkin, Leroy Shumaker and Clyde Dahlgren, managing committee. Prof. J. E. Ford is the faculty advisor, while Ira M. Staley and Frank Getty are the coaches. A soccer team is being put in shape and other winter and spring sports will be promoted by the association.

Mr. H. T. Johnson, who has been ticket agent at Deer Park Hotel for the B. & O. Railroad this summer, visited his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson here for several days. He will take up his duties in the Cumberland office upon his return to that city.

Calvin Herring Killed.

News received here late Tuesday night from Uniontown, Pa., by U. G. Wiley, was that Calvin Herring was killed and his wife was rendered unconscious in what is supposedly an automobile wreck. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Herring had been to Hazelton, W. Va., where they own a stock farm, therefore an auto wreck is believed to be responsible for the fatality. Mrs. Herring is a daughter of U. G. Wilev, also a sister of Mrs. Ira Wright. The Herrings lived at Mt. Braddock, Pa., where Mr. Wiley, Chester Herring, of Salisbury, brother of the dead man, and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wright immediately went to render what aid they could to the stricken family. There are several small children.

Girls' Athletic Association.

The Girls' Athletic Association of G. H. S. was organized last week by electing Mary Martha Miller, president; Dorothy Edwards, vice-president; Mildred Michael, secretary. The aim of the association is to promote a greater interest in athletics among the girls of the school.

Mrs. H. P. Miller has returned home from Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, where she was a patient for a month following a serious operation. Her condition is favorable to complete recovery.

TO SHOW SIGNAL DEVICES AT CENTENARY EXHIBITION

First Signal Used In 1834 To Be In The Display at Baltimore

A comprehensive display of railway signaling devices since the first signal of 1834 will be among the exhibits in the Hall of Transportation at the Fair of the Iron Horse, Centenary Exhibition and Pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Baltimore, from September 24 to October 8.

The Union Switch and Signal Company and the General Railway Signal Company are contributing this exhibit, the first exposition of the progress made in the development of means for safeguarding and expediting the movements of trains by signals.

Occupying nearly 1,000 square feet of space in the Hall of Transportation the signal display includes drawings and photographs artistically colored, illustrating in chronological order the development of signaling from the crude design of 1834 to the higher perfected instruments of the present day. These illustrations are mounted on ninety large panels arranged in a double row one hundred feet in length.

Full size signals are also shown in operation representing the four types of present-day devices—the semaphore and the three "daylight" light signals, color light, the position light and the color position light. In addition, full size highway crossing signals, "the life-savers of the highways," will be demonstrated by the flashing-light and wig-wag types.

The set of illustrations, grouped under thirteen divisions, will cover in great detail the various methods used in the controlling of trains by signals. Among these will be a historical sketch, in pictures, of signals of fixed location indicating a condition affecting the movements of a train. The purpose of fixed signals is to convey information to the engineman for the government of his train, showing when, where and how to go, and when and where to stop.

Train dispatching or directing and supervising the movements of trains upon which transportation efficiency so largely depends, will also be demonstrated by photographs.

Other panels will show the automatic block system, mechanical interlocking—an arrangement of switch and signal appliances so inter-connected that their movements must succeed one another in order to provide a safe path for the movement of trains through switches, junctions, drawbridges, etc. Electro-pneumatic interlocking will also be shown.

Car retarders, another type of the safety device, will be exhibited in pictures. These retarders are power-operated track brakes applied to the tracks of freight classification yards to control the speed of freight cars entering these tracks by gravity. The track brakes reduce the speed of the cars so that they come to a stop without damage to the cars or to their contents. By speeding up the work of classifying freight cars, the retarders tend to eliminate delays, expediting freight traffic.

WANTED—WANTERS.

Numerous people of Garrett county have remarked at some time or other in the past few weeks about the success of the Cumberland Fair.

They have looked, some with envy, at the success of Garrett county's neighbor and sighed, wishing that such success might also be had for the fairs at Oakland. They are the kind of people whom Mr. Burruss, in his address last Thursday night, described as wishers, the kind of people who never got anywhere. They wished for things and were content with the wishing.

These same people who wished for Garrett county's fairs to be as successful as the fairs in Allegany county could just as easily be what Mr. Burruss termed as "wanters," the kind of people who wanted things and usually got them. They got what they wanted by going after it.

The Garrett County Fair doesn't need wishers, but it does need wanters—wanters who will help in making the Eleventh Annual Garrett County Fair bigger than any of the other ten, and these people are going to have an opportunity to prove that they are wanters and not wishers.

There is nothing that creates a better impression and morale than a "real" parade to start things moving. A parade is nothing more than an expression of your thoughts—it shows whether you are behind the Garrett County Fair to the extent that you are actively engaged in helping it out, or whether your interest is just passive.

One can not be passive in his devotion to a thing or creature. So now the Garrett county people must either be sufficiently interested in the success of the Fair to actively participate or not be interested at all.

Each day of the Fair different groups of people will have an opportunity to show their active interest.

The first day, the business men of the community; the second day, the school children of the county; the third day, the farmers, and the fourth day, everybody.

The Republican believes that the business men are going to be behind the Fair more actively this year than ever before; it believes that the public school children and the farmers, the backbone of the nation, are going to be the same way.

They can't help it if they get into the swing of things and stop being wishers.

What this county wants is wanters!

SERVICE.

A remarkable international pilgrimage is just beginning. Every ship weighing anchor from an Atlantic port is booked to the limit. Each day the movement is gaining momentum. Extra vessels are being pressed into service. All are crowded to the gunwale with men, wearing straw hats, embarking upon a sacred pilgrimage to France.

Exactly ten years ago these same men, with many more besides, wearing tin hats, were embarking upon a more sacred, more momentous pilgrimage to Europe. The Big Parade was just getting under way, an interminable procession, across the wind-swept ocean, through fire-swept France, into the shell-sprayed trenches, out into pock-marked No-Man's Land.

That is why, today, 15,000 members of the American Legion are going back to France for a reunion, exactly one decade after the appearance of the A. E. F. on French soil—15,000 pilgrims who will receive a boisterous welcome from the French people, and a silent, yet more eloquent welcome from 77,771 buddies who lie where they fell, where their blood has reddened the poppies of Flander's fields.

Voiceless they are, yet these silent legions are thundering a message in the deaf ears of the world—a message which will damn the world if it refuses to heed—a message which will redeem the world if only the world will listen. "Service men" we call these lads, and the message which they are preaching to us today by their own heroic example is the message of SERVICE—service which goes the length of utter self-sacrifice, service which pays the last full measure of devotion. Farther than eye can see, the little crosses stand at attention, regiment after regiment, across the rolling fields; day after day they are speaking to those who have ears to hear: "He that saveth his life shall lose it, but he that loseth his life for God and humanity shall save it."

BITTINGER.

Misses Nettie Goodwin and Ercelle Giles, both of Virginia, are teachers in charge of our village school. These ladies are comfortably quartered in the Lutheran parsonage in this village and with a very good opening attendance in the school we predict for them a pleasant and successful school term in our midst.

While operating one of the steam rollers belonging to the county a few days ago Clark Brenneman, of this village, had a very narrow escape with his life. While descending the slope of Meadow Mountain, on the National Highway near the Stone House Farm, the engine got beyond the control of Mr. Brenneman, but with great presence of mind, after seeing that he could not recover control of the machine, Mr. Brenneman selected a favorable spot along the roadway and turned the engine into the woods and jumped off. The machinue ran some distance from the road and striking a heap of boulders stopped without being very greatly damaged, and the driver also escaped uninjured.

Morris Beachy is operating a bus between this village and Accident for the purpose of transporting high school students to the Accident school. Last week his passengers numbered twelve daily and this week we understand the number will be somewhat increased.

Prof. Scrogum, of the Accident high school, was in this village last Saturday endeavoring to interest parents in sending their children to the Accident high school.

Miss Ruth Emory, of this village, entered the Frostburg State Normal School this week where she will take a training course.

Messrs. Edward Buckle, Lawrence Buckle, Harbert Buckle, Carl Bittinger and Oswald Georg left here Sunday afternoon for Martinsburg, West Va., where they will be employed in an orchard located near that city.

The survivors of the Samuel Slabach family met at the Slabach homestead near this village last Sunday and spent a very pleasant afternoon.

Peter Opel has purchased a new threshing outfit and is now starting out for the fall threshing. It is reported that the new machine does splendid work.

Carl Sines Arrested and Fined

Carl Sines, arrested Monday night for having neither his automobile operator's card nor his registration card, was given a hearing Tuesday before Justice W. A. Gonder. He pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $1 and costs for each offense, which he paid and was discharged.

ESCAPES DEATH WHEN PLANE IS FORCED DOWN

Patrick H. Hughes, of Ocean, Allegany county, had the thrill of a lifetime Saturday riding the pilot's seat of a Waco eight cylinder airplane, driven by Captain Jack Evans, from Bridgeport, Ohio, to Keyser's Ridge, on the National Highway, at which point they were forced to make a landing on account of rain and fog.

Their destination was Frostburg, twenty miles east of the landing place, but weather conditions would not permit flying farther than Negro Mountain, a few miles east of Keyser's Ridge, and after dropping within 500 feet of the ground they circled for half an hour before a safe landing site could be found. The plane finally made a successful descent on the field immediately in the rear of Keyser's Ridge Garage located at the intersection of the National Highway and the State road from Oakland.

Mr. Hughes, who had been visiting his brother, T. R. Hughes, Bridgeport, a retired cigarette manufacturer, and his nephew, Lieut. Lloyd F. Hughes, Yorkville, Ohio, on deciding to return to his home at Ocean was invited by the former to make the trip by airplane and consequently, Saturday morning at 8:00 o'clock Capt. Evans hopped off at the Yorkville landing field with Mr. Hughes as a passenger. They had planned to arrive at Eckhart Flat at 1:00 o'clock.

Fog Causes Halt in Flight

About 20 miles out of Uniontown they encountered a dense fog, visibility being very poor. An effort was made to get over the mountains, but Capt. Evans turned back and landed at the Burgess Feild, near Uniontown, remaining there until 12:30 o'clock. Aviators on the field declared it would be impossible to fly farther as reports on weather conditions between Uniontown and Hagerstown were anything but favorable, dense fog and rain existing over the entire route. Despite this warning, Capt. Evans and Mr. Hughes stepped into the plane and started over the fog-enveloped mountains. Eleven miles out of Uniontown the plane hit an air pocket at an altitude of about 2800 feet, dropping the plane for a distance of 300 feet. Capt. Evans, however, righted the plane and they continued, the fog becoming denser on their easterly course. In the vicinity of Negro Mountain the fog became so dense and the rain so hard that flying became hazardous and Capt. Evans turned his plane towards Keyser's Ridge, and after manouvering for over half an hour in an endeavor to find a safe place to land sailed gracefully into the large emergency field in the rear of the Keyser Ridge Garage. Mr. Hughes continued to Frostburg by automobile, leaving Capt. Evans to await better weather.

In relating his experience Mr. Hughes stated that the fog was so dense beyond Uniontown that it was impossible to see the driver and that when the plane hit the air pocket he thought the end had come.

besides being enjoyable, is beneficial, as it gives one an understanding of the other fellow's problems, thereby making him better fitted to solve his own problems. This makes for mutual prosperity.

"SOUND BANKING AND FRIENDLY INTEREST."

PERSONAL AND LOCAL NOTES OF INTEREST

Anybody can criticise. The world is looking for the man who knows the better way.

It makes no difference whether the prospect is on a paved road or a rough field, advertising will reach him.

Goodwill is the disposition of the pleased customer to return to the place where he has been well treated.

County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun made an official visit to the high and grammar schools at Friendsville on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. James Morris and daughter Miss Louise Morris, who visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, returned to Pittsburgh on Saturday morning.

Making no effort, by study, research, experiment, to become better equipped to meet conditions tomorrow and the day after is not good business.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smallwood, of Clarksburg, West Va., who were visiting Mrs. Belle Cropp near town for a week, have returned to their home.

After a man gets done blaming circumstances, he might ask himself how many of them he invited or half-created.

To expect worthwhile results from one piece of advertising is as unreasonable as expecting results from a salesman hired for one trip over a new territory.

Dr. Harriet B. Jones, of Wheeling, West Va., is here as a guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Scott T. Jones, Dr. Jones having arrived in Oakland on Saturday morning.

Is the world growing better or worse? The Rev. W. B. Brock, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will give his answer to this age-old question in his sermon next Sunday morning.

Messrs. George and Judson Loar and their sister Miss Lottie Loar returned to Oakland Friday afternoon from a motor trip which took them through the Valley of Virginia and to the Natural Bridge.

Miss Mary Rebecca Thayer, who spent the summer in Oakland with her father, Mr. Fred. A. Thayer, has returned to Wooster, Ohio, where she is engaged as professor of English in the university located in that city.

W. S. Haddock, who has owned the Loch Lynn Hotel acreage for the past three years, has just completed the painting and otherwise improving of the Casino building on the hotel property which houses the swimming pool.

Rev. David M. Funk, of Morgantown, drove to Oakland Friday, returning to Morgantown Saturday afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Funk and their two children, who had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John O. Thayer for a week or more.

Mr. and Mrs. Harland L. Jones left Oakland by motor last Wednesday morning for points in Ohio and Indiana. In a city of the latter State they will be guests of Mr. Jones's aunt, Mrs. Cora Rinard. They will be absent from town for two weeks or more.

The printing and binding of the catalogue for the Garrett County Fair has been completed at The Republican printery and mailed out to many people throughout the county and in adjoining counties of Maryland and of West Virginia. The catalogue contains more than a hundred pages and the issue was 1800 copies.

Rev. A. J. Torrey, of Logan, West Va., is here for a visit of a week to his numerous friends. Reverend Torrey was former Episcopal rector of St. Matthew's parish and was the first Scoutmaster of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, which he was instrumental in forming and holding intact for two or three years, and which today, as a local organization, the people of Oakland are justly proud.

Mrs. F. E. Rathbun left Oakland Monday evening for Cincinnati, O., where she went to attend the wedding of her brother, Mr. Paul Kemp, and Miss Mildred Barr, of Cincinnati, the ceremony occurring yesterday evening at eight o'clock at the Cincinnati Club, followed by a reception. The groom is engaged in the insurance business in Cincinnati and has been quite successful.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Grant Smith, of Grafton, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, of Morgantown, W. Va., were in Oakland Monday en route to their homes from a visit of a week to Baltimore and New York. Mr. Smith, a number of years ago, was an employe in The Republican office, going from here to Grafton where he entered upon business for himself. At present he is superintendent of the printing department at the State Reform School located at Pruntytown, West Va.

Mrs. Rhoda David, of Sebring, Fla., is in Garrett county for a visit to relatives and friends.

Special premiums will be awarded on Farmer's Day. Everybody should be at the Fair grounds on that day.

Mrs. John Ault returned to her home on Monday from a visit of a few days with relatives in Ohio Pyle, Pa.

Prof. R. X. Day and family, of Frostburg, spent Sunday in Oakland visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Ault and family.

Mrs. Etta Boyer, of Fairmont, W. Va., is here visiting her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinebaugh, and other relatives and friends.

"School Day," the second day of the Fair, will have many of the Garrett county schools represented. Will your children be in the parade.

Mr. Herman Englehart has returned to his home in Oakland from a Baltimore hospital where he received medical treatment during the past several weeks.

Every farmer should be in town on "Farmer's Day," the third day of the Fair. They should, if possible, arrange their work so that they may be in Oakland the entire day.

If the business men are to be well represented in the parade, each business house should have some kind of float in the Business Men's Day parade the first day of the Fair.

Miss Elizabeth Stemple, who has been in the Meriden Hospital at Meriden, Conn., for the past year or more, is spending some time here with her mother, Mrs. S. B. Stemple, and other relatives.

Miss Rhesa M. King, County Health Nurse, will go to Baltimore tomorrow morning, taking with her a youth who is mentally deficient and place him in one of the State's training schools in that city.

If you have anything you want to sell, bring it to the Fair grounds on the last day of the Fair. There will be an auction sale beginning at one o'clock and will continue until everything is sold.

Mr. A. R. Martin, general manager of the Garrett County Fair, visited the neighboring town of Terra Alta yesterday where he met hundreds of people attending the E. S. Evans sale and advertised largely the coming fair by the distribution of catalogues and conversation with his friends.

Miss Louise Finan, of Cumberland, and her guest, Miss Roma O'Hanlon, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Albert Wolfe, Parkersburg, West Va., were guests over the week-end of Gilmor S. Hamill 3d.

George W. Diefenbach, the live-wire Grantsville correspondent of The Republican, accompanied by his father, Mr. L. H. Diefenbach, also of Grantsville, visited Oakland on business Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Crane, of Kingwood, were visiting relatives in Oakland yesterday, going from here last night to Washington, D C., where they will spend a few days before returning to their home.

Miss Ada V. Leighton, of Chehalis, Washington, is in Oakland visiting relatives. Miss Leighton had been at at the home of her brother, Mr. H. V. Leighton, at Loch Lynn, before coming to Oakland where she will remain during the present month.

Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Wicker, of Wilmington, Del., after spending the summer in Oakland with Mrs. Wicker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Ashby, left on Wednesday for their home where both are employed as instructors in the schools of that city.

Mrs. Walter Stevens was hostess on Tuesday evening at a surprise birthday party given in honor of her sister, Mrs. Eleanor Hoye at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Hinebaugh on Oak street. Quite a number of friends were present and delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. John G. Robinson and two grandchildren, of Gettysburg, Pa., who were here for several weeks and where Mrs. Robinson was recuperating following a severe surgical operation and visiting her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinebaugh, returned to Gettysburg Monday morning.

Registration at the University of Maryland at College Park will begin next Monday. Freshmen will register on Monday and Tuesday with the old students getting into line on Wednesday. Classes will begin on Thursday, the 22nd. There will be close to 400 in the Freshman class, which will match, if not exceed, last year's record enrollment of first year students.

The women of St. Mark's Lutheran church will again conduct a lunch stand and booth at the Garrett County Fair, which will be located just opposite the exhibition building. They will have on sale soup, fried chicken, all kinds of sandwiches, crullers, cakes, pies, ice cream and good "Maxwell House" coffee, made by the "Maxwell House Coffee" man. Patronize the eating stand and get a good home-cooked lunch at a reasonable price.

Mrs. Alfred E. Turner and her sister, Miss Brown, of Honolulu, H. I., who spent the summer in Oakland, left here on Wednesday night of last week for Los Angeles, Cal., in which city they will spend a month with their nephew before going on to their home. Mrs. Turner and Miss Brown arrived here from a tour of Europe and a trip up the Nile early in the summer and remained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis until their recent departure.

Another surprise was offered in the Presbyterian Bible School here Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. W. B. Brock, when he introduced a large new scale relief map of Palestine showing every mountain and valley. When one looks at this relief map, he sees the Holy Land exactly as it appears to an aviator flying over the country. He sees the mountains of Judea standing out above the Plain of Sharon, the Jordan Valley and the Dead Sea far below sea-level. He gets a literal bird's-eye view of the land where the Savior of the world lived. Every Sunday morning at ten o'clock Mr. Brock takes the Bible school upon a trip to Palestine, using a new type of stereopticon lantern which projects pictures perfectly visible in full daylight.

Shaffer Family Reunion Held

The third annual reunion of the descendants of John D. and Catharine E. Shaffer, deceased, was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Shaffer, at Horse Shoe Run, W. Va., September 4th. Court House Will Soon Appear As Of Old

Before very long the Garrett County Court House and the well kept beautifully proportioned lawn surrounding it will present an exact picture of their former self, with the possible exception of the retaining walls, which are expected to surpass in appearance and beauty their former attractiveness. The Garrett County Jail will also take on a new appearance before the contractors have finished with their sand blowing machine.

The work of improving the appearance of the public buildings was begun several weeks ago when J. W. Whorton, local contractor, with a force of workmen, commenced to repair the retaining walls about the building and the steps leading from the steet to the structure. Repairs were made where necessary and later the concrete work as an entirety was gone over with a specially prepared white cement and then stuccoed, which has been said by many to improve the appearance of the surrounding very materially. About two more weeks will be necessary before the concrete work is completed.

Sand Blasting the Exterior.

The work of sand blasting the brick and stone work of the Court House was started one day last week, and gradually the building is beginning to take on a new appearance, looking as it did just after its completion in 1905. According to those in charge of this part of the work, six weeks will be necessary to complete the cleaning of the brick and stone of the Court House, following which the County Jail will receive attention.

In the meantime while this is being done, workmen will be on the Court House roof with a special preparation that will remove the grime and erosion from the copper roof and once again it will reflect the sunlight and be able to be observed as far as the eye can reach.

It is more than likely that the great American eagle surmounting the topmost point on the dome of the stately building will be given a thorough cleansing, its first in twenty-two years.

This picture of its former self will be enhanced by the lawn surrounding the building, which has been said by prominent men of the State to be the best kept public building lawn in the entire State. The custodian of the "green", Oscar Notes, said yesterday morning that he had been following the workmen on their rounds and as soon as one portion of the walls had been completed he immediately started in to restore the beauty of the well kept grounds surrounding it.

The wood work—cornices and doorways—is being painted in a color to harmonize with the rest of the building by Messrs. Littman & Hinebaugh, Oakland painters.

Garrett county's Court House has many times before this been characterized as being very picturesque and beautiful by the numerous couples who received their marriage licenses within its portals, and with the completion of the repairs now being made and its restoration to its former attractiveness, many more such complimentary remarks may well be expected.

It Doesn't Pay.

A newspaper man once visited a business man. He talked "shop" and wanted the business man to purchase advertising space in his paper, but the business man was wise and said, "No; advertising doesn't pay."

At the time the business man was wearing a Stetson hat, Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing, Florsheim shoes, B. V. D. underwear, an Ide shirt, Boston garters, Simmons watch chain, Elgin watch, Kum-a-Part cuff links, Holeproof hosiery.

He drove a Buick car, ate Kellogg corn flakes for breakfast, demanded Monarch coffee, punched a Remington typewriter, used Hammermill stationery and shaved with Mennen's cream, using an Auto-Strop razor.

No. 2756 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett county, Maryland, of which Thomas A. Carey died seized and possessed, and to subject the same to the payment of his debts due the plaintiffs and his other creditors, the personal property being insufficient to pay said debts in full, and for an account taken under direction of the Court.

Garvin in the full and just sum of $31.00 on an open account for taxes paid him, a statement thereof filed and marked "Exhibit A," and indebted unto the said Annie R. That the said Thomas A. Carey and has sold the same; a copy of said letters of administration granted on said estate of said Thomas A. Carey filed as a part hereof, marked "Exhibit D."

That the plaintiffs are informed and aver that said personal estate is not sufficient to discharge all the just debts due and owing by said intestate, Thomas A. Carey, at the time of his death; that they are advised the same, now in the hands of the said Hugh Carey McMahon, ought to be applied to the payment of the claims of the plaintiffs and other creditors of the said Thomas A. The Bill prays:—

That upon order of Court passed in the above cause the said heirs of James Carey were made parties defendant; that an order of publication be issued against said non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 13th day of September, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 15th day of October, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court either in person or by solicitor, on or before the 1st day of November next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 12:1-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Prevent Divisions.

The movements leading up to the division of the kingdom had begun in Solomon's reign. He saw in Jeroboam the leader of insurrection and endeavored to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon's death (I Kings 11:40). Having been informed by the prophet Ahijah that he was to have ten tribes over which to rule, as soon as he heard of Solomon's death he returned to be ready to take up his work.

I. The Demand of the People (vv. 1-4).

This was occasioned by the burden of excessive taxation and enforced labor, which was required by Solomon in order to build costly houses and temples for his heathen wives. The people were groaning under its weight. Upon the accession of the new king Rehoboam, the people, through their leader Jeroboam, came with the request that their burdens be made lighter, promising loyalty to him on the condition of lightened burdens.

II. Rehoboam's Foolish Decision (vv. 5-15.)

1. Rehoboam consulted with the old men (vv. 5-7). These were men of experience who had been Solomon's advisers. Being acquainted with the condition as imposed by Solomon, and knowing the temper of the people, they advised that the people's request be granted.

2. Rehoboam consulted the young men (vv. 8-11). These young men had grown up with him, possibly were his half-brothers, sons of Solomon's many wives. Being thus brought up in the luxury of the harem, they were ignorant of the legal right of the people. Therefore they advised that the burdens be increased.

3. Rehoboam followed the advice of the young men (vv. 12-15). At the appointed time he announced his purpose to the people. He even answered them roughly, asserting his purpose to increase their burdens and sorrows. He assumed that it was his right to rule and that it was the people's role to obey regardless of conditions.

III. The Revolt of the Ten Tribes (vv. 16-24).

Upon Rehoboam's announcement of his rash purpose all Israel cried out, "What portion have we in David? . . . to your tents, O Israel."

1. Rehoboam's attempt to collect tribute (vv. 18, 19). As he endeavored to collect tribute from the ten tribes, Adoram, his tribute gatherer, was stoned to death. So violent was the opposition on the part of the people that Rehoboam had to flee to Jerusalem to save his life.

2. Jeroboam made king over Israel (v. 20). They seem to have lost no time in selecting a head so as to be strong in their opposition to Rehoboam.

3. Rehoboam's attempt to compel the ten tribes to return to David (vv. 21-24).

To effect this, he assembled his army of 180,000 men. Through the prophecy of Shemaiah, which forbade them to go against their brethren, they were persuaded to return.

IV. Jeroboam's Scheme to Unify the Ten Tribes (vv. 25-33).

1. He established calf worship (vv. 31-33).

(1) He built houses and high places (v. 31). This was against the direct command of God. God had directed His people to destroy the high places and to break down the idolatrous centers. So we see that Jeroboam, by the demands of his sinful heart, disobeyed God.

(3) He changed the day of the Feast of the Tabernacle (v. 32). The time of this feast was set by the Lord (Lev. 23:33, 34). Jeroboam argued that the change in the time would be better suited to their northern climate, but God, who made the climate ordained the time of the feast. It was his business, therefore, to obey God.

(4) Jeroboam himself intrudes into the priest's office. The act of presumption on his part was the climax of his godless acts, all of which grew out of his wicked heart.

Ceremonies Attended by West Virginia State Officials, Officers of Utility Companies, Industrialists, and Bankers—Function Broadcast by KDKA.

The West Penn Electric System, one of the largest electric properties in the country, dedicated a newly formed lake in West Virginia to public service on Wednesday, September 14. This lake situated on the Cheat River, about 80 miles south of Pittsburgh, has been created by the building of a dam across the Cheat River at Cheat Haven and the erection of a hydro-electric plant at that point.

On this occasion, the utility company not only dedicated the power generated at Lake Lynn to the uses of the public, but also gave to the people of West Virginia and nearby states, the privileges of using the lake for recreational purposes. There are many large hydro-electric developments scattered throughout the United States, but few possess the scenic beauties of Lake Lynn. The lake lies amidst the rugged West Virginia hills, and is within easy motoring distance from Pittsburgh and the large cities of West Virginia.

A Lake Also for Recreation.

Engineering skill has harnessed nature and created 50,000 Kw. of electric energy to turn the wheels of industry, to light homes, and to perform countless useful tasks; and, incidentally, has created a beautiful body of water, on the shores of which, in the years to come, the people may camp and enjoy the pleasures of fishing, swimming and boating. West Virginia is not noted for lakes of any considerable size. The country is mountainous and of rare scenic beauty. The creation of this lake by the West Penn System will supply a long-felt want of the people; and although it has only been completed a short time, thousands have already visited its shores.

In addition to benefiting the citizens of West Virginia by enhancing the vacation possibilities of this part of the state, the power plant, the building of which made possible Lake Lynn, is destined to be an increasing factor in the industrial development of the upper Monongahela and Cheat River valleys. Already decided impetus has been given to the building and introduction of manufacturing establishments along these waterways because of the availability of ample supplies of power. These sources of power are not dependent alone on the Lake Lynn Hydro-Electric Station; for the fact that this hydro plant is an integral part of the West Penn System and is tied in with the steam plants, makes possible an abundant and dependable supply of power.

Supplemented by Mine-mouth Stations.

When drought affects the water supply in the Cheat River, the mine-mouth generating stations at Rivesville and Windsor, West Virginia, and Springdale, Pennsylvania, meet the needs of this rapidly developing industrial section. On the other hand, when rainfall is heavy and Lake Lynn provides maximum quantities of power, its energy is readily utilized wherever needed, with a consequent reduction in the rate of operation of the system's steam plants.

From the point of view of generation of power, the Lake Lynn Hydro-Electric Station has a larger significance than is comprised in the territories served by the West Penn properties. Through inter-connection with neighboring power systems, the West Penn properties are in a position to transmit or receive electric energy as occasion requires. The completion of this hydro-electric project, therefore, has a national significance in that another 50,000 Kw. has been added to the general power plant capacity of the inter-connected electric systems in this section of the country.

On Wednesday at 2:30 P. M. the lake and hydro-electric development were named after the late Albert M. Lynn, president of the West Penn Companies. It was Mr. Lynn's far-sighted judgment many years ago which saw the need for additional power in the territory served by the West Penn properties, and it was he who was in no small measure instrumental in so enlarging the system that The West Penn Electric Company could economically operate a hydro-electric development of this great size. It is largely due to Mr. Lynn's energy and executive ability that the hydro-electric plant and lake are now completed.

Broadcast Exercises

During the exercises, which were broadcast through the Westinghouse radio station KDKA, Governor Gore or West Virginia unveiled a commemorative tablet, formally naming the lake and power plant after Mr. Lynn and dedicating it to the perpetual service and use of the public.

H. Hobart Porter, who for many years was associated with Mr. Lynn as president of the American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., which is the parent organization, also made a brief address. He was preceded by Walter S. Finlay, Jr., president of The West Penn Electric Company, who formally turned over the privileges of the lake and the facilities of this development to Governor Gore of West Virginia.

COMMUNITY BOOTHS

J. L. McGLONE, Superintendent.

1. Exhibits open to Garrett and adjoining counties.
2. The building and arrangement of booths at the Fair must be done by bona fide residents of the community making the exhibits.
3. The Community exhibits will be judged as a whole; products exhibited in a booth cannot compete for general exhibit prizes.
4. The size of booths must be twelve feet long by ten feet deep.
5. All booths must be completed by 12:00 o'clock noon September 20th.
6. All entries must be in place not later than September 20th.

Rules and Suggestions.

1. The exhibits in the booths should include only farm and garden products, either in the original state or preserved. These may include: (1) corn; (2) small grains; (3) hay and forage crops; (4) fruits; (5) potatoes; (6) other vegetables; (7) dairy and meat products, eggs; (8) home canned and preserved goods, bread and cake; (9) bee products; (10) wool, maple products, etc.
2. In order that all products in competitive booth exhibits may be judged on the same basis, each individual exhibit within the booth must be of the same quantity as required for the general exhibit. For example: An exhibit of corn should consist of ten ears; of grain or potatoes, one peck; of apples, a plate of five specimens. Products displayed in any other quantity will be regarded only as part of the decorations.
3. The booth will be judged on the following basis:

Quality	50 per cent
Completeness	20 per cent
Arrangement	25 per cent
Record for the year	5 per cent
Total	100 per cent

Quality—This includes uniformity, trueness to type, maturity and market condition, freedom from insect diseases and mechanical injuries and general appearance of individual products. Flavor, texture and aroma are considered in such products as butter, cheese, honey, pickles, preserves, jellies, ham, bacon, hay and other products.

Completeness—The kinds of farm, garden, orchard and household products shown should represent the economic and agricultural activities of the community. Neither the number of kinds of products nor the number of varieties of particular species of products will compensate for poor quality.

A booth will be considered complete in proportion as it has representative exhibits in each of the following groups: (1) corn; (2) small grains; (3) hay and forage crops; (4) fruits; (5) potatoes; (6) other vegetables; (7) dairy and meat products and eggs; (8) home canned and preserved goods, bread and cake; (9) bee products; (10) wool.

Arrangement—This relates to the artistic grouping of products displayed. As far as possible, similar products should be grouped together, i. e., fruits should be in one place; grains in another; canned goods in another, and so on. Exhibits should be so arranged that all products are easily accessible for judging.

Decorations should not predominate, but should blend with the various commodities exhibited in order that the entire display may present an artistic effect.

The name of the community should be attractively displayed.

PREMIUMS.

First prize	$40.00
Second prize	30.00
Third prize	20.00
Fourth prize	10.00

FARM MACHINERY AND TRADES DISPLAY.

The Association is particularly desirous of having a large and comprehensive display in this department and urges all who are interested in the manufacture and sale of implements and machinery to make as large an exhibit as possible.

Space for exhibits in this department may be had free of cost by making application to the Secretary.

Exhibits must be in place not later than 6:00 p. m., September 19th, and must have name and selling agent attached to each article.

Exhibitors must have a representative present during the Fair, as the Association assumes no responsibility for loss or damage.

RAILROAD AND AUTO INFORMATION

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, through its Passenger Department, has granted a rate of a fare and one-half round trip from points east as far as Cumberland and as far west as Grafton. Early morning trains reach Oakland in time for the opening of the Fair and depart late in the afternoon, affording those who wish to come by rail a splendid opportunity to visit the Fair at small cost. The Fair grounds are located less than one-fourth mile from the B. & O. Station.

The State road leading into Oakland from the North makes it easily accessible from points East or West on the National Highway. People from the South may come by the Northwestern Turnpike which is now completed to a point south of Aurora and Irwin.

The drive can be made either from Cumberland, Md., or Uniontown, Pa., in about two hours and the scenery along this route, at Fair time, is most beautiful and picturesque.

Oakland and Mountain Lake hotels will entertain visitors at Fair time and they are assured of the best accommodations.

Your visit to the Fair will be most profitable and pleasant, and Oakland and Garrett County extends a cordial welcome to all to enjoy this annual event which has become popular with our people and with those from a vast territory about us.

Miss Pauline Smouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Smouse, of Oakland, was awarded a first prize of $10 for having submitted the best resume of the address of Mr. Dulaney, of Baltimore, which he delivered at the Lord's Day Alliance meeting at Mountain Lake Park on August 7.

Any boy or girl of high school age was eligible to compete for the awards. Dr. W. W. Davis, of Baltimore, who is general secretary of the Alliance, was here on Friday and gave the winners their prize money. Dr. Davis while in Oakland announced that he is now working on a program for a Sabbath Day Institute to cover a period of four days to be held next year at Mountain Lake Park in connection with the annual Lord's Day Alliance meeting.

The earth is the Lord's and our possessions are only lent, therefore one-seventh of our time and one-tenth of our income belongs to Him.

Abraham and Jacob rendered their tenth to the rightful owner. Later this law was given to Moses on Mount Sinai, hence it is just as binding and deserving of attention as any of the Ten Commandments.

In the biblical days when the law of the tithe was obeyed, the people prospered, but due to the burden of heavy taxes they became stingy with God's money and were brought to realize their mistake by the ceasing of their prosperity.

God has promised an abundant overflow of blessings to all who pay their tenth, and His promises are never broken, but always contain an "if."

God will give back to us what we give to the poor, and whether our gifts be smiles or dollars we shall receive the same in greater proportion than we give.

Some people wonder why their prayers are not answered. Jesus said, "If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."

This promise will be kept, for our Lord is the same yesterday, today and forever—always desirous to be taken at His word.

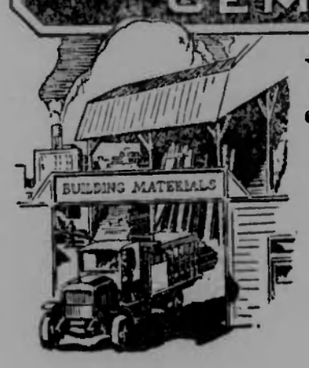
John Kennedy and other worthy men have written of the prosperity which is theirs because they have paid their tenth to God.

John D. Rockefeller, when earning only seventeen dollars a month saved, paid his debts and gave to the Lord. He has reaped his reward and is now using his millions for the benefit of America and humanity.

Fifty-eight years ago, Mr. Dulaney was born again. Eleven years later, even though in debt, he took God at His word and paid his tithe. Today he has no reason to regret this action.

The relating of his experience has caused others to heed the word of God. A Baltimore minister has written telling of the prosperity of his church members, the blessings of his church and the increasing of his salary at the age of seventy-one and again at seventy-six. When Mr. Dulaney told this remarkable incident to a school teacher, she replied that she also had tithed and her salary had been increased when she was sixty-nine years old, and that upon retiring she was provided with an ample pension. This all goes to show that God is waiting to be proven and will stand the test.

We are not compelled to obey His law, but are free to make our choice: to go His way and receive our blessings, or to sin and pay the price.



The saddest picture in the world comes from wrong doing, and is the parable of the lost soul, while the brightest picture is the reward of the man who has trusted God; for it is His intention that His obedient children shall prosper and the wicked shall perish.

Amazing facts reported by FRIGIDAIRE users
Low cost of operation an achievement of FRIGIDAIRE engineering

MANY still regard electric refrigeration as expensive. To prove that this is not true of Frigidaire, we sought the opinion of some 10,000 users.

Saves $105.36 per Year

The answers were startling. They indicated savings even greater than we anticipated. According to carefully tabulated records, an average of $105.36 per year—over and above all operating costs! These amazing economies are due to two things: (1) No ice bills. (2) No food waste.

A Scientific Achievement

Frigidaire represents years of research and development on the part of Frigidaire Engineers, and the Research Department of General Motors—the largest organization of electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers in the world. In Frigidaire modern science has incorporated elements that the exterior of the cabinet can't reveal.

New, Low Prices

To the wealth of evidence in favor of Frigidaire, add the new, low prices—the lowest in Frigidaire history. A complete model with Duco-finished enamel-lined steel cabinet—all ready to attach and operate from any convenient electric outlet—for the amazing price of only $180 f.o.b. Dayton.

Few Dollars Puts It in Your Home

Frigidaire is used each day in the year. The whole family enjoys it. And it pays for itself with the money it saves, as proved by the signed reports of users. Visit our display room and see the new models. A small deposit puts one in your home. Then pay a little each month under liberal General Motors terms. Come in today.

MORE THAN SIXTY FLOATS IN BUSINESS PROCESSION

Largest Parade Ever to Traverse Streets of Oakland Ushers in County Fair

With more than the promised number of floats taking part in the Business Men's parade at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the Eleventh Annual Garrett County Fair was ushered in with what is said to have been the biggest demonstration ever to come down Second street. More than 60 floats of different business houses and concerns of Oakland and vicinity paraded from Oak street to the Fair grounds, extending for a distance of more than a half-mile.

All Stores Close

Practically every business house closed at 12 o'clock and remained closed during the afternoon while many followed the parade to the Fair grounds and viewed the exhibits and enjoyed themselves.

The parade formed on Oak street east of Third street, and traversed Third street to Alder; Alder street to Second; Second street to Center; Center street to Third; Third street to Green; Green street to Liberty and thence to the Fair grounds. Prizes for the best decorated floats were awarded, The Oakland Model Bakery winning first prize, the H. Weber and Sons company, florists, second, and the Oakland Creamery, advertising Imperial ice cream, third. Many other unique and beautiful floats were in the procession.

The buildings of the business and professional men were decorated for the big event, a man having been engaged two weeks ago to make them attractive. This is the first year that the business and professional men of Oakland have taken upon themselves the responsibility of one day of the Fair, and plans for the demonstration were laid several weeks ago. A committee, consisting of Henry Lauer, chairman, Alvy Gortner and W. R. Browning, was chosen by the Business Men's club of Oakland, to see all business men and ask them to put in a float. More floats were entered than were promised, according to the committee, showing that practically everyone caught the spirit of the occasion.

Republican Issues Miniature

The Republican issued a miniature edition consisting of stories about the Fair, Dairying, Business Men's day, 4-H club work, and editorials about the value of having agricultural fairs. Two thousand copies were printed and distributed during the parade at 1:30.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY WILL BE HELD OCTOBER 2

Second Annual County Meeting to Occur in Oakland.

The Second Annual Sunday School Rally and parade will be held in Oakland on Sunday, the second day of October, and a large representation from all the schools in the county is expected.

Those taking part in the parade have been requested to meet at the Oakland grammar school grounds at 1:45 on the afternoon of the second and the parade will get under way at 2:15 and traverse the central part of town over a route to be announced later.

Following the parade a mass meeting will be held in front of the Court House if the day is fair or in the Maryland Theatre in event of bad weather. At this meeting a program of music and addresses will be given, the speakers being Miss Lillian McCormick, Children's Division specialist of Baltimore, who will speak on "Where Christian Citizenship Begins"; Col. Jos. D. Cudlipp, Young People's Superintendent of Maryland, on "Where Christian Citizenship Expresses Itself," and Rev. Maurice R. Hamm, Superintendent of Finance and Organization of the State Association, whose topic will be, "Adult Responsibility for Christian Citizenship."

All the young people of the county are invited to attend this meeting.

Fall Results in Broken Leg.

While engaged in repairing a roof at the home of Mr. W. R. Mearly, in Mountain Lake Park on Wednesday of last week, William P. Pope, 16 years old, employed by S. D. Whipkey, of Oakland, lost his footing and fell to the ground, sustaining a compound fracture of his left ankle. He was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland where Dr. W. A. Gracie rendered surgical attention and where the patient is said to be resting quite comfortably.

CONFERENCE WILL MEET IN OAKLAND ON TUESDAY

About forty ministers and laymen are expected to attend the annual conference of the West Virginia Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America, which will open at St. Mark's Lutheran church on Tuesday evening, September 27th, and conclude Wednesday evening, September 28.

The conference will be opened with a banquet given by the Brotherhood of the local church. Five addresses will be made: Mr. O. C. Wilt, Clarksburg; Root Beachy, Jennings; Wm. Wolfe, Keyser, and J. C. Renninger, Oakland, and Mr. J. C. Lynch, of Wheeling, Addresses to be made on Wednesday morning are "The History, Purpose and Meaning of Lent," Rev. Simon Snyder, Wheeling, and a "Suggested Lenten Program," Rev. C. G. Aurand, Wheeling.

Addresses Wednesday afternoon will be made by Rev. W. P. Clinc, of Fairmont; Rev. C. A. Portz, Wheeling, and Rev. D. M. Funk, Morgantown, followed by an open forum on "Young People's Work," conducted by Rev. A. J. Traver, of Philadelphia, general secretary of the Luther League of America.

A camp fire will be held in the rear of the church on Wednesday evening for the young people when greetings will be brought by Rev. Traver. The general public is invited to share in these services.

Curing Crippled Children.

The story of the crippled child is the saddest in the history of medicine. There are many who never had a chance at measures which might restore them to improved conditions, if not complete normality.

Every handicapped child has a right to help. The time to deal with these cases is in childhood.

Fifty-eight per cent of cripples develop the condition before the age of five; fifteen per cent between the ages of six to fifteen, and twenty-five per cent are born crippled.

Many conditions can be cured in childhood, which cannot be helped in later life. Infantile paralysis causes more than half the cripples. Every child treated should be examined every year or two during the growing period.

Tuberculosis of the bone causes pain in the joints like "growing pains" and many times comes when children are under five years of age.

Club foot should be cared for as early as possible by putting on a cast and changing it every four weeks; the foot must be held in correct position until the child walks. Club foot can be corrected at any time in life.

"Wry neck," or torticollis, results when one muscle is shorter than it should be. This should be corrected before twelve years of age.

A joint that is stiff can frequently be cured and rickets can be cured by dict, cod liver oil being of special benefit.

No one should feel ashamed of casts and braces. They are the only means of correcting deformities.

Teach children proper posture, to stand with weight a little forward on the toes, abdomen in, chest high, chin back.

The problem of the crippled children will never be solved until hospital care and education are given by the State—Condensed from an article in Better Homes and Gardens.

CAR CRASHES INTO BUS; MASONTOWN MAN INJURED

Monongahela Transport Vehicle In Wreck Saturday.

The Monongahela Transport company's passenger bus running from Oakland to Morgantown, and a car driven by William Rogers, aged 35, of Masontown, West Va., were in collision at a point near Masontown last Saturday afternoon. Rogers was seriously injured, he suffering a fracture of the skull.

The man was taken to the Morgantown hospital where it was said he would recover. It was reported that a passenger on the bus was also injured by flying glass.

The bus making the run was damaged to some extent. Following the accident another bus was substituted for it and service was uninterrupted.

Roofing Company to Open Place of Business Here

The West Virginia Furnace and Roofing company, of Keyser, W. Va., is opening a place of business on Liberty street, near the corner of Second, this week and expect to remain here permanently. Material for the store was expected to arrive today.

This company is now engaged in repairing and sandblasting the outer structure of the courthouse and county jail. Offices are also located at Morgantown, W. Va., Piedmont, W. Va., and Cumberland. Main offices are located at Keyser.

GRAPHS SHOW PROGRESS MADE IN PUBLIC HEALTH

Map of County Exhibited at the Fair Gives Illuminating Information Noting Improvement

A map of Garrett county showing the improvements made in health work since 1922, when public health nursing was first organized in the county; aims for the year 1927-1928; a pictorial railroad trip thru Healthland; numerous pamphlets and folders about child care, personal hygiene and protection from diseases; these are only a few of the things that greet the eye upon entering the corner room of the second floor in the exhibit building at the Garrett County Fair where Misses Rhesa M. King and Yolanda Clawson, health nurses, have established themselves for the four days of the Fair.

Personal talks with the mothers of Garrett and adjoining counties and several lectures on the care of children have been given by the health nurses during the first three days of the exhibit and the same schedule will be carried out tomorrow. "Mothers of the county seem to be very much interested," Miss King said, "and many have come in to get their children weighed and ask questions concerning many things about which they were uncertain."

The map of Garrett county with semi-colored pinheads shows the work that is now being done in the county, the work that has been done, and the work that will be done. Since 1922 there have been tuberculosis clinics at Kempton, Oakland, Deer Park, Kitzmiller, Accident, Friendsville, and Grantsville.

There have been six child-welfare clinics and one clinic for crippled children in different parts of the county, 12 crippled children having been located in 7 towns of the county.

Nine sections have received the toxin anti-toxin for diphtheria. Statistics of officials within the county now show that there are 9 registered midwives, 10 physicians, 4 dentists, and 2 nurses, one each being at the two health centers, Oakland and Kitzmiller.

Aims for 1928.

The public health nursing aims for the year 1927-28 cover much more ground that has been attempted before, but with the recent addition of Miss Clawson at Kitzmiller, who will assist Miss King, it is hoped that most of the work mapped out can be accomplished.

Here is what they hope to do: 1. Child welfare clinics once each month with follow-up work; 2. Tuberculosis clinics once a month with follow-up work; 3. Health inspection in every school in Garrett county; 4. Dental survey of all school children; 5. Every school child vaccinated; 6. Clinics for crippled children.

7. Clinics for school children with eye defects; 8. Clinics for children starting to school in 1928; 9. A round up of all mid-wives and an examination; 10. Classes in Home Hygiene and the care of the sick; and 11. Prenatal and post-natal work.

Pictorial Trip.

A pictorial railroad trip through healthland, is hung over the fire place in the room and shows the daily trip that a child should take if he is to be healthy. The picture was drawn by Mrs. Benj. H. Sineell, and it includes the daily bath, the kind of food the child should have, a certain amount of play and learning and plenty of sleep.

Sunnyside Grangers Discuss Fair and Dairy Problems

Problems of the Garrett County Fair, and the new dairy which is to locate in Oakland, were discussed at the last meeting of the Sunnyside Grangers on September 14. County Agent J. L. McGlone gave a short talk on remodeling barns and advised those present to consult him or one of the committee before doing any repairing so that he could get in touch with a specialist.

It was voted to serve ice cream and cake at the next regular meeting on September 28, when it was hoped that there would be a good attendance.

Dairy Survey To Be Made.

"Immediately after the Fair, a dairy survey will be made," J. L. McGlone, county agent, said this morning. "Barns will be inspected and everything will be made ready for the new dairy which will be put up here. The necessary supply of milk will also be located at this time," he said.

ANNUAL SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION TO BE HELD

The annual Convention of the Garrett County Sunday School association will be held in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, on Saturday, October 1, followed by the annual parade of Sunday Schools on Sunday, October 2, as was announced last week.

The convention will assemble at 9:30 a. m. and after organization, an address will be delivered at 9:45 by Miss Lillian McCormick, Children's Division specialist, on "Dealing Justly with Childhood." This will be followed by an address, "The Protestant Program of Religious Education," to be delivered by Dr. Frank M. McKibben, General Secretary of the Maryland Sunday School Association. Conferences in charge of Dr. McKibben, Col. Jos. D. Cudlipp, Miss Lillian McCormick and Rev. Maurice R. Hamm will occupy the remaining time until noon.

The afternoon session will open at 1:30, and at 2:00 o'clock Dr. McKibben will address the convention again, his topic being "Can we Produce a Christian Citizenship for Tomorrow?" Dr. McKibben is one of the real leaders in Sunday school work in America and this address should be heard by all who are interested in the work. During the remaining part of the afternoon the convention will be divided into four conferences led by members of the State staff and those who have problems in Sunday school work for solving should bring them along and take part in the discussions. These conferences will be of particular value.

The evening session will be primarily one for the young people of the Sunday schools, but will be of interest to all. Apart from the election and installation of officers, Col. Cudlipp, Young People's Superintendent, will be in charge and after showing moving pictures of Camp Royal will deliver an address on "Giving Youth a Chance." This session will be of great interest to all who are interested in the young people of our churches.

QUAINT "IMLAY" COACHES IN PAGEANT'S PROCESSION

Were Introduced In Railroading Under Peculiar Circumstances

In the long procession of antique and modern railroad conveyances that will move in the Pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Centenary Exhibition and Pageant opening on Saturday, September 24th, at Halethorpe, Baltimore, Md., drawn by locomotives of their proper periods, none are so quaint as the double-decked "Imlay" coaches of 1830.

The circumstances surrounding the introduction in the early days of "Imlay" coaches, named after their designer, Richard Imlay, were unusual. They were placed before the public in 1830, at a time when the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, although but three years old, was getting along famously with horse-pulled cars and designers were vying with one another to produce comfortable and good looking coaches.

It became the fashion, whenever a new model was invented, to take it down under the trees in Monument Square in Baltimore, opposite the old Barnum's Hotel, for inspection by the townsfolk. When Richard Imlay brought his coaches to the square they at once struck popular favor. People came to see and seat themselves upon the cushioned seats of the coaches, and in imagination journeyed comfortably to the Ohio on the railroad.

The "Imlay" coaches are curiosities, and gaily painted. The body of the carriage holds 12 persons with additional room at each end for six, including the driver. On top is placed a double sofa, running lengthwise, which accommodates 12 more. A wire netting rises from two sides of the top of the carriage to a height which renders the top seats perfectly secure. The whole is surmounted by an iron framework with an awning to protect passengers from the sun or rain. The first "Imlay" coach was named the "Ohio."

AUTOMOBILE DAY TO END ELEVENTH ANNUAL FAIR

Fair Has Been In Progress Since Tuesday Morning—Crowds Only Mediocre In Number

Tonight and tomorrow, "Automobile and Community Sales Day," will close the Eleventh Annual Garrett County Fair, which has been in progress since Tuesday morning.

An increase in grain exhibits was noted, while there was a shortage on apples, corn, pumpkins, cattle and horses. Other exhibits seemed to be as numerous as in other years. With fair but cool weather, the Eleventh Annual exhibit has not attracted as many people as in some years past, but the second and third days have had an average attendance at the Fair Grounds, just west of town.

Parades a Feature.

Nothwithstanding the mediocre attendance, the parades have been the largest and best this year than they have ever been. Each day brings something new and unique in floats and it is expected that tomorrow, the last day of the Fair, will further increase the number of new ideas for parades.

Crellin won the prize of $5 in the school parade on Wednesday for having the best float, and Swan Meadow was second, winning a prize of $3. Winners in the Farmers' Day parade have not yet been named, according to J. L. McGlone, county agent.

When plans were discussed for four big parades—one for each day of the Fair, it was thought that it would be impossible to make them all impressive enough and therefore there should be but one large parade.

The outcome of the three parades to date, however, shows rather conclusively that there can be a big parade each day of the Fair.

The business men, on the first day, had more than sixty floats in line which extended for more than half a mile. The school parade the next day was equally as long and impressive. The farmers' parade this morning was also proof that the farmers were determined to make their day as much talked of as the other two, and had many original and comic floats in line.

Many Free Attractions.

The free acts which are held daily and nightly, and the fireworks alone have been said by many to be worth much more than the price of admission. Japanese artists are there to perform, as also are several trapeze artists, and although the fireworks are not numerous, they are said to be very beautiful.

Premiums Awarded.

The majority of exhibits has been inspected and ribbons have been placed on the winners. The names of those winning prizes will be announced next week in The Republican.

The fourth and last day of the Fair, which will be tomorrow, will be Automobile Day. There will be a street parade showing new automobiles, and at one o'clock a community sale will be held at the Fair grounds. Anyone who has anything to sell may bring it to the Fair on that day and have it auctioned to the highest bidder.

Snake Bite Results Fatally.

Word has been received here by friends of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shope, of Watsondale, Pa., near Guard, Garrett county, that their youngest son died one day last week at the Confluence Hospital as the result of a snake bite, and after suffering untold agony. The lad was eleven years of age, quite active and of a jolly disposition. He attended a corn roast several weeks ago near his home which was held by a party of friends and neighbors on the river bank. During the course of the evening another boy attempted to take an ear of corn from him and in the rivalry which ensued they rolled down a bank toward the river. Young Shope afterward said that he felt a stinging sensation in his arm and also in his leg, but thought it was a bee sting and nothing was done for it. After returning to his home the boy became very ill and his father rushed him to the hospital, but it was too late to remove the venom from his system. It is believed that he was bitten by a copperhead. The marks on the boy's arm and leg indicate that the snake was a large one.

Seneca Trail Goes Through Section Rich In History of West Virginia

Through Tucker, Randolph, Pocahontas, Greenbrier, Monroe and Mercer counties, West Virginia, runs the Seneca Trail, far-famed and lovely, which before long will be known as one of the greatest scenic highways the world. Millions of people in the eastern half of the United States are within easy reach of this road and those who know of the beauty spots hidden away until this trail is completed are anxiously awaiting the time when motor cars can follow the footprints of the Indians along the route.

The Seneca Trail closely follows the old Indian Trail, called the Warrior's road, which topped the mountains of western Virginia and which formed a highway for the Indians from New York to Georgia. So well worn was this trail that even today at points where no sled or wheeled vehicle has ever passed, the narrow path is sharply defined and is plainly seen. It connects at the north with the Northwestern Turnpike and by Oakland with the National Highway, while at Princeton it joins with U. S. Highway 21. It touches the waters of Cheat, Tygart, Greenbrier, New and Bluestone Rivers, and is within reach of the Monongahela and Shenandoah national forests.

Tucker Offers Beauty Spots.

Tucker county has many beauty spots, most noted of which is the falls of the Blackwater. This stream drains the famed Canaan Valley, a great bowl of more 50,000 acres in the very heart of the mountains, rimmed about by ridges 3,500 feet high, and with a 3,000-foot elevation above the sea. "The Land of Canaan" was made famous by "The Clerk of Oxenford" (David Hunter Strother) and later by the same writer under the name of "Porte Canaan" in "A Visit to the Virginia Canaan." The State forestry nursery is at Gladwin. The Fairfax stone near Thomas marks the head of the North Branch of the Potomac and originally marked the southern and western limits of the lands of Lord Fairfax. The battlefield of Carrack's Ford is near Parsons.

Randolph county, battle scarred, holds a wealth of scenic and historic interest. As a frontier outpost, it had numerous log block houses for defense against the savages. The battlefields of Laurel Hill and Rich Mountain are both widely known and within easy reach.

Commemorates Early Battle.

Near Beverly is a monument commemorating the battle of Rich Mountain, and the deeds of early pioneers. Earthworks thrown up by the Union army are seen at Elkwater. At Elkwater, too, the first Four-H Camp for boys and girls was held, the beginning of a movement that has spread throughout the United States. The monument to the Mingo Indians at Mingo Flats marks the site of the last Indian village in the State. The Sinks at Osceola is a remarkable natural phenomenon, where the Gandy river disappears into a great cavern in the mountain.

Middle Mountain was the summer encampment of General Robert E. Lee. The battle of Duncan's Lane, between home guards was due to an effort to prevent the first election in West Virginia, May 28, 1863.

Marlinton, named for Jacob Marlin, is the oldest recorded settlement west of the Alleghenies, dating from 1749. Fort Greenbier, built to check the numerous Indian raids, stood on the site of the present court house. The Charter Oak there, marked by General Lewis in 1751, is a member of the American Hall of Fame trees and is the oldest line tree in the Mississippi Valley.

Lee Was at Marlington.

Marlinton was fortified by the Confederates in the Civil War and General Lee spent the first night under canvas here. The old Warriors' road is seen at Marlinton and also at Buckeye. Buckeye had a powder mill during the Revolution. Travelers' Repose is a noted hostelry of early days. The fire platform on Bald Knob, 4902 feet high, at the eastern entrance to Cheat Valley, is the highest point in the State, although several other peaks in Pocahontas county break the 4,000-foot level. Minnehaha Springs is a fine health resort. "Wylie Manor," home of Col. H. R. Wylie, near these springs, a tract of 4,000 acres, with private golf course, tennis courts and deer park, is one of the finest country estates in the east. Many strange plants are found in Cranberry Glades near the head of Cranberry River and such animals as black bear, ...r and bob-cat are in abundance.

The trail passes through the battlefield of Drop Mountain, important Civil War engagement on the hill facing Hillsboro.

Lewisburg was a mustering center for the frontiersmen of Augusta Botecourt and Fincastle counties from which General Lee marched against the Indian chief Cornstalk. At the mustering place, known as Camp Union, Fort Savannah was built, with Fort Donnally and Fort Springs not far away.

GEORGE'S CREEK DERIVED ITS NAME FROM INDIAN

Story Is Told In Old Western Maryland History.

How George's Creek was named for George, an Indian, who made his home with Daniel Cresap, is told in an old Western Maryland history, found in a Baltimore library by John Stanley, formerly of Piedmont, West Va. The story follows:

"Nemacolin, an Indian, who was strongly attached to the Cresap family, and was employed by Col. Thomas Cresap to mark the route from Cumberland to Redstone, now Brownsville, on the Monongahela, performed his work so well that Gen. Braddock, who afterwards traversed the mountains in 1756, followed the path marked out by Nemacolin, and the present location of the National Road varies but little from it.

"Nemacolin, after lingering for several years behind his brethren, who had gone towards the setting sun, making his home with Daniel Cresap, followed his tribe; but before leaving he placed his son George, wih Daniel Cresap and left him behind.

"George lived with the family for years, going occasionally on 'the hunt' but always returning to Cresap's. He died at the family residence, in old age, cared for by the family of Thomas, the youngest son of Daniel, who resided in the family mansion, a stone house afterwards occupied by Moses Rawlings. This house is situated 12 miles above Cumberland by rail. 'Indian George' for years had his hunting camp in the valley which lies between Dan's and Savage Mountains. The valley is traversed by a small stream which takes its rise at Frostburg and running south empties into the Potomac at Westernport, opposite the town of Piedmont. The stream has been called 'George's Creek' from this circumstance from that time

Trees to be Distributed For Roadside Planting.

The State Forestry Department for several years has been distributing, at low cost, trees for reforesting waste land to encourage the planting of trees. Applications for trees from the State nursery, for several years, have greatly exceeded the supply, indicating not only that the nursery is rendering a real service but it also emphasizes the need of applying early to be sure of getting trees. Apply to the State Department of Forestry, 1411 Fidelity Building, Baltimore, Md.

The trees for distribution this fall and next spring are of two classes, the small ones for forest or windbreak planting and larger ones for planting along roadsides. They are distributed at cost, which varies from one-quarter cent each for the small seedlings 3-5 inches, to 20 cents each for pine transplants two and three feet high for windbreak planting. Larger trees for roadside planting range in size from 3 feet to 12 feet and from 20 cents to 85 cents each, depending upon kind and size.

The list contains pines, spruces, fir, arbor vitae, cypress, oaks, ash, tulip poplar, black walnut, red gum, and black locust for windbreak planting, and elm, ash, walnut, honey locust, tulip poplar, Oriental plane, red gum, maples, oaks of three kinds, coffee tree, catalpa, larch and cypress for roadside planting.

Flora of Kate's Mountain.

Kate's Mountain, near White Sulphur Springs, offers one of the greatest displays of native flora in the United States. Here are many specimens of the 1,650 flowering plants in the State, including the rare box huckleberry, some colonies of which are 6,000 years old, and the famed Kate's Mountain clover.

Organ Cave, near the border of Greenbrier and Monroe counties, has been explored for more than a mile and is the only cave in the state lighted with electricity. Many curious formations of stalactite and stalagmite are found in it. Rapp Cave, near Frankfort, is another interesting cave.

Near Union is the old Rehobeth church, built of logs in 1786, and dedicated by Bishop Francis Asbury, the first Methodist bishop in America, as the first Methodist church west of the Alleghenies.

Elmwood, near Union, built by Hugh Caperton, and Walnut Grove are among the many fine old mansions that grace the Greenbrier Valley. Old Sweet Springs, where had been entertained many prominent Virginians from both the states, Salt Sulphur Springs and Red Sulphur Springs are not far away.

Beyond Peterstown the Seneca Trail cuts across a corner of Virginia to enter Mercer county, thence by Princeton to Bluefield and on to the South.

Help The Crippled Children of Garrett County, Maryland

Do you know of a crippled child living near you?

Do you realize it can have proper care and treatment to make it better?

Will you do your share to make it possible to help every child needing treatment in Garrett county?

A Maryland League for Crippled Children has been started. Each county in the State will enlist the aid of every citizen as a member. In that way all can help those who need help.

The Garrett County Chapter of this League has been started. The dues are $1.00 a year. Donations from individuals and from various organizations are solicited.

Officers of the Maryland League for Crippled Children, 10 E. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md., are Dr. W. S. Baer, president; Mrs. H. L. Frank, vice-president; Mr. Henry Horkheimer, treasurer; Mrs. C. N. Athey, secretary; Dr. George C. Bennett, chairman medical committee; Miss Mary E. Church, R. N., secretary of organization; Miss Crouch, R. N., assistant.

Officers selected to serve and to begin this work of the Garrett County Chapter are: Dr. W. E. Gattens, chairman; Mr. George D. Browning, vice-chairman; Mr. H. A. Loraditch, treasurer; Miss Thekla Fundenberg, secretary; Mrs. Paul Naylor, assistant secretary. The executive committee is composed of the officers of the chapter and the following named members: Mr. J. C. Renninger, Dr. H. W. McComas, Mr. Paul Naylor, Mr. J. L. McGlone, Mrs. Ernest Townshend, Mrs. Milton Sincell, Miss Rhesa M. King, R. N., Miss Yolanda Clauson, R. N., and Miss Elsie Benthein.

Citizens in twenty-two communities in the county have been asked to act as chairmen in their respective localities, so that every portion of the county may be represented, as follows:

Avilton, Mr. Otho S. Fike; Accident, Mr. Henry M. Speicher; Bloomington, Mrs. Mamie Wilson; Bittinger, Mrs. J. B. Emory; Bell, Mr. Arthur Murphy; Crellin, Mr. Charles Ream; Deer Park, Mr. C. A. Ashby; Finzel, Mr. John Warner; Friendsville, Mrs. John Holman; Grantsville, Mrs. Joseph Fahey; Hoyes, Mrs. W. A. Smith; Jennings, Mrs. Clarence White, Johnson, Mr. Thomas Johnson; Kempton, Mr. Harry Nutter; Kitzmiller, Mr. R. L. Wilson; Loch Lynn Heights, Miss Mary O'Donnell; Mountain Lake Park, Mr. H. V. Leighton; McHenry, Mrs. George Glotfelty; New Germany, Mr. C. J. Otto; Sang Run, Mrs. Alvin Friend; Swanton, Mr. Arthur Green; Red House, Mr. Benj. Knepp.

Extracts from an address by Miss Church, delivered at Oakland on August 26th:

"Statistics show there are nine cripples in every thousand people. That would give Garrett county about one hundred and eighty persons to help. This League will not only treat the children to make them better, but will educate them to be able to earn something instead of being charges of the State.

"This work has been carried on successfully in twenty States and in the City of Baltimore.

"An organization has been working in Baltimore for thirty years. There are two hospitals in Baltimore especially equipped for this work with schools in connection with their public school teachers to instruct the children."

Within New Buick Foundry—Most Modern in World

Upper Right: Pouring engine castings. Note that workmen merely guide operations, ladles being suspended from electric hoists running on monorails above. Two big ladles, on electric overhead trucks which brought them from cupolas, may be seen in background. The pouring workmen are on a moving platform which keeps pace with the conveyor carrying the flasks. Note the conveyor entering steel hood which shields the room from the castings' blazing heat and gas after pouring.

Upper Left: The maze of cooling conveyor which "kills time" between foundry and cleaning plant, giving hot castings time to cool before they are handled. It doubles back and forth, huge castings hanging from it every few feet. With the portion inside the buildings, it is 4½ miles long.

Center Inset: The six big cupolas are charged mechanically, as shown here. The hoist at right hauls loaded bucket up from loading platform below, pushes it into the cupola, and dumps it.

SECRET OF POPULARITY.

Many folks, particularly young people of reserved natures, worry because they are not "popular." They envy folks who always have admirers and friends. Many people of superior intellect look down on popularity. They feel it shows a too easy-going nature. They hold that if a person is to live sincerely and do his duty, he must often antagonize others, and make himself exceedingly unpopular.

Popularity comes in different ways. Many people win popularity by free spending, by living extravagantly and scattering cash in all directions.

On the other hand many people acquire popularity by devoting themselves to some public cause. College boys who carry on student activities usually acquire popularity. They are entitled to it because they have to devote much time to maintaining the reputation of their institution.

Similarly in community life. Many people acquire popularity just by giving a great deal of effort to public activities, often more than superior persons who criticise them are willing to devote to such causes. Many people acquire popularity by the friendly interest they show everybody, by a winsome smile and cordial manner.

People who live self-absorbed lives are not popular and should not expect to be. Any person can acquire a certain measure of popularity by manifesting interest and doing helpful things for others and performing service for the community.

WORKERS AND THE REDS.

One of the most hopeful signs in America today and one which to a big degree offsets the demonstrations of the radicals which have been all too frequent of late, is that the workingmen themselves and their responsible leaders are so soundly American on fundamental questions having to do with communism and its kindred fallacies.

The organized American workers through their leaders are constantly fighting communism, and there is more than one reason. First, of course, the responsible leaders know more about the imminent dangers to the American social fabric from communism than a great many of our business and professional men and women do. They come in contact with the underhand methods of the reds every day and realize the baleful influences which the communist propaganda bring to bear on men who are ignorant of the ways of politics. They know that so far as the progressive workingmen are concerned, it is a fight for very existence. In case of a social upheaval the workers are the ones who suffer most. The capitalists usually have time to leave the country or adapt themselves to circumstances, but the workers must remain and face conditions as they are.

The intelligent workingmen and their leaders realize too that they are steadily progressing under the American theory of government and modern American methods. They see themselves better off than American workers have ever been and constantly improving. And when they compare themselves with the poorly paid workers of central and western Europe and with the deluded workers of Russia they see how infinitely superior is the American system.

And the American system is a comparatively simple one to understand. It is based on the Constitution, on representative government and the institutions which have permitted our present economic system to develop. This American system operates on the theory that the best way for one to prosper in America is for all to prosper; that more profits can eventually be made by paying good wages thereby increasing the buying power of the workers themselves, further raising the standard of living and increasing American business. Through a protective tariff, a wise immigration law and enlightened production it has been made possible.

That this is a better system than communism or the system of paying the lowest wages possible with existence is proved by the present situation of America as compared with Europe.

The intelligent American workers realize this. That is why through their leaders they are in the forefront of the fight against communism.

National Road Threads More Than A Century Of Nation's History.

THE old National road has carried over a hundred years of the nation's history and part of its trace has carried two hundred. It was conceived in the spirit of the Roman Empire and laid with Roman solidity. It developed its characters and traditions and flourished with a gaiety and dash all its own.

Then the trade left, macadam for the rails. The ornate coaches and the freighters were falling apart in the barns.

The tribe of mail and passenger drivers, known to the celebritics of the day and distinguished each for the temperamental peculiarities of his skill in the mountains or on the prairies, dissolved.

They had carried Presidents-elect going to be inaugurated, statesmen of great name coming home from Congress, illustrious visitors such as Lafayette, soldiers going on campaigns, men seeking fortunes, traders and adventurers and the seed of the great West.

Pioneers had passed along with ox carts and covered wagons and had disappeared beyond the horizon. The great wains and their drivers vanished. The sound of flying hoofs on the bridges died in the air with steaming horses which beat along the road with the mails careening behind them and the whip cracking over them.

The taverns which the press of travel had filled at night closed their doors, holes widened and deepened in the roadbed and the mails, passenger and frienght went by rail.

Coach traveling had disappeared along with flat boating and keel boating, as canal boating and steam boating were to disappear later, but the National road had its day as vivid as that of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. Now it is back in its hey-day again with a gas-run nation on its smooth surfaces.

It was 700 miles of broad roadway, with salt water connections in the East and the waters of the Mississippi in the West. It carried the settlers into the Northwest territory and their produce and trade in and out.

It tied the Atlantic seaboard to the great valley by a line of communication which for its day was a marvel of speed.

The great western express mail went from Washington to St. Louis in ninety-four hours, carrying nothing but mail. The mixed mail and passenger coach required ten days. The road was stirring when the fast mail went through.

The road satisfied a requirement which Washington on his Western trip saw as a necessity to national unity. It was a project of Albert Gallatin. The first enabling act was signed by Jefferson and it sustains the name of Henry Clay as a statesman.

When the French and Indian War was over in 1763 the English had two roads to the Ohio, sueh as they were. One went over the mountains from the Potomac at Cumberland to Pittsburgh. The other was an all-Pennsylvania road. One was cut along the Nemacolin trail of the Ohio company for General Braddock and carried his army to its defeat. The other was cut for General Forbes three years later for an army which was successful.

After Braddock's defeat his road reverted to brush. The stumps sprouted and the quick growth of the forest came up. It would have been easily cleared, but Forbes would not use it and the Pennsylvanians did not want him to. It was a Virginia road and Virginia settlers, traders, subdividers and real estate speculators would travel it into Pennsylvania.

Washington could not understand Forbes' determination not to use a road already cut, but to cut another. It was comprehensible to him only as a military imbecility or as political partsianship for Pennsylvania. General Forbes found Washington and his remonstrances highly annoying and would have been glad to be rid of him and them.

Braddock with his road failed and was killed. Forbes with his succeeded and died. It identifies the two routes to think of one as the Baltimore and Ohio and of the other as the Pennsylvania, as roughly they are.

In the ten years following the English capture of Pittsburgh road building out of the post was begun, an allowance made for it, commissioners appointed and men between 19 and 45 were required to do road work.

In 1794 a postoffice was opened at Pittsburgh and every two weeks mail was sent out from Philadelphia. In 1795 Gen. Anthony Wayne, having defeated the Indians of the Ohio country at Fallen Timbers, made a treaty with them which secured the country for the settlers and in 1802 Ohio was admitted to the Union as a State.

To the south Kentucky had become a State in 1792, following Vermont and Tennessee in 1796. Thus the offspring of Virginia and North Carolina were in the Union before a State could be carved in the Northwest territory, although the men who later found the way into Kentucky had been with Braddock in trying before that to force open the way into Ohio.

Boone, as one of Braddock's teamsters, learned of Cumberland Gap from an older scout at the Pennsylvania mountain camp fires.

This was the first of four armies sent to make the Ohio country inhabitable for the English. Of the British armies Braddock's was a failure and Forbes' a success. Of the American armies St.Clair's was a failure and Wayne's a success.

Four military campaigns, great for the time and region, excluding that of George Rogers Clark, had been required for the Northwest territory and meanwhile the unaided frontiersmen, going up the Shenandoah Valley and into the folds and gaps of the mountains and north by Cumberland Gap or west from Knoxville by the States.

Moreover, the stubbornly resisting territory had become the first great public domain and common property of the nation, receiving its laws and its land tenure from the sovereignty of the republic and not tracing it to the grant of the crown. It was apparent that the nation had to bind this child to it.

When the enabling act permitting Ohio to form a State was passed by Congress one section provided that five percent of the money derived from the sale of public lands should be devoted to the construction of roads from navigable waters in the East to and within the new State.

The new States south of the Ohio were slave. The northwest Territory by its fundamental law in the congressional ordinance of 1787 was free. Rufus Putnam and his New England associates had settled at Marietta (Marie Antoinette) on the Ohio. They had entered by the Forbes road through Pennsylvania, by Lancaster, Carlisle, Shippensburg and Bedford.

The energy of the Kentuckians against the Indians and the George Rogers Clark invasion of Illinois had made that settlement possible.

Settlers from Connecticut had come through New York to lay the foundations of Cleveland. Near Cincinnati there were three settlements from New Jersey. Virginians were in the Scioto valley.

Ohio, Indiana and Illinois along the Ohio are perceptibly Southern to this day. In the Civil War the Southern sympathies were of political if not military importance. The struggle for the new territory was to be consequential. The great highway was a determining factor.

Before this road found its way from Atlantic tidewater to the Mississippi the nation underwent a mighty transformation. Before it was begun the Louisiana purchase sent the frontier from the Mississippi to the Pacific. The aristocracy of the Federalists disappeared.

Henry Clay's American plan of internal improvements and protected industries won against Jeffersonian decentralization. Jackson appeared to rewrite Jefferson and reestablish the Union, asserting that there could be central strength with democracy.

A steamboat went not only down but up the Mississippi in 1812.

A canal carried the waters of Lake Erie to the Atlantic. The canal fever began and was run into a delirium, and Baltimore, alarmed for its future, began to lay rails for a railroad, experimenting with sails and horse tread mills for motive power.

The National road, known by law and at first in usage as the Cumberland road or pike, was built by army engineers, many of whom later found reputation and some later death, in the Mexican war and some in the Civil war.

They built a road which was Roman in its purposes. Macadam had been used in some building before by private capital, and MacAdam himself was one of the engineers of the National road. Jefferson signed the first act of Congress providing for the building in 1806.

Costs were very high. From Cumberland, Md., to Uniontown, Pa., it was nearly $10,000 a mile, and more from there to Wheeling. The mountain stretch made an average from Maryland to the Ohio of $13,000 a mile. The highest point of the road was Negro Mountain, where it was at an elevation of 2,383 feet. The roadbed was eighty feet wide.

The bridges were the famous S structures of the most durable masonry. Some are now being taken out because the motorist finds the curves inconvenient if not hazardous, but they resisted floods and flood debris by not presenting a surface to a frontal attack.

When the road was opened to Wheeling it had traversed the mountains and had reached free river navigation, but that would only have been an additional service to the river country, and the far interior demanded a highway.

In 1820 Congress recognized the farther West by appropriating a small amount for the laying out of the road from the Western Virginia boundary to the Mississippi to a point between St. Louis and the mouth of the Illinois.

Five years later it was decided that the capitals of the States should be connected by the road, and it was projected through Columbus, Indianapolis and Vandalia, then the capital of Illionois, to St. Louis.

There was a period in which the right of the Federal Government under the constitution to make this internal improvement and to maintain it and to charge tolls was contested and in doubt. Delays came from that. The road from Vandalia to St. Louis was not paved, being merely graded.

Before the road could be completed the Baltimore experiment with rails had produced the steam railroad. It was contended that the military advantages the National road was to give, as one justification for Federal building, were much better found in the railroad. Nevertheless, Congress continued to make appropriations.

The tolls were classified and scheduled. Carts and wagons whose wheels exceeded eight inches in breadth were toll free, the rate being determined by the wear on the road.

A distinct aspect of American life developed along the great road in taverns, freight camps and stage companies in intensive competition. The names of some of the coaches gave a precedent for the names of present-day Pullman coaches. They were ornately painted and lined with plush, usually seating nine inside passengers and one outside on the driver's seat.

In going out of Cumberland the road followed Braddock's road over the mountains with rough fidelity, passing the site of Washington's Fort Necessity and Braddock's grave. It ignored Pittsburgh, Pa., stipulating that it should go through the town of Washington.

Out of Wheeling it followed Zane's trace and its further western course was indicated by the most direct line which would go through the State capitals. In many of the towns it was, and is, Main street, being that in fact and by name.

The ox cart and the flying mail, the pioneer with the covered wagon, the Indian fighter and the adventurer have disappeared, but the great stream of the traffic of a restless nation is back on the road, with the sound of the automobile horn in place of the crack of the whip.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

This d—d miniature edition of The Republican put out on Tuesday, the first day of the Fair, has wrecked Scoop's column for the week, all his time being taken up in order that the visitors in Oakland could get some information about the opening day of the Fair.

Then, too, Scoop had to attend the Fair and take a ride on the merry-go-round.

The Republican received a letter one day this week with the initials "T. R.", typed on it. As the postoffice clerks always read "Scoop" they knew right away where to send it.

"Scoop" wonders what school was represented by the last float in the parade on School Day. The only thing on it was, "Red Man; a Mild Chew."

St. Mark's Lutheran church uniquely celebrated the annual harvest festival with special services on last Sunday. The harvest festival is the outgrowth from the ancient Feast of the Tabernacles, when the barley loaf was the symbol of the harvest and a feast of rejoicing was held. So here the first fruits of the field are brought to the altar where a service of praise and thanksgiving is held. The pastor, Rev. Shilke, preached an earnest and helpful sermon, "The Harvest Crown," which was enjoyed by all present. The church was very attractively decorated for the occasion.

No. 2756 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett county, Maryland, of which Thomas A. Carey died seized and possessed, and to subject the same to the payment of his debts due the plaintiffs and his other creditors, the personal property being insufficient to pay said debts in full, and for an account taken under direction of the Court.

That the said Thomas A. Carey was in his lifetime indebted unto the said Rose A. Garvin in the full and just sum of $31.00 on an open account for taxes paid him, a statement thereof filed and marked "Exhibit A," and indebted unto the said Annie R. Connelly in the sum of $324.00 on judgment with interest from April 19, 1926, and costs $7.00, shown by copy thereof marked "Exhibit B," and also unto the plaintiffs, the said Rose A. Garvin, on judgment, being No. 43 Trials, June Term, 1922, in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in the sum of $1665.00, with interest thereon from June 17, 1922, and costs thereof, $7.00. A certified copy thereof is filed and made a part of this bill, and marked "Exhibit C."

That the said Thomas A. Carey, being so indebted as aforesaid unto the plaintiffs and also unto divers other persons, and having real and personal estate, departed this life on or about the 6th day of October, 1926, intestate, and leaving no widow, but leaving the following heirs at law surviving him, namely: Edward J. Carey,a brother, who intermarried with Annie Carey, both adults and reside in the State of Illinois; James Carey, a brother, who intermarried with Ada Carey, both of whom are adults and reside in said Garrett county; Rachel Carey, a sister, residing in Garrett county, and Rose A. Galvin, a sister, and resides in the State of Pennsylvania; Nancy Carey, a widow of Jacob Carey, a deceased brother, and the following children of Jacob Carey, deceased, namely: Mame Jorden, who intermarried with Clarence Jorden, residing in the State of West Virginia; Myrtle Gross, who intermarried with Charles Gross, Lucele Campbell, who intermarried with Edward Campbell, all of the State of Virginia; Kathleen Shoemaker, who intermarried with Leland Shoemaker, and both of the State of West Virginia, and all nieces of the said Thomas A. Carey and daughters of the said Jacob Carey, a deceased brother of said Thomas A. Carey; James F. Keedy, a nephew of said Thomas A. Carey and a son of Mary J. Carey, a deceased sister, who intermarried with James F. Keedy, and resides in the State of West Virginia; and the following children of Lydia McMahon, a deceased sister of the said Thomas A. Carey, and nephews and nieces of the said Thomas A. Carey, namely: Daniel P. McMahon, Joseph McMahon, who married Leona McMahon, and all reside in the State of Pennsylvania; Rose Ellen Wagner, who married William B. Wagner, who both reside in the State of Pennsylvania; Mary Jane McMahon, residing in Garrett county; James P. That administration of all and singular the personal estate of the said Thomas A. Carey has been granted by the Orphans' Court for Garrett county to one Hugh Carey McMahon, of said county, who by virtue thereof has possessed himself of the personal estate of the said Thomas A. Carey and has sold the same; a copy of said letters of administration granted on said estate of said Thomas A. Carey filed as a part hereof, marked "Exhibit D."

That the plaintiffs are informed and aver that said personal estate is not sufficient to discharge all the just debts due and owing by said intestate, Thomas A. Carey, at the time of his death; that they are advised the same, now in the hands of the said Hugh Carey McMahon, ought to be applied to the payment of the claims of the plaintiffs and other creditors of the said Thomas A. Carey so far as the same will extend, and that any deficiency in said personal estate ought to be supplied by a sale of all, or such part as may be necessary, of the real estate of the aforesaid debtor.

That the said Thomas A. Carey, was at the time of his death seized and possessed of a parcel of land situate in said Garrett county and known as Military Lot No. 598, containing 50 acres, and also of an undivided one-third interest in and to Military Lots Nos. 656, 657 and part of Lot No. 655, containing ten acres on the south side of said lot from a division line running east and west, and a part of Lot No. 654, being the land lying between Lot No. 657 on the south and the land of James Carey on the north side, the said interest being the same which was devised to said Thomas Carey by the last will and testament of Daniel Carey, probated and recorded in the Orphans' Court for Garrett county.

The Bill prays:—

That an account may be taken under direction of this Court of the said debts, so as aforesaid due to the plaintiffs, and all other debts which were owing by said intestate at the time of his death, and which still remain unpaid; and also of the personal estate and effects of the said intestate received by or for the use of the said administrator aforesaid.

That the said personal estate may be applied in due course of adminstration, in payment of the debts of the said intestate due the plaintiffs and all other creditors who may come in and contribute to the expenses of this suit.

That the said real estate of the said Thomas A. Carey, deceased, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose, may be sold for the payment of so much of the aforesaid debts as may remain unsatisfied by the application of the personal estate as aforesaid, and general relief writ of subpoena against resident defendant and order of publication against non-resident defendants.

That after the filing of said bill, the said defendant, James Carey, one of the defendants in said cause, departed this life on the 10th day of June, 1927, leaving as his heirs at law: Rose E. Opel, a daughter who intermarried with Jacob Opel; John L. Carey, a son who married Rose Carey; Allen Carey, a son; Hazel V. That upon order of Court passed in the above cause the said heirs of James Carey were made parties defendant; that an order of publication be issued against said non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 13th day of September, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 15th day of October, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court either in person or hy solicitor, on or before the 1st day of November next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

No. 2779 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to secure a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, for the sale of the real estate of which James Carey, late of Garrett county, Maryland, died seized and possessed, and the distribution of the proceeds therefrom among those entitled to the same.

1. That James Carey, late of Garrett county, Maryland, deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of five certain parcels or tracts of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett county, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

(1) A parcel of land containing 61 acres and 63 perches, more or less, composed of Military Lot No. 601 and part of Military Lot No. 602, being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from John B. Wright and Thomas W. Forrest, executors, by deed dated August 7, 1901, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 40, folio 18, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1.

(2) A parcel of land containing 100 acres and being composed of parts of Military Lots Nos. 654, 652 and 651, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from Richard Beall and wife, dated August 29, 1872, and recorded in Liber H. R., No. 38 and 39, one of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 363, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 2.

(3) A parcel of land containing 15 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from Richard Beall and wife, dated May 26, 1888, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 186, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 3.

(4) A tract of land containing 132.43 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by Carrie G. Coulehan, dated January 31, 1906, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 52, folio 30, etc., one of the Land Records of Garret tcounty, Maryland, in which said deed there was also granted the right to the said James Carey to take water from the spring known as Cold Spring situated on that part of Lot No. 590, lying south of the old National Road, the said water to be taken from said spring and conveyed to the property granted by said deed by means of a pipe line. One-half of the minerals underlying said tract of land also being excepted and reserved from the operation of this deed, the original of said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 4.

(5) Military Lot No. 597, containing about 50 acres and being the same which was devised to the said James Carey by the last will and testament of Daniel Carey, dated October 26, 1893. probated in the Orphans' Court for Garrett county, Maryland, on April 21, 1905, and duly recorded in Liber B, folio 158, etc., one of the records in the office of the Register of Wills for said Garrett county. A duly certified copy of this will is herewith filed, marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 5, and together with the deeds heretofore mentioned and herewith filed, is prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint.

2. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said James Carey departed this life intestate at his home in Garrett county, Maryland, on the 10th day of June, 1920, leaving surviving him the following next of kin and heirs at law, to-wit: Ada Carey, his widow; Rose E. Opel, a daughter, who intermarried with Jacob Opel; John L. Carey, a son, who intermarried with Rose Carey; Mary J. Robinson, a daughter, who intermarried with George O. Robinson; Allen A. Carey, a single son; Hazel V. Meese, a daughter, who intermarried with George Meese; Annie L. McKenzie, a daughter, who intermarried with Thomas McKenzie; all of the aforegoing being adults and residing in Garrett county, Maryland, with the exception of the last named, who reside at Three Forks, in the State of West Virginia; Francis Andrew Carey and Mervin Odell Carey, Infant children of Mervin A. Carey, a deceased son of the said James Carey; which said grandchildren all reside in Garrett county, Maryland; and Lenora Agnes Carey, Sarah Ada Carey, Elmer Francis Carey, Minnie Ethel Carey, Emma Viola Carey, Walter Franklin Carey, Enid Carylon Carey and Georgia Indlalee Carey, infant children of Grover F. Carey, a deceased son of the said James Carey, said grandsons and granddaughters of the said James Carey, now reside at Orange, Texas, the said Mervin A. Carey and the said Grover F. Carey both having died prior to the death of their father, James Carey.

3. That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein and in order to make a division of said interests it will be necessary that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

4. That it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of the said parties, and especially of said infants that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof, so far as the interests of said infants are concerned, be invested in some more productive fund for their benefit, and the balance distributed to those entitled to the same.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate, for the distribution of the proceeds among the parties to this case according to their respective interests and for such other and further relief as the case may require and for a writ of subpoena and order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 31st day of August, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 1st day of October, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendants, Annie L. McKenzie and Thomas McKenzie, her husband; Lenora Agnes Carey, Sarah Ada Carey, Elmer Francis Carey, Minnie Ethel Carey, Emma Viola Carey, Walter Franklin Carey, Enid Carylon Carey and Georgia Indialee Carey, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 17th day of October, 1927, to show cause if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

FIRST GRADE TEACHERS IN COUNTY NUMBER 131

Increase Since 1922 is Told to Rotarians Friday by Superintendent Rathbun

How the number of first grade certificated teachers in Garrett county had increased from 18 in October, 1922, to 131 in September, 1927, was told to the Oakland Rotary Club on last Friday evening by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools of Garrett county, who spoke at the weekly meeting in the William-James hotel.

"In January, 1922, the State's educational program was 'a competent, well-trained teacher, in hearty accord with American ideals, in every public school position in Maryland, so that there may be an equal opportunity for all children of the State,'" Mr. Rathbun said, "and in pursuance of that idea, the Board of Education has endeavored to raise the standard of teachers in this county."

While the first-grade certificated teachers were increasing from 18 to 131, the number of third graders decreased from 56 to 24, the second graders remaining approximately the same, he pointed out.

The requirements for an elementary first grade teacher's certificate was given by Mr. Rathbun as four years of high school work with graduation, and two years of normal school work with graduation, or the equivalent. This showed the great increase that had been made within the last few years of those attending the normal schools.

At the opening of the present school term, he pointed out, there were 17 second grade certificated teachers and 16 third graders, and these were scattered throughout the county as follows:

Oakland supervisory unit, under Miss Helen L. Kinnick, supervisor, has three second and two third graders; Accident unit,under Miss Marion Henion, has five seconds and 7 thirds; Grantsville unit, under Miss Kate Bannatyne, has 5 seconds and 4 thirds, and Friendsville unit,under Miss Mary Selby, has 4 seconds and 3 thirds.

Average annual salaries of elementary school teachers in 1922 was $574. In 1927 they average $1,018, Mr. Rathbun said. The speaker concluded his talk with the wish that in the future every teacher in the county would have a first grade certificate so that the aim of the State educational program might be carried out—that of giving every child in the State an equal opportunity to learn.

Carl Friend Arrested During Search on Two Charges

Searching for a party who had attempted to enter the garage of Louis Waingold Tuesday night about 11 o'clock, Sheriff W. D. Casteel came upon Carl Friend, of Friendsville, and after questionning him, arrested him on the charges of driving under a fictitious license and for not having his registration card.

He was given a hearing Wednesday morning and fined $10 and costs for each offense. He was lodged in the county jail in default of payment. Authorities are still searching for the man who was attempting to break into the garage. Friend was said to have been watching the front entrance of the garage at the time of the attempted entry.

Another Car Found

A Ford coupe, owned by O. S. Christman, of Morgantown, W. Va., was discovered in Oakland Tuesday night by Sheriff W. D. Casteel. Upon communicating to its owner, it was found that the car had been taken without authority. Mr. Christman was in Oakland on Wednesday and claimed the stolen auto. This makes the third car within two weeks that has either been stolen or located in this vicinity.

Fined For Driving While Under Influence of Liquor.

D. M. Holloway, about 50 years of age, was fined $100 and costs before Justice of the Peace W. A. Gonder on Monday morning on the charge of operating a motor car while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested Sunday on the Mountain Lake Park road and lodged in the Garrett County Jail until his hearing Monday morning. The fine and costs were paid and Holloway was released. He is employed in a neighboring town as a marble cutter and is said to be extremely proficient at his trade.

SITE FOR MILK SHIPPING STATION TO BE SELECTED

John P. Dugan, general baggage agent of the milk transportation division of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, and Mr. Brawner, of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, Washington, D. C., will be in Oakland on Saturday, October 1, to look over the dairying conditions in this community and to select a suitable site for the proposed milk shipping plant which will probably be located here, J. L. McGlone, County Agent, stated yesterday.

Members of the local dairy committee will meet with Mr. Dugan and Mr. Brawner and conduct them over parts of the county.

Immediately following their visit on Saturday a survey will be started and farmers will be told what the requirements of the health department of Washington are in regard to milk being shipped into that city from outside sources.

Mr. McGlone advises that all who desire to remodel their barns should send him word immediately so that preparations can be made for the accomplishment of the work in the near future.

Dr. C. E. Poe Also Coming

Dr. C. E. Poe, an employe of the Federal Government, will be here to test herds that have not been put on the accredited list, around the first of October, and Dr. George A. Smith, of Cumberland, veterinarian, will be here to test accredited herds. All who desire this testing should get in touch with the county agent as soon as possible so that a list may be made out and the farms visited.

FAIR TERMED SUCCESS BY MANAGER; CLOSED FRIDAY

Crisp Cold Weather Kept Many Away—Exhibits In Many Departments Increased.

That the Eleventh Annual Garrett County Agricultural Fair had had reasonable success, was the statement of General Manager Alvey R. Martin on Monday. Taking into consideration the extremely cold weather which prevailed every day of the exposition, the crowds present were as large as could be expected, he said.

The small number of exhibits in the live stock department was due not to the reduction in the amount of premiums, according to Mr. Martin, but simply because the farmers failed to bring in their prize winning cattle and horses, swine and other animals from the farms.

Automobile Day, the last day of the fair, due no doubt to cloudy and inclement weather conditions, had only a moderate attendance, the parade failing to reach the standard set by those of the preceding days. At 10:30 o'clock there was a display of several new models by automobile dealers in Oakland and Terra Alta, and the rest of the day was spent at the fair grounds where the free exhibitions were given and the concessions were located.

Increased Number of Exhibits

Except for the shortage in exhibits of apples, corn, pumpkins, cattle and horses, all other departments reported appreciable increases in exhibits, making it practically certain that there will be a twelfth annual exhibit of the products of Garrett county.

The fair dates, which were moved up this year, in the hope that better weather would prevail, struck it fair but extremely cold. Without doubt had the weather been at all seasonable the number attending would have been easily doubled. It is not now known whether the dates will be moved back next year or remain at approximately the same time as this year.

The awards, and to whom they were made, are given in another story in today's Republican.

Cannery Closed Tuesday.

The Mt. Airy Canning Company's plant located at Mountain Lake Park closed on Tuesday with only a twenty-five per cent pack of corn. Howard Rheinhardt, manager of the plant, at planting time said that he fully expected to can 6,000 cases, but there was only sufficient corn brought in by the growers to make the pack approximately 2,200 cases. The corn shortage, due to unseasonable weather in the summer and the extreme cold of last week, when much of the maturing grain was frozen, is the reason for the short crop. The cannery will remain closed until next year when the annual crop of peas matures.

LUTHERAN MINISTERS AND LAYMEN END 2-DAY MEET

Annual Conference Held Tuesday and Yesterday In St. Mark's Church, Oakland

Eighty-four members of the Brotherhood of St. Mark's Lutheran church of Oakland, ministers and laymen of the West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran Church were present at the opening banquet in the dining room of the local church when the sixteenth annual conference of the Synod was declared in session for its two-day meeting Tuesday evening. Forty of the number surrounding the tables were visitors.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. R. R. Gilbert and daughter Miss Virginia; Misses Kay Stenholm and Elizabeth Heath and a quartet composed of Messrs. Reeves Blandford, Cecil Smith, Jesse J. Ashby and Wade Hinebaugh, accompanied by Wm. Gibson.

Three short addresses were made by W. W. Wolfe, of Keyser; Root Beachy, of Jennings, and J. C. Renninger, of Oakland.

Among other business matters transacted at the conference was the endorsement of the proposition for a second annual Lutheran Day at Mountain Lake Park the second Thursday in August, 1927.

A conference of ministers and delegates from young people's societies to be held in Fairmont in November was also provided for, and it was decided to hold a Lenten Retreat preceding the beginning of Lent next year.

The subjects of Lent and the young people and their church organizations occupied the attention of the ministers and the laymen during the conference.

Yesterday afternoon the visitors were taken on a motor trip to the dam of Deep Creek Lake and also to the bridge spanning the lake at Railey's. Last night more than a hundred young people gathered about a camp fire on the church lot in the rear of the church and heard Rev. A. J. Traver, general secretary of the Luther League.

The next conference will be held at Grafton, West Va., where Rev. P. T. Crickenberger is pastor.

BOY. 19. IS SENTENCED TO HOUSE OF CORRECTION

Uses Automobile Without Authorty--Second Offense

Dave DeWitt, of near Crellin, was sentenced Tuesday to six months in the House of Correction by Justice of the Peace W. A. Gonder, on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile.

A Ford touring car, owned by Geo. Keefer, of Oakland, was missed on Tuesday night, September 20, and it was found in DeWitt's possession on Monday night near Crellin, minus, however, the top, windshield, tools, and a spare tire.

DeWitt was given a preliminary hearing on Monday when it was discovered that the car had been in a wreck near Cheat Haven, Pa., causing the absence of the top and windshield. He was in the act of fixing a tire at a garage in Crellin Monday night when apprehended by officials.

According to the authorities, this is DeWitt's second offense, having been sentenced once before for 18 months several years ago. The boy said that he was only 16 years of age, but his mother gave his age as 19. It was undecided just when he would be taken to his new place of residence.

Former High School Student Is Ill With Sleeping Sickness

Suffering with a severe case of sleeping sickness, Miss Coyla Barnhouse was removed from the home of her sister in Kingwood, W. Va., Sunday to the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland, where her condition remains unchanged.

Miss Barnhouse was formerly of Loch Lynn Heights, where she resided with her father, the Rev. H. D. Barnhouse, who was pastor of the U. B. church there during the years 1915 and 1916. She attended the Oakland High School during the two years of her father's pastorate in Loch Lynn.

Miss Barnhouse is a graduate nurse and was visiting at the home of her sister in Kingwood when she was taken ill with the malady Tuesday a week ago. Her condition grew worse and her physician deemed it advisable to remove her to the Cumberland institution for treatment.

Mr. John Myford was here for a few days this week visiting his brother, Dr. Myford.

Marsh Ashby, of Oakland, one of the mail carriers for the rural routes, had three ribs broken on Saturday morning when his car started to run away.

Mr. Ashby was preparing to make his morning delivery, but as he started to crank the car, it moved forward. Jumping on the running board Mr. Ashby attempted to stop it and was caught between the car and a tree against which the automobile had lodged.

WOMAN FINDS "DAD" LOST FOR MORE THAN 20 YEARS

Bloomington Woman, Walking Along Street In Cumberland, Recognizes Old Gentleman.

Mrs. Pleasant Cora Beard, of Bloomington, this county, thought that her father, E. A. Sullivan, had been killed 22 years ago in a coal mine explosion at Mount Savage. So did all the other members of Mr. Sullivan's family. But on Sunday, September 11th, Mrs. Beard, the youngest daughter of the household, saw an old gentleman walking down Baltimore street in Cumberland, and requested her nephew, who was in a motor car with her to stop, declaring, "I believe I see my pap!" The car was stopped and she approached the old gentleman and said, "Say, mister; who are you; what's your name?"

He replied, "My name's Sullivan." Then she threw her arms around him and kissing him, shouted, "You're my pap!"

"And who are you?" he asked.

"I am Pleas," was the reply.

Thus the glad tiding were imparted to all of the children and relatives and a reunion was planned for the following Sunday at her home in Bloomington.

The reunion was a grand success, the day being spent in recalling incidents of the years past. Many relatives were present for the occasion.

Twenty-two years ago Mr. Sullivan left his home in Mt. Savage to work in a coal mine. A few days later there was an explosion at the mine and he was reported among the missing.

After a few years he was given up for dead by his children. On September 7 last he went to Mount Savage and inquired concerning the whereabouts of his eldest son, C. W. Sullivan. While making an effort to get in communication with his son, who lives in Hagerstown, he was stopping at a hotel in Cumberland and was walking along the street when found by the youngest daughter.

The wagon was upset, throwing Mr Roy and his son to the roadway. The horses were injured to some extent as was also some roofing which was on the wagon. Mr. Collins assumed all blame for the mishap and before driving on to his home promised to settle for all damage done.

REV. CRAIG TO SUCCEED DR. A. MOORE AS PASTOR

Rev. A. D. Craig, who for several years past, has had charge of a large church in Fairmont, West Va., will succeed Dr. Archibald Moore as pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church in Oakland, it was announced Monday at the session of the West Virginia Conference being held at the city of Huntington. Rev. Dr. Moore will become pastor of the Highland Avenue church at Huntington.

Rev. I. M. Middaugh will succeed Rev. Roland Aspinall as pastor of the Mountain Lake Park church.

Reverend Craig was at one time pastor of the Methodist church at Kingwood, West Va., and since that time he has been given a larger and more important charge, his last one being the largest Methodist church in Fairmont. It is understood that his wish was to be given a church somewhat smaller than his present charge. Reverend Craig comes to Oakland not as an utter stranger, he being well acquainted with many of the residents of town, all of whom hold him in the highest regard.

The assignments of pastors of the Morgantown District, of which Oakland is a member, were made at the closing session of the Conference on Monday night.

WILL OFFICIALLY OPEN OAKLAND–THOMAS ROAD

Celebration Planned By the Two States for Tuesday, October 4, at Gnegy Church.

That a celebration and dedication of the Oakland-Thomas road would be held on Tuesday, October 4, at the intersection of the two States at the Gnegy church, nine miles south of Oakland, was the outcome of a meeting between representatives of Thomas and Davis, W. Va., and Oakland, Monday evening in the Farmers Bank.

That there would be prominent speakers from both States present on the occasion, probably including both governors, was also given out.

Urged to Attend.

The Commercial Men's Club of Oakland urges every one who can to join in the procession of cars which will go to Gnegy church on Tuesday, October 4, to celebrate the opening of the Oakland-Thomas road.

"A good turn-out from West Virginia has already been promised," one of the men said, "and it is now up to Oakland and vicinity to be represented just as strongly."

All but the last minute details of the celebration were worked out in the meeting Monday night, which include a parade of automobiles from Davis and Thomas to Oakland and thence to Gnegy church, the Oakland cars "hooking on" to the parade as it passes down Oak street through town, the serving of sandwiches and coffee free of charge at the meeting place and addresses by one or two speakers from Maryland and West Virginia.

There will be no lacking of refreshments, it was said, as the people connected with the Gnegy and other churches in the community, are planning to serve lunches also.

Speakers Invited.

The speakers and other prominent men invited for the occasion are Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland; John N. Mackall, of the State Roads Commission; Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman, and Leo T. Downey, of the State roads force; Gov. Howard M. Gore of West Virginia; Congressman Bowman, Major Fortney and Mr. J. C. O'Connor. The chairman for the occasion will be chosen from the Maryland group.

The Thomas band has been engaged for the occasion by the WestVirginians, while the Crellin Boys' will be present to represent the Marylanders.

Many To Attend.

The representatives of the West Virginia towns promised Monday evening to have a string of cars more than a mile long and it was thought that the stores of Thomas and Davis might close in order that everybody in those two communities might attend the celebration. This is Oakland's opportunity to show a like public spirit. The opening of this road will throw a vast territory open to trade and this trade will naturally come this way.

The Terra Alta Rotary Club has also been invited to be present and that organization with a large number of the representative citizens of the community will be in attendance. The Oakland Rotary Club has also been invited and it will in all probability be present.

Parade To Form at Davis.

The automobile parade will form at Davis at 12:30 o'clock and will leave promptly at one o'clock for Thomas and Oakland, expecting to arrive in Oakland at approximately 2:30 or a few minutes before that hour. From here both the delegations from West Virginia and Maryland will motor to Gnegy church at the State line where the road will be officially opened for traffic.

The opening of the highway connecting the towns of West Virginia and Maryland will necessarily bring the people closer together and a celebration of the event participated in by all interested will go far in promoting a friendly and more neighborly spirit.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Keim—Loechel.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last Saturday at high noon when Miss Helen Elizabeth, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clarence Loechel, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest Keim, son of Mr. and Mrs. David H. Keim, of Salisbury, Pa. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. D. Sigler, the bride's pastor, assisted by Rev. L. P. Young, both of Salisbury, Pa. The bride wore a military blue georgette gown with grey hose and shoes. Her corsage was of tea roses. The bride's maid, Miss Elizabeth Keim, sister of the groom, wore ashes of roses georgette with corsage of white roses. The bride was given in marriage by her father during the rendition of Lohengrin's Wedding March by Miss Evora Ellen Baker, a cousin of the bride. Before the ceremony Mrs. William Meyers, of Lancaster, Pa., sang "Oh Promise Me" and "Dawn of Tomorrow," accompanied by Mrs. Harold Miller. The best man was Peter Keim, brother of the groom. Mrs. Keim is a granddaughter of Jonas E. Gnagey and of Samuel C. Loechel, both former Garrett county farmers. Mr. Keim is a farmer of Somerset county, Pa., near Salisbury. Following the ceremony an elaborate two-course luncheon was served and Mr. and Mrs. Keim immediately departed for a motor trip in the east expecting to visit Washington, the State of Delaware and in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Loechel celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in connection with their daughter's wedding.

Those attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Keim and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Keim, Mr. and Mrs. Fearson Maust, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Engle, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Engle, Samuel C. Loechel, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Loechel, Mr. and Mrs. George Engle, all of Salisbury, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keim and family, of Johnstown, Pa.; Mrs. Sarah Engle and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Koontz, of Stoyestown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stole Rail Fence.

On Saturday night, a passing neighbor advised Mr. H. P. Miller, superintendent of the Stone House Farm, at Little Meadows, that his cattle were wandering about on the raod. Upon investigation, he found that some one had stolen a section of rail fence, thus allowing the eattle to run at large. The best rails were picked out, leaving the less desirable ones. This is a condition which the farmers of the community have been enduring for a long time and needs to be remedied in some manner. The loss of grain, poultry, dairy produets, sheep, wool, and cattle is a common occurrence and a most annoying and expensive one for the person who is robbed.

Know
that the foods you serve are safe
Frigidaire prevents the unseen mold that imperils health

NOT for a minute would you think of risking the health of yourself and family by serving food on which mold appears. But do you realize that mold is often present from ten to twelve hours before it is visible to the naked eye? The microscope reveals that this is true.

The only protection against this unseen danger is to keep perishable foods in a dry atmosphere and in a refrigerating temperature of less than 50°. Frigidaire electric refrigeration meets both these requirements.

With all its advantages, Frigidaire is low in price. It can now be bought for as small a sum as $180 f. o. b. Dayton. And terms are so convenient that it is easily within your family budget. See a demonstration now.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1927.

WELCOME, WEST VIRGINIANS!

While numerous sky pilots have been attempting to open new highways in the air, thousands of feet above us, but have not yet entirely succeeded, there is still something going on down here on earth that is worth much thought and worthy of celebration.

On Tuesday, October 4, the Oakland-Thomas highway will be officially opened and dedicated at the intersection of the Maryland-West Virginia State line, and a large celebration has been planned by the people of Davis and Thomas, West Va., and the people of Oakland and vicinity.

A desire to have a celebration for the opening of this road signifies that the people realize what it will mean to them, and citizens from both ends of the highway should back the move heartily for two reasons especially. There may be and doubtless are many reasons, but two are sufficient to illustrate.

First, people who were practically isolated from each other before will now be neighbors. Thomas, only 22 miles from Oakland, has always seemed like a hundred miles away, simply because it took a long time to go there and over unimproved roads that were almost impassable at almost every season of the year. To be good neighbors, people must be friendly, and a gathering to celebrate the opening of the road will go a long way in beginning this friendship that must last throughout the ages.

Second, although it may not seem exactly in good taste, there is the financial side to it. The new highway will be the only outlet for the people in the West Virginia section and in coming out they will must necessarily pass through Oakland. Traffic thru Oakland and Garrett county as a result of the completion of this road will be appreciably increased. On the other hand, Tucker and Randolph counties have many of the beauty spots of the entire United States, and much more traffic will be directed toward that section from not only Garrett county but from any other portions of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Let the latter reason remain secondary, however, and everybody prepare to join in the celebration next Tuesday. As Garrett countians, let us show the people of West Virginia that we are glad of this new opportunity of getting in closer touch with them. Let them know that we appreciate their good will by attending this road opening in vast numbers. Let the slogan be: "West Virginians welcome to Garrett County and Maryland."

BITTINGER.

Last week was decidedly frosty in this section of Garrett county. On Wednesday morning the village folks awoke to discover a heavy white frost covering the whole landscape. The following three mornings brought a similar visitation, and as a result much damage was done to eorn, buckwheat and garden vegetables.

As a result of these frosts, however, the farmers got busy at once and are still busy filling their silos with the unripened eorn.

The sudden passing of Mother Catharine Brenneman on last Wednesday afternoon at the ripe old age of 82 years, five months and eight days, cast a gloom over this entire community where the deceased was held in the highest estcem.

"The people who helped make the party successful will see the results of their donations about Christmas," R. R. Gilbert, director of the band, said. "Those in the band who were interested enough to 'stick' when they had to practice on poor instruments, will show the public what they can do on good instruments, about this time when they will appear in public."

Oakland High School Agricultural Boys Win Cup.

The Fourth Annual Dairy Cattle Judging Contest was held on September 21 at the farm of Mr. S. D. Beachy near Gortner, five miles south of Oakland. The Oakland High School team was composed of Archie Ridder and Charles Dodge, who won over the three teams representing the agriculture department of Accident, Grantsville and Friendsville.

The contest has been held each year in connection with the Garrett County Fair, but it was found impossible to hold it on the fair grounds this year because a ring of four dairy cows could not be found there. The new site selected for the contest was on the farm of Mr. S. D. Beachy, near Gortner, where a good ring of cows was selected from the fine herd of pure-bred Jerseys. Fifteen minutes were allowed for the boys to place the cows and ten minutes to write reasons for their choice.

Agriculture instructors of the four high schools in the county where agriculture is taught, acted as judges of the contest and scored the papers. Equal importance was attached to placings as to reasons. The total possible score was 200: 100 for perfect placing and 100 for perfect reasons for placing. Results of the contest are as follows:

Oakland.
Archie Ridder	140
Charles Dodge	135
Total score	275
Grantsville.
Casper Loechel	145
Wm. Turner	125
Total score	270
Friendsville.
Raymond McCullough	105
Ernest Houser	130
Total score	235
Accident.
Ralph Buckle	140
John Speicher	85
Total score	225

The committee in charge of the contest wishes to express its appreciation to Mr. Beachy for the privilege of using his cattle for the contest and for his help in making the contest a success.

The silver loving cup was won last year by Friendsville; this year it goes to Oakland and will become the permanent property of the school winning it for three years. It seems fitting that an award should be made in a contest of this kind which has as its main purpose and development of the ability to select good dairy cattle. Selection of better dairy cattle will insure better dairying, better farming and more profitable agriculture in general.

County Health Nurse To Be In Friendsville Two Months.

Miss Rhesa M. King, Garrett County Public Health Nurse, with headquarters in Oakland, will leave here for Friendsville the first of October and will make her headquarters there for two months, Miss King announced yesterday. Miss King will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Friend at Friendsville.

This is being done so that the program of advancement, which was so clearly demonstrated on the charts exhibited in the health room at the fair grounds, might be carried out.

Child welfare clinics, health inspection of schools and school children and clinics for tuberculosis and crippled children will be some of the things carried out by Miss King during her stay in that section of the county.

Former Resident Speaks at Civic Club Meeting.

The September meeting of the Oakland Civic Club was held at the Court House on Tuesday with a good attendance of members of with several guests also present. Reports were made by various committees and an interesting talk was given by Mrs. Anna Rasche Brunton, of Salt Lake City, Utah. Mrs. Brunton is a daughter of the late Henry Rasche and was a resident of Oakland during the lifetime of her father.

Mrs. Brunton has been associated with the psychological department of the schools of Salt Lake City for many years and gave some of her experiences there. She spoke of the classification of school children according to their ability to learn, and of the different types of children needing special care and vocational training.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday, October 25.

1. That James Carey, late of Garrett county, Maryland, deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of five certain parcels or tracts of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett county, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

(1) A parcel of land containing 61 acres and 63 perches, more or less, composed of Military Lot No. 601 and part of Military Lot No. 602, being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from John B. Wright and Thomas W. Forrest, executors, by deed dated August 7, 1901, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 40, folio 18, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1.

(2) A parcel of land containing 100 acres and being composed of parts of Military Lots Nos. 654, 652 and 651, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from Richard Beall and wife, dated August 29, 1872, and recorded in Liber H. R., No. 38 and 39, one of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 363, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 2.

(3) A parcel of land containing 15 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by deed from Richard Beall and wife, dated May 26, 1888, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 186, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett county, the original of which said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 3.

(4) A tract of land containing 132.43 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto the said James Carey by Carrie G. Coulehan, dated January 31, 1906, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 52, folio 30, etc., one of the Land Records of Garret tcounty, Maryland, in which said deed there was also granted the right to the said James Carey to take water from the spring known as Cold Spring situated on that part of Lot No. 590, lying south of the old National Road, the said water to be taken from said spring and conveyed to the property granted by said deed by means of a pipe line. One-half of the minerals underlying said tract of land also being excepted and reserved from the operation of this deed, the original of said deed is herewith filed and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 4.

(5) Military Lot No. 597, containing about 50 acres and being the same which was devised to the said James Carey by the last will and testament of Daniel Carey, dated October 26, 1893, probated in the Orphans' Court for Garrett county, Maryland, on April 21, 1905, and duly recorded in Liber B, folio 158, etc., one of the records in the office of the Register of Wills for said Garrett county. A duly certified copy of this will is herewith filed, marked Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 5, and together with the deeds heretofore mentioned and herewith filed, is prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint.

2. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said James Carey departed this life intestate at his home in Garrett county, Maryland, on the 10th day of June, 1920, leaving surviving him the following next of kin and heirs at law, to-wit: Ada Carey, his widow; Rose E. Opel, a daughter, who intermarried with Jacob Opel; John L. Carey, a son, who intermarried with Rose Carey; Mary J. Robinson, a daughter, who intermarried with George O. Robinson; Allen A. Carey, a single son; Hazel V. Meese, a daughter, who intermarried with George Meese; Annie L. Carey both having died prior to the death of their father, James Carey.

3. That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein and in order to make a division of said interests it will be necessary that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

4. That it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of the said parties, and especially of said infants that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof, so far as the interests of said infants are concerned, be invested in some more productive fund for their benefit, and the balance distributed to those entitled to the same.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate, for the distribution of the proceeds among the parties to this case according to their respective interests and for such other and further relief as the case may require and for a writ of subpoena and order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 31st day of August, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 1st day of October, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendants, Annie L. What is believed to be the largest still ever captured in Garrett county was destoyed Saturday night on a farm three miles from Gorman, Garrett county, by Federal Prohibition Officers H. P. Locker, C. D. Jaek, P. W. Barr and A. E. Coleman.

Two separate stills—one of 700-gallons capacity and the other having a capacity of 100 gallons—were seized, along with all the other paraphernalia including grain, etc., claimed by the Federal agents to have been one of the most costly and complete equipments ever captured in this eounty.

No arrests were made, the plant being empty at the time of the raid. The equipment, after a sample had been taken of the mash and finished product, was destoyed.

The equipment included a thirty h. p. boiler, two 2,000 capacity vats with corn mash, one 1,500 gallon vat with corn mash, one 100-gallon barrel half filled with corn mash, six 50-gallon barrels, one 700-gallon still, one 100-gallon still, two sets coils and fifty gallons of moonshine liquor.

OAKLAND FIRE FIGHTERS RESPOND TO TWO CALLS

Automobile Destroyed—Chicken House Almost Consumed.

The Oakland Fire Department answered two calls yesterday, one at one o'clock in the morning and the second at about two o'clock in the afternoon. The blazes in both cases were extinguished by the chemical engine.

The chicken house at the home of Mr. Lloyd C. Shaffer on Pennington street caught fire from some undetermined cause and was blazing rather strongly when discovered. The department responded promptly and the fire was out in a minute or two.

Automobile Burned.

A Buick sedan belonging to Clyde Shipley, proprietor of the Oakland Welding and Machine Co., caught on fire early yesterday morning on the driveway near the Mountain Lake Hotel and was completely destroyed. An alarm was sent in and the Oakland department responded, but arrived too late to save the machine.

Marshall Brown, driver of the car, said that the entire underneath part of the machine was on fire before he noticed anything was amiss. The loss is partly covered by insuranee. A short circuit in the lighting system is thought to have caused the fire.

William Duckworth, his cousin, son of Arthur Duckworth, also of Bloomington, who was painfully burned at the same time, is improving at the hospital.

The boys found the gunpowder in the corner of a garage and placed it on a log and ignited it with a carbide lamp. The explosion which followed, set fire to their clothing. They were given first-aid by Dr. J. H. Wolverton, at Piedmont, before being sent to the hospital.

Tichnell is survived by two sisters and two brothers, Millie and Florence and Elmer and Charles, all at home, and by his parents.

ENGINE EXPLOSION KILLS ENGINEER AND FIREMAN

Low Water In Boiler Thought To Have Been Cause of Accident Sunday Morning on B. & O.

Funeral services for G. W. Hershman, 50 years old, of Rowlesburg, W. Va., who was killed in a locomotive explosion at four o'clock last Sunday morning on the Cranberry Grade west of Terra Alta, were held Tuesday afternoon, interment being made in Fellowsville, West Va., the old home of the deceased. He was a brother of Harry Hershman, of Oakland, and of Oliver Hershman, of near Deer Park.

Besides Hershman, the engineer, Fireman C. J. Burke, of Rowlesburg, was also instantly killed. Both the body of the engineer and that of the fireman were blown from the engine cab and were found on opposite sides of the track and about two hundred feet from the point of the explosion.

Another trainman, Brakeman C. E. Cornell, of Cumberland, was seriously injured and was taken to the hospital in Keyser, West Va., where he remains. His condition is said to be favorable and his recovery is looked for.

The helper engine, which exploded, was No. 7026, and was one of the large Mallet type, and was pushing fast freight No. 94 up the grade, about fifteen miles west of Oakland, when the boiler let go. The massive piece of steel was lifted bodily from the frame and truck of the machine and hurled through the air over the top of the caboose and dropped upon the top of a cattle car ahead, killing 16 of the 29 animals being transported.

Investigations Being Made.

Two separate investigations, one by railroad officials and one by the authorities of Preston county, West Va., are being made.

An examination of the wrecked engine, made by H. R. Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland Division, and other Baltimore and Ohio officials, leads investigators to believe the explosion was caused by low water in the boiler, due to which the crown sheet of the firebox became overheated and dropped.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran church will conduct a bake sale at F. A. Smouse's store on Second street Saturday afternoon. The patronage of the public is solicited.

VACANCIES ARE FILLED IN BOY SCOUT ORGANIZATION

Some of the Troop's Leaders In Other Places as Students.

The regular meeting last Friday evening of the Boy Scouts of America was the occasion of the annual reorganization of the troop. The opening of the schools always takes several of the older Scouts from town and thus leaves vacant some important troop offices. The boys who have gone this year are, Assistant Scoutmaster Mitchell Franklin; Junior Assistant Scoutmaster McClelland Dixon; Scout Scribe James Lee.

These three boys leave behind them an enviable troop record. Each have over over thirty-eight merit badges. Seouts Lee and Dixon were two of the first four boys to receive Eagle Scout rank in Garrett county. All three of these boys were charter members of this troop and assisted materially in its organization three years ago. The troop will certainly feel its loss, but their example of application and stick toitiveness will greatly benefit and encourage younger boys who are now working to duplicate the achievements of their senior officers. These boys will be unable to maintain an active troop membership from now on by reason of their absence of nine months each year, but they plan to retain their connection with the troop as associate scouts.

Promotions to fill the vacancies thus created were made as follows: Senior Patrol Leader Bob Stanton, promoted to Junior Assistant Scoutmaster; Patrol Leader Bob Stemple, promoted to Senior Patrol Leader; Assistant Patrol Leader George Altstetter, promoted to Scout Scribe; Assistant Patrol Leader Leonard Murphy, promoted to Patrol Leader; Scout Wilmot Bowen, promoted to Assistant Patrol Leader.

The scouts advanced in rank have already proven their ability for leadership along the line to which they are promoted. Scouts Stemple and Altstetter are registered Eagle Scouts and the others are all well along thru the list of merit badges necessary for that rank.

The sentences imposed by the Court range from fifteen days to three months.

3,500 IN ATTENDANCE AS OAKLAND–THOMAS ROAD IS OFFICIALLY OPENED; MANY CARS ARE IN PARADE

Celebration At Intersection Of State Line Attracts Euthusiastic Thousands.

With approximately 3,500 enthusiastic Marylanders and West Virginians in attendance, the opening of the Oakland-Thomas improved highway was celebrated on Tuesday at the intersection of the two States at Gnegy Church, which is located at the State line nine miles south of Oakland.

It has been estimated that there were five hundred cars parked near the church during the affair, which lasted from about three o'clock until some time after four o'elock.

A parade was formed at Davis, W. Va., and moved toward Oakland at 1:30 o'clock, arriving here an hour afterward. The many West Virginia cars from Thomas and Davis were greatly augmented by those from Parsons, and at Oakland the parade was further lengthened by the addition of perhaps a hundred cars bearing Oakland and Garrett county residents, the local people joining in with the visiting delegation at a point far out on Oak street, headed by the Crellin Boys' Band.

With this formation the procession moved down Alder street to Third and thence out Third street to Crook street; to Second street; to Alder and thence back over the route traversed as the parade came into town.

The procession through Oakland was led by Mayor Fraley and a committee composed of Rotarians and with this formation still intact the continuous flow of cars retraced its route to the State line and the scene of the celebration which marked the opening of the only outlet the people of that portion of West Virginia have to reach improved highways leadng north, east and west. By actual count there were 235 cars in the proeession as it passed over the outskirts of Oakland.

The occasion was enlivened by the presence of the Thomas, Parsons and Crellin bands, all of which organizations rendered very delightful music.

Three Addresses Made.

At the junction of the Maryland and West Virginia road at the State line addresses were made by A. T. Matthews, of Oakland; Dr. L. N. Robinson, warden of the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville, who spoke as the representative of Governor Howard M. Gore of West Virginia, and A. A. Pickering, of Rowlesburg, West Va., who is president of the Preston county (West Va.) County Court. The fact that the completion and dedication of the road to public uses brought people closer together was emphasized in the addresses made by all of the speakers.

Sandwiches and coffee were served free of charge, 3000 of the "hams" and "cheese" having been ordered by the West Virginia committee, and people connected with the Gnegy and other churches in the community also served coffee and lunches. A picnic dinner was served after the speeches.

Governors Did Not Attend.

Neither Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, nor Governor Howard M. Gore of West Virginia, were able to be present at the celebration due to previous engagements, but representatives present brought their regrets. This, however, caused no slacking up of the enthusiasm for the vast throng who were there to show their delight in the fact that there was now a connecting link between the two sister communities.

The committee planning the celebration was composed of William E. Weimer, mayor of Davis; Senator A. L. Helmick and W. G. Meyer, of Thomas; R. P. Maloney, of Thomas and Oakland; Raymond D. Houck, C. N. McIntire, Mayor L. M. Fraley and W. R. Browning, of Oakland. That the committee functioned well was evdenced by the success of Tuesday's affair.

Electric Lights To Be Added on Second and Alder Streets.

The contract existing between the Oakland municipality and the West Maryland Power Company for electrie lights and power, was renewed for a term of five years at the monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday night. Several minor changes were made in the eontract, Mayor Fraley said, but these were of little or no importance.

The changes in the contract call for the reduction in the candle-power of a number of street bulbs, while additional lights are to be placed along Second street and also Alder street in the business section of town.

The trial of Miss Mabel Swann, charged with slaying Daniel Mosser at her home near Swanton on May 25, which was removed from Oakland to Cumberland, will be held in Cumberland the last week in October, W. D. Casteel, sheriff, said yesterday.

She has been confined in the Oakland County jail since she was taken into custody immediately following the alleged murder, and will be removed to Cumberland when the date set for the trial is announced. Attorneys David A. Robb, of Cumberland and William R. Self-Defense Her Plea

Mosser was employed as a hostler in the Keyser shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. He worked the night shift and the morning of the murder, arrived at Swanton about 9 o'clock, going to the farm at once to collect some rent due him.

The shooting was aceidental, according to Miss Swann's story. She came to Oakland four years ago from Baltimore and lived for a short time on a farm near Oakland. She elaims to have graduated from some hospital in Baltimore as a nurse. She has a mother and sister living in Baltimore.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION OF PUBLIC SCHOOL CHILDREN

Will Begin in a Few Days Under Direction of Health Officers.

Medical examination of children in the public schools of Maryland by deputy State health officers, assisted by the public health nurses, will begin in a few days, according to an announcement by Dr. R. H. Riley, assistant director of the State Department of Health and Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases. The plan is to be tried this year of concentrating on the younger children—those in the first three grades. The aim of the examination, Dr. Riley said, is to discover conditions that may need correction, particularly of the throat, nose, teeth, eyes, hearing, heart, lungs and of the weight, as an indication of general health and well-being. The sooner conditions of this sort are found and corrected, Dr. Riley said, the better the child's chances for good health and for success in his school life.

While the health officers will try to reach every child in the first three grades, children in the upper grades will not be neglected. The older children in need of care of this sort, especially those who are brought to the attention of the examining physicians by the teachers or those who were examined last year and were scheduled for a re-examination this season, will be given the same sort of checking up as the younger ones will have. In addition, in several counties, Carroll and Howard, Frederick, Montgomery and Prince George's among them, all of the children in the schools will be examined as usual, not simply their younger brothers and sisters.

Approximately 33,000 school children were given a medical examination last year, 30,000 in the grades and the rest were prospective first-graders who were examined before their enrollment in school. In all cases parents were notified of conditions that needed correction and were urged to have the corrections made

"One of the effects of the medical supervision of the children in our schools," Dr. Riley said, has been to cut down the number of absences from sickness or ill health. Losing less time from sickness has made it possible for many children to complete their work without interruption and has made them make more rapid progress. Ten years ago 49 per cent of all the children attending the public schools were what is known as 'repeaters,' that is, they could not get through their grade work in specified time and had to repeat the work the next year. As a result of the continuous supervision of the health of the the children the number has been cut down to 23 per cent.

"It will be seen from this that medical supervision of the health of the children serves a double purpose—the correction of unfavorable conditions removes what might be serious handicaps to the health and mental development of the children and gives them a better start toward healthy manhood and womanhood. But there is an advantage to the tax-payer also. It costs less for the State to educate a child who gets through his work in specified time than it does to train one who has to repeat his work. The financial question is important, of course, but the best result of this health supervision of the children is the child himself—the all-round healthy child."

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

"Scoop" was shoveled out of the paper at the last minute last Thursday because there was no space for it. Consequently, every place I go I am asked what happened and whether the column would appear in this week's issue. I told the make-up man (the fellow who locks up the forms) what all the people had been saying and he broke down and confessed that he had put some trifling news story in its place, but that it would never happen again. "If the President died, and there was room for only one story, Scoop will have the preference," the make-up man said. "Never again will I disappoint the readers of 'T. R.' or make 'Scoop' feel that his brain storms are unworhty of room." So that's that.

Now You Tell One.

Tony Pascuzzi was arrested in Preston county, West Virginia, the other day when officers discovered four squirrels' tails at his home. Tony had a bright idea, but 'Squire Bowermaster at Kingwood beclouded Tony's vision when he failed to believe what he had to say concerning the matter.

Tony said that his "trained" cat had brought the squirrels in. Bringing in the squirrels wasn't so bad, but it happened that the season for man or cat hunting squirrels was not open. Eighty-five dollars is a high price to pay for a "trained" cat's violation of the law with but four squirrels to show for the amount. Tony promised to get rid of his expensive pet after he had planked down the amount required by the Court.

Kim Thompson, carnival negro, who had gone off on a "toot" Saturday was standing before Justice West on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He had made a plea of guilty to the accusation.

"Have you any money?" asked the Judge.

"No, Sah."

"Have you any place you can get some?"

"No, Sah."

"Well, this State can't feed you; I'll give you ten minutes to get out of town."

"Thank you, Jedge; thank you, chief. All Ah asks is that you show me the way to Kingwood, and then you can keep eight of dem minutes for somebody else."

The Long and Short Of It

Corporations papers were recently taken out in a Maryland town, the name being "Long & Short." Harvey H. Long is president; Hix Long, is vice-president; C. R. Long, secretary, and J. Frank Short, treasurer and general manager. It looks as though Short would have the long end of the job.

As reported in last week's paper, the moonshiners of Bear Hill and Garrett county and those of Canaan Valley and Tucker county, West Va., held a convention at the meeting of the people of the two states at Gnegy church Tuesday. A demonstration was staged to see who could manufacture the best liquor in the shortest time. Needless to say, Garrett county shine artists won by a wide margin.

A. & P. GYPSIES RETURN FROM THE PACIFIC COAST

California Audiences Demand Return Engagement of Artists

The Gypsies are back!

The gay nomads of the winding trails and woodland glades have ended their long trip to California and have begun broadcasting in the East.

Since their last appearance before the microphone on June 13th, they have been delighting Pacific Coast audiences with their weird tuneful gypsy airs. While in Hollywood, Al Jolson engaged them to appear at Warner Bros. studios for one of the most brilliant social gatherings of the season. Nearly every screen star of this famous colony was present.

It was the first time a radio musical organization had crossed the continent for personal appearances, and California made the most of it, greeting them with thundering applause.

On the way home they played to packed houses in St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis.

They will be heard every Monday evening from 8:30 to 9:30 over a chain of fifteen stations, four more than last year, viz.:

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1927.

SPIRIT OF—WHAT?

The first machine ever to go the full distance from New York to Paris in a non-stop flight was called the "Spirit of St. Louis." Whether that had anything to do with its successful flight or not will never be known for a certainty, but there was a spirit of something back of it all, perhaps the indominable spirit of its pilot, Lindberg.

This past Tuesday, people of Oakland, Garrett county, and Thomas, Davis and Parsons, Tucker county, W. Va., celebrated the opening of a highway connecting the two communities that makes them practically neighbors. That the affair was put over with great success is a thing of history now, but the celebration was put over and put over "big". More than 3,000 people actively rejoiced in joining in the celebration, and there were probably many more moral supporters of the event, too.

There was a spirit of something back of this occasion also, and if the word "coopration" was not trite and so very much over-used, The Republican would say that the spirit of cooperation put it over. Anyway, there was a spirit of something there; a spirit that will carry both communities on to higher things when the time comes.

While a road opening meant a lot to both communities, the mere opening of a road is a small thing. But the fact that for this occasion the people of both communities were willing and even eager to join forces to accomplish something, means that when something of gigantic proportions comes along, there is going to be that same spirit of something between the people of West Virginia and Maryland, for it is just as Dr. L. N. Robinson, the speaker at the celebration said, "What does a State line mean, anyway? We are all one people and all one large family."

WHERE'S THE FIRE?

Yesterday there was a fire alarm sent in. The firemen immediately responded. One truck dashed madly up Third street; the other one dashed as madly out Liberty street. Fortunately the burning building (this time a hen house) had a tar roof on it and the dense volumes of smoke arising from it led the firemen to the scene of the blaze when it was extinguished immediately. The fire was located in an alley between Pennington and Center streets, west of the grammar school building.

George Kerins, fire chief, said last night that there certainly should be some system about sending in fire alarms. There is such a system, and it only remains for the people to know what that system is. Here is what they should do in case of fire:

> Telephone to the central office of the telephone company (if you have a phone). Give you name and street address. If you have time, tell whether the fire is just starting or is a very serious one. Then let Central repeat the name and location to see that she has been correctly informed.

That is all that the public need to worry about. Central and the fire department do the rest. Central calls up the fire chief and repeats the instructions. As soon as he has them correctly Central turns the "juice" on and the siren on the top of the city building blows.

It happened that the fire yesterday was not very serious. But if it would have been there would have been the same mad dash to different sections of town, and in the meanwhile the building would have gone up in smoke.

It is so simple to follow the correct directions. And it will save for all of us in the long run.

CHARITY

There are many kinds of charity as well as many different ways to give. Gifts can be harmful as well as helpful; actuated by selfishness as well as by generosity. Ofttimes a donation is made because the donor knows that it will be given a large amount of publicity, and a good deal of pleasure obtained from the fact that many people will look upon the giver as generous, charitable and unselfish. Thus hospitals are founded, schools endowed, with the stipulation that they be named after the person contributing the money. Too often when the making of a gift is considered, it is from the standpoint of how much good will I get out of it rather than how much benefit will it be. Of course, money given in this way is beneficial but how much more laudable if the spirit of unselfishness and generosity were present. What a wonderful state when one can enjoy giving because he sees others made happy and not because his conscience dictates that it shall be done, or that a certain amount of publicity and material gain is to be derived from the act.

Then too, it is not necessary, as it is sometimes considered, to have financial means in order to be charitable. The best of gifts are often just a little brotherly and personal interest—a word of advice and encouragement, a smile or a slap on the back. In many cases where a man has gotten into the rough of life's course and considers himself to be out of the game, the knowledge that someone has confidence in his ability, is taking a personal interest and backing him for a winner, renews his confidence in himself and he starts down the fairway with renewed ambition, whereas an impersonal donation of money, while it might help, stands a chance to further deprive him of his feeling of independence and confidence. A visit to a sick man helps a lot more than a bunch of flowers; a word of cheer from a friend is often the best of medicine.

In the modern-day rush for wealth and material gain the meaning of the word brother is fast being forgotten. The tendency is to become a group of mechanical beings, devoid of all but selfish thoughts, striving for wealth and display. One might well pause a moment and remember that after all life is short; it is better to have one's memory pepetuated by friends and kind deeds than by hoarded treasures. Along this line it has been said:

The thing that in this life is the most worthwhile,
That costs the least and counts the most,
Is just a friendly smile.

What Might Have Happened.

"In urging parents to have their children protected from diphtheria by inoculation with toxin-anti-toxin, Dr. R. H. Riley, Assistant Director of the State Department of Health and chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said: "Now that the schools have opened and the children are mingling together again in large numbers, we can expect the usual flare-up of the catching diseases, among them diphtheria. In toxin-anti-toxin we have a means of protecting children from that dread disease and parents who want to have their children safeguarded should have them given the necessary three treatments.

"Diphtheria usually starts with a sore throat. Just how dangerous an apparently simple case of sore throat may be and how many lives may be threatened by it, is illustrated by an experience we had in Maryland two years ago. It was entirely due to the prompt action of the principal of one of the county schools in reporting absences from 'sore throat' and the immediate response of the deputy State health officer of that district assisted by the local public health nurse, that an outbreak that endangered a whole school and that might have cost a score of lives was checked and controlled.

"Within ten days seven cases of so-called 'sore throat' developed in the school. The first victim was one of the older boys. The next was the boy who sat immediately in front of Number 1. Number 3 sat in front of Number 2. Numbers 4 and 5 were members of the same class. Number 6 and 7 were brothers in another class, but they were neighbors of Number 1 and rode to school with him.

"Soon after the first group had been taken sick, the principal reported the absences to the deputy State health officer who got on the job immediately. Throats were examined and cultures were sent to the State Laboratory. Tests made there showed that all the absentees had diphtheria. Further inquiry indicated that all seven cases had developed from an undiscovered case—a young white girl who hade been ill and who was employed at the home of the first child who was taken sick. Sixteen days after her recovery the boy came down with a 'sore throat.' After being at home for eight days, the boy returned to school. Within a few days, through the usual contacts—the exchange of pencils, swapping of apples or marbles or other treasures, sneezing without using a handkerchief, the rest of the 'gang' caught the disease.

"Fortunately for all of these children, and for all who were in contact with them, the seriousness of the apparently simple sore throats was discovered in time and there were no deaths. But it would have been much safer for everybody concerned if every one of these children had been 'immutazied,' that is protected against diphtheria by the means that are readily available.

RALLY DAY PARADE AND MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Despite Hot Weather, Approximately Four Hundred People Took An Active Part.

Approximately four hundred people, representing nine communities, took part in the Rally Day parade in Oakland on Sunday afternoon despite the very warm weather, and heard the speakers at the mass meeting in the Maryland Theatre immediately following the parade. The children under six gathered in the Methodist church and heard Miss Lillian McCormick, Children's Division Specialist, talk on "Where Christian Citizenship Begins."

The communities represented in the parade were Deer Park, Loch Lynn, Mountain Lake Park, Bittinger, Crellin, Grantsville, Ferndale, Altamont and Oakland. Oakland, as a matter of fact, had the largest representation, with Crellin next which community mustered 70 sturdy little ones, grown folks and the band members.

Col. Joseph H. Cudlipp and Rev. M. R. Hamm were the speakers at the mass meeting held in the Maryland Theatre, the general topic discussed being "Christian Citizenship." A quartet composed of Rev. C. F. Cuppett, John Forman, John Hinebaugh and Ameziah Johnson, gave a selection, the Crellin Boys' Band, which also took part in the parade, played. Lee and Leslie Rodeheaver sang a duet.

A rising vote of thanks was extended E. R. Jones, retiring president, who has served the association for eleven years.

The number of people attending the Rally Day and the number of communities represented is below that of last years, those in charge stated. It was said that the small number attending was caused by the report that infantile paralysis had been discovered in Oakland. The local physicians and the county health nurse all state that this rumor is absolutely false.

Convention Held.

The Garrett County Sunday School convention opened last Saturday at St. Mark's Lutheran church and took up the question "An Adequate Program of Religious Education."

There were addresses and conferences in charge of Miss McCormiek, Mr. Cudlipp, Dr. Hamm and Dr. Frank McKibben, general secretary of the Maryland Sunday School Association. The attendanc eat these sessions was below the usual number, it was said, although the meeting was interesting from the start.

Very definite plans were laid for the establishment of teacher training classes or schools throughout the county, and plans were discussed for the enlargement of the number of daily vacation bible schools and the matter of week-day religious instruction was seriously considered.

In the evening the county president, Ernest Ray Jones, presided, at which time the county officers were elected as follows: Rev. E. E. Campbell, Bittinger, president; Ernest Ray Jones, Oakland, vice-president and treasurer; G. W. Diefenbach, Grantsville, secretary; Miss Ethel Broadwater, Grantsville, superintendent children's division; Miss Esperance Ashby and associate, Miss Coral McRobie, superintendents of young people's division; M. H. Lohr, Grantsville, superintendent adult division; Rev. C. A. Shilke, Oakland, superintendent leadership training; Rev. W. B. Brock, Oakland, assistant; Mrs. B. H. Sincell, Oakland, superintendent cradle roll. These officers were installed by Dr. F. M. McKibben.

The following resolutions were presented by the committee and were adopted by the convention:

RESOLVED, That we heartily thank the State officers and county officials of our Association for their presence with us and their successful efforts to give us an interesting and profitable convention.

RESOLVED, That our thanks are due and are hereby extended to Rev. C. A. Shilke and the Church Council for the use of the church for this convention.

RESOLVED, That we note with regret that many of our schools are not represented at this gathering.

RESOLVED, That we recognize the imperative need of more temperance instruction in all of our schools and that this institution should also emphasize the duty of law enforcement and law observance on the part of each individual in the community.

RESOLVED, That a temperance committee or superintendent be suggested for each school and that a special program be arranged for the quarterly and annual temperance lessons of the Sunday School.

RESOLVED, That we instruct our president to appoint a committee to promote a Garrett county delegation to the State convention in Baltimore, October 20 and 21; that we accept our quota of ten delegates and urge Sunday schools sending delegates to provide for the payment of registration fee and other necessary expenses.

RESOLVED, That we endorse the new plan of organization as suggested by the International Council and State Association which will eventually result in the formation of a County Council and Community Councils of Religious Education, consisting of the pastor and superintendent and another lay person from each church, and that we urge our county officers to proceed with the reorganization plans under the leadership of our State officers, and further as a first step that all pastors and superintendents in the county be made members of the executive committee.

RESOLVED, That this county organization accept the suggested apportionment of ten (10) cents per Sunday school member as our financial objective for the coming year in relation to our support of the State Association.

RESOLVED, That we request our newly elected officers to arrange for the setting up of two or more classes or schools for leadership training and that a committee be created consisting of three members: one from Oakland section; one from Accident section and one from Grantsville section, this committee to include the superintendent in leadership training, who shall be the committee chairman, and to promote registrations for the same in all the churches and Sunday schools of the county.

RESOLVED, That the County Association elect its president and leadership training superintendent as delegates to the State convention, pay registration fee and all necessary expenses.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each superintendent and pastor of the county with a request that they be read to the school.

DAIRY CONDITIONS BRING SUCCESS TO IOWA COUNTY

None of Its Twenty-Six Banks Have Ever Failed.

Clayton county, Iowa, a dairying county, attributes its remarkable bank record of never having a single one of its twenty-six banks to fail, to the dairy cow and dairying, according to an article appearing in the October issue of The Dairy Farmer and written by Florence L. Clark, Iowa. Following is the article:

Why has Clayton county, Iowa, come through the epidemic of bank failures without a single one of its 26 banks closing its doors? This is a distinction that no other county in the state seems to be claiming.

The question has been put to several of the leading bankers of the county, and their answer in the main has been the same. They varied somewhat on minor reasons, but the two things that all stressed were that it has always been a dairy county and that the land boom of several years ago affected it very little. The cream checks came in all thru the critical times and the farmers had money as a consequence to meet their obligations. The size of the cream checks mounted steadily the past few years. There is a reason for that, too, the bankers and creamery officials say, and that is the expansion of cow testing in the county.

There are now ten cow testing associations at work in the county, the largest number it is claimed of any one county in the United States. Weeding, feeding and breeding has been going on rapidly. The result is that in a drive over any country road in Clayton county now, herds of Holsteins, Jerseys and Guernseys are seen dotting the landscape all along the way.

Dairy herds of John Geraghty and Sons and Meder Brothers, five years in eight, have been awarded the Kildee cup given annually for the largest average butterfat production in Iowa. The purebred Holstein herd of Clair F. Limbeck, of Clayton county, made the highest butterfat production of any dairy herd in Iowa the past year. For the month of May this year it had the highest record of any herd under test in the State, and the Guernseys of J. A. Fritz, another Clayton county farmer, ranked second. In 1926 the county led all others in the State in production of creamery butter with an output of 5,483,853 pounds. The Strawberry Point whole milk creamery is the largest whole milk creamery in the world. Three times in four years it and another Clayton county creamery at Volga have won the gold medal on butter in national contests.

This summer, Gertrude Kaiser, Lloyd Kaiser and Kenneth Walter, Clayton county young people, were in London, England, representing the United States in the international boys' and girls' dairy cattle judging contest at the Royal Livestock Exposition. They were state champions at the Dairy Cattle Congress in Waterloo in 1926 and at the National Dairy Show in Detroit in October. The Iowa legislature appropriated $5,000 for their expenses.

Clayton county has no town with a population of over 1,800. Its banks have many farmer directors. In Garnavillo, Iowa, six miles off the railroad, and with 340 population, there are two banks with combined deposits of over two million and a quarter. The stock in these banks is about 75 per cent farmer owned.

People of Clayton county are proud of their banks and their no failure record, but are more impressed with the evidence that is forthcoming of the value to the farmer of dairying as a means of stabilizing the farm business and an insurance against hard times.

A Banking Service for All

No bank can be a "class" bank and fully serve the public. Unless its services are available to everyone, a bank as such does not function properly.

It is significant, then, that Garrett National welcomes the business of all the people in the community which it serves. The fact that we are constantly growing in volume of business and number of accounts is evidence that our services are appreciated generally.

You are assured a cordial welcome and real helpful service as a customer of

Among those present were friends from West Virginia and Maryland. Mr. Elijah Friend of E., of Sang Run, one of Garrett county's oldest residents, now past 80, was in attendance and greatly enjoyed the occasion. All present were served with a specially prepared dinner.

Former Resident Makes Long Journey by Motor.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart M. Roth, of Hagerstown, the former being a son of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Roth, at one time residents of the Red House community, have recently returned to their home from a trip of seven thousand miles in which they covered eighteen states. The trip was made from Hagerstown to the Pacific Coast passing through the Southewestern States and then northward along the Pacific to San Francisco and from thence to their home through Nevada, Colorado, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Some of the more interesting places visited were Salt Lake City, Colorado and Ruby Canyons, Black Canyon, the Royal Gorge and other spots.

Mar's Hill School.

Everybody is glad that the new strip of road fronting the school building has been completed and all are patiently waiting until the time arrives when they can sledride on it.

Two projects have been completed this month. Group A made an Indian village, which is considered very pretty. Three wigwams are among the trees, and in front of them are places where the Indians cook their food. Also the clay pots which they used are there. Nearby there is a river on which a canoe is floating. Indians with their bows and arrows are among the trees.

Group B made a farm. This was worked out in connection with our hygiene lessons. We made the farm buildings, an orchard, a poultry yard, a corn and buckwheat field.

Everybody is invited to come to our school, Saturday, October 8, at 8:00 o'clock. There will be a hallowe'en program followed by a pie and box social, with everything to eat.

Send your Job Work to The Republican Commercial Printing Department—it will be done neatly, correctly and as promptly as in consistant with good workmanship.

What the Common-Sense Farmer Does With His Harvest Money.

First: He puts it in the Bank, in a checking account—then he's sure it is safe and easy to get at.

Next: If he has had financial accommodation to carry him from planting time to harvest, he calls on his banker and makes a mutually satisfactory arrangement for meeting his obligations—this protects his credit.

Then: He goes shopping, makes those purchases he's had on his mind as "things I want," not forgetting that his home town merchant appreciates his trade.

And: As soon as possible, he puts all the money he can into a savings account, where it will be earning good interest until he needs it again.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTENDING B. & O. RAIL PAGEANT

Fair of the Iron Horse Opened in Baltimore Last Saturday

Several Oakland people have attended or expect to attend the mammoth pageant of the Fair of the Iron Horse, centenary exhibition and pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which opened October 24, at Halethorpe, Baltimore, and which will continue until October 15. Over five hundred people are required for the personnel of the pageant.

It was originally planned to hold the pageant for two weeks, but the immense crowds attending the exhibition and the keen interest shown have led railroad officials to believe that extending the time limit another week would give many more people an opportunity of seeing the changes that have taken place in 100 years.

The entire cast of the pageant including those charged with running and taking eare of the engines, is made up of employes of the Baltimore and Ohio, with the exception of those engineers and firemen sent by other railroads with their respective locomotives. Those having various roles in the pageant were taken from the general offices of the Baltimore and Ohio. Each charter had to be measured for costumes and trained in various rehearsals for the big parade. The women's costumes, picturesque and colorful, were made under the direction of Helene Hedian by the Baltimore and Ohio employes who wear them.

The director of the pageant, to whom falls the huge task of superintending and directing all the work connected with the spectacle, is Mrs. Adele Gutman Nathan, well known in Little Theatre circles of Baltimore, Washington and New York. She is the founder of the Vagabond Players of Baltimore, associate director of the Cellar Players of New York, and a contributor of articles to the Baltimore Post, New York Telegram, the Delineator, Vogue and the Atlantic Monthly

Charles Coburn, well known actor, recites a scenario of the pageant which serves to introduce the various episodes and periods as they appear in the parade. The scenairo, a narrative of the history of transportation written in blank verse, is the work of Margaret Talbott Stevens, associate editor of the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine. Mr. Coburn played the part of Old Bill in "The Better Ole" at Ford's Theatre in Baltimore in 1919. He and his wife have appeared in numerous dramas, sueh as "The Yellow Jacket," "The Right Age to Marry," "So This is London,' 'and a repertory of sixteen Shakespearian plays. In 1910 they took part in the historic pageant of the Canterbury pilgrims at Gloucester, Mass., at which President Taft was present.

Arrangement of the various songs and musical scores in the pageant is being handled by Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, who received his Ph.D. degree at Princeton. Dr. Spaeth is a journalist and music composer. He has contributed to the New York Times, Evening Mail, Boston Transcript and various magazines.

A certified copy thereof is filed and made a part of this bill, and marked "Exhibit C."

That the said Thomas A. That the plaintiffs are informed and aver that said personal estate is not sufficient to discharge all the just debts due and owing by said intestate, Thomas A. MT. LAKE PARK.

The directors of the Mountain Lake Park Association met at the office of the Association in the Park on Saturday and elected a new board for the ensuing year. Plans were formulated for a more elaborate program next year and by reducing the selling price of the various vacant lots there are good prospects for several new cottages to be erected and ready for occupancy next year.

PETER COFFMAN FALLS TO DEATH FROM BRIDGE

Loses Balance While Seated On Rail of Trestle Conversing With His Friends

Funeral services for Peter Coffman, aged 35 years, of Hampshire, W. Va., instantly killed Saturday night when he fell from a bridge which crosses the Savage river at Bloomington, were held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Aubrey Ross, Westernport, on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was made in Philo cemetery, Westernport.

The accident occurred as he was in conversation with a group of friends about nine o'clock when he lost his hold upon a bridge rail on which he was sitting, and plunged headlong into the nearly-dry river bed of the Savage river.

Unable to Grasp Him.

His friends hastened down the gentle slope from the bridge abutment to the spot where Coffman had plunged and found that death had been instantaneous.

Less than a year ago Coffman, who is unmarried and who lived with his mother, Mrs. Jennie Coffman, at Hampshire, was in a mine accident in the Masteller mine and was badly injured. The amputation of his right leg was found necessary when he was taken to the Hoffman hospital in Keyser.

Affected by Loss of Leg.

It was said that Coffman had not yet fully accustomed himself to the loss of his leg and that he had been profoundly affected by his loss. Friends thought that inability to handle himself perfectly might have contributed to the tragedy.

Dr. Robert Bess, of Piedmont, W. Va., was called and confirmed the fact that death had been instantaneous. An inquest was held immediately after the mishap by Justice Daniel Loughlin, of Luke, who gave a certificate of accidental death.

He is survived by his two sisters, Mrs. Aubrey Ross, of Westernport, and Mrs. James Jones, of Luke.

TWO STILLS UNCOVERED AT WILSON BY FEDERALS

One Outfit Had Three Hundred-Gallon Capacity.

Two stills were uncovered on the farm occupied by Mike Feldy, near Wilson Station, ten miles east of Oakland on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, last Saturday by H. P. Locker, prohibition head of the Cumberland division, and his crew of workers, assisted by Constable L. B. Sharpless, of Kitzmiller. One of the stills found and destroyed by the agents had a capacity of three hundred gallons.

Besides the two stills, fifteen barrels of mash and about forty gallons of the finshed product were unearthed. As the officers were leaving the Feldy farm Mrs. Feldy is said to have made a demonstration with a shotgun.

Feldy and Pat Hayes, who were arrested, were given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Grover Poole, of Kitzmiller, and were then given another hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder, of Oakland. Feldy gave bond in the sum of $500, and Hayes is now in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

A coil belonging to one of the stills was found in a cemetery nearby. Another small still was found about two miles above Wilson Station but the owner could not be located by the officers.

West Virginia District Committee to Attend Pike Meeting.

A large delegation from Union District, Grant county, West Virginia, is expected to attend the meeting of the Northwestern Pike Association at Oakland on October 17 in an attempt to have a hard surfaced road built between Bayard and Gormania, along the Potomac River to connect the two towns, and incidentally to put Bayard in close proximity to the Northwestern Turnpike, it was learned yesterday.

People of that section are said to be very much interested over the proposed connecting link and the first meeting of the citizens held at Bayard several weeks ago showed that there was considerable demand for this road.

GIRL, 14, STEALS CAR AT THOMAS; DRIVES HERE

Youth Is Taken In Charge By Authorities and Held

The recent opening of the Oakland-Thomas road paved the way for the first case of automobile theft to Oakland when on Tuesday Lulluonia McFettie, a girl of not more than fourteen years of age, hopped into a Ford roadster at Thomas and headed for Oakland.

She was quite generous with the stolen car, for seeing Guy Maloney, of William, West Va., a small hamlet just north of Thomas, walking along the roadway, invited him to ride with her, which he did, coming through to Oakland on high, although at the time Maloney got into the car the driver said she was only going a short distance and would take her passenger back to the starting point should he so desire.

Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith in the meantime had been notified by the West Virginia authorities that the stolen car had been headed this way and he set out to meet it and capture its driver. The car was met by the Garrett county officer at a point about two miles south of town. The occupants were arrested and ordered by the officer to drive on into Oakland where they were placed in jail and held for the arrival of the West Virginia State trooper whom the local officer had been advised was on his way to take charge of the girl. Upon explaining the circumstances relative to his presence in the stolen car, Maloney was released. He said that he had been hunting in the vicinity where he was picked up by the driver and the girl bore him out in this, taking the entire responsibility for the theft of the machine upon herself.

The McFettie girl is the daughter of the Justice of the Peace at Thomas. He was at one time an Episcopal clergyman and later became a dentist.

IRON HORSE FAIR TO LAST THROUGH PRESENT WEEK

President Willard of B. & O., Announces Program and Expresses Company's Thanks

President Daniel Willard, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, made the following announcement on last Wednesday concerning the Pageant and Centenary Exhibition at Halethorp, near Baltimore:

"The officers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company appreciate greatly the interest shown in its Centenary Exhibition and Pageant at Halethorpe by the citizens of Baltimore and visitors from other places. Because of the unexpectedly large number of requests for tickets to the reviewing stands for the Pageant, it has not been possible to furnish seats for all. In order that we may measurably do this, it has been arranged to continue the exhibition to and including Saturday, October 15th, and on each day during the week there will be two performances of the Pageant, one in the morning at 11 o'clock and the other in the afternoon at 2:30, except Monday, the 10th, when there will be one performance.

The one in the morning will be primarily for Baltimore and Ohio employes regarding which they will be advised in the customary way, through the heads of departments.

"The afternoon performance will be for the purpose of fulfilling requests from the public heretofore made, which the management has not been able to comply with because of the great number of applications.

"The exhibition grounds will be open to the public at 10 a. m. each day of next week and will remain open until 5 p. m., during which time opportunity will be afforded for visiting the several buildings as well as reviewing the pageant from various parts of the grounds.

"While Saturday, October 15th, will be the last day for the pageant, which requires only one hour and a half to pass a given point, the exhibition grounds and buildings will remain open each day thereafter until further notice.

"I take this opportunity to express, on behalf of the directors and executive officers of the company, their sincere appreciation of the great interest manifested by all in this our Centenary celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Roop and their little daughter Betty Jane, of New Windsor, Md., were guests of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Waybright at the Red House Lutheran parsonage yesterday and today.

LEGIONAIRRES PLANNING ARMISTICE ANNIVERSARY

Celebration, Friday, November 11, Will Be Conducted Similar to That of Last Year.

Plans were completed Monday evening by the Legionairres of Garrett county for the celebration of Armistice Day, Friday, November 11.

The plans made this year are similar to those made and carried out last year with the possible exception of the community sing at the Maryland Theatre in the afternoon of the day.

The program for the proposed celebration calls for a public gathering at the theatre where a program consisting of musical numbers will be rendered by professionals in their line of entertainment. An address will be made by a noted public speaker if the present plans are executed, and it is thought by members of the legion that such a program will be of more interest and benefit to the general public and will be enjoyed more than the usual cut and dried community sing.

The morning feature of the day's activities will be a clay bird shoot and stationary target match at the fair grounds. Turkeys, ducks and chickens will constitute the prizes to be awarded those winning them. A benefit motion picture will be shown at the Maryland Theatre in the evening.

A committee was appointed at the meeting to interview merchants of town relative to closing their places of business on Armistice Day.

A dance will be held by the Legionairres on Thanksgiving evening at Naylor's Hall on Third street.

Oakland and Kitzmiller Win In Soccer Tilts.

Oakland and Kitzmiller were victorious in Friday's soccer tilts, Oakland winning from Grantsville 20, while Kitzmiller downed Accident 6-2. The latter team (Kitzmiller) by virtue of her victory Friday, retains her lead for the county championship, Oakland still remaining second on the list.

The Oakland-Grantsville game was played at Oakland, on the fair grounds, while the Kitzmiller-Accident struggle took place at Kitzmiller.

Accident won the volley ball game from Kitzmiller by the score of 16-7.

Weiner Roast Given.

Misses Margaret and Effie Glotfelty recently gave a weiner roast at the former's home near McHenry at which games were played and numerous weiners were roasted and enjoyed. The company present included Lambert Bernard, Swanton; Gladys and Earl Knox, Althea Schlossnagle, Elma Georg, Oma and Lester Kelso, Grace, Fred and Amelia Kahl, Clara Margroff, all of Accident; Arnold Alexander, Akron, O.; Helen Flanigan, Wilma Bowers, Mahlon Kesner, all of Sand Flat; Effie Glotfelty, Fred Glotfelty, Oakland; Annabelle Glotfelty, Margaret Mabel Glotfelty, Mildred Carr, Georgie Melvin, Paul, Playford, Edward K., Edward G., Bernard and Everett Glotfelty, Wade Carr, Iva Savage, Paul Savage, Earl and Carl Harvey, Earl Sebold, all of McHenry, and Leola Brenneman, Mountain Lake Park.

Warning From Near East Relief.

A warning to the public not to give any money for any purpose to the Near East Relief other than to those bearing credentials from the relief organization or to those well-known in their communities who are appointed by the Near East Relief county chairmen as representatives of the organization in their own communities, is issued by Harold F. Pellegrin, Potomac Division Director, the Near East Relief.

Mr. Pellegrin takes this action because, he states, he has been informed that persons wearing a uniform have been going through Frederick and Washington counties soliciting funds, unauthorized, for the Near East Relief, and he wishes to have everybody in the State warned against giving any money except to those authorized as above to receive it.

Pleasant Valley Grange.

At the next regular meeting of the Pleasant Valley Grange, to be held on Thursday evening, September 20, at 8:00 o'clock, the entire membership is requested to be present. Refreshments will be served and special music will be procured for the occasion, was the announcement made Monday by Grange Master Harry Porter.

BOWLING LEAGUE TO OPEN SEASON ON NOVEMBER 1

More Teams Expected to Enter This Year—Second Annual Series to be Inaugurated

The Oakland Bowling League, composed of church and local organization teams, will begin its second annual series of contests about November 1, "Bill" Gibson, in charge of the league, stated Monday. It is expected that at least two more teams will be added to those of last year, making the total number participating at ten or more.

Letters are to be mailed this week to every man who took part in the league games last year, announcing the beginning of the second annual series and other matters of interest concerning the proposed contest.

A set of rules and regulations will be drawn up this year which will cover some of the questions that arose during the season last year. One of these rules will be the limitation of the number of players eligible to compete on a team, and the allowance of a certain score when there is not a sufficient number present from one club to compose a team.

Those comprising the league last year were the Merchants, Rotary club, Methodists, Brotherhood, Lutherans, Knights of Columbus, Mt. Lake Park, and Gortner, the Methodists winning the league championship, and this year Crellin has announced its intention of entering two teams. It was also thought that the Presbyterians might possibly want to enter a team. Games will be played two or three nights a week, depending on the number of teams entered in the league.

Association May Result

If the same amount of enthusiasm is shown this year by the people of Oakland as last year, the second annual bowling league may be the means of organizing an Oakland Athletic association which would sponsor Bowling Basketball, and Baseball, the association to be run for the sake of sport alone, and not for any pecuniary benefit. The Oakland Bowling league was started on January 31, 1926.

Plans are now being worked out whereby a basketball league may be formed to further develop the interest in sport. Churches and other organizations will be eligible to enter teams in this league also, which will conflict in no way with the bowling league. Complete details of this will be worked out later.

STARLINGS ARE DAMAGING GRAIN AND FRUIT CROPS

Vast Flocks of These Birds Are Menace To Farmers and Others

The English starlings, birds which have been seen around Oakland and Garrett county in vast flocks all during the past summer, and which have been destructive by devouring growing and harvested crops of grain in fields of this section, are also said to have taken possession of the Cumberland Valley and have been damaging fruit to an alarming extent.

The discovery of the damage to the fruit, apples in particular, by these birds, came during the packing season, now in progress. Nearly every other apple being prepared for shipment in one of the large orchards in the Smithsburg section, was found to be pierced to a depth of half an inch to an inch, as if by the bill of a woodpecker.

The English starlings were introduced into this country a few years ago and have since multiplied into millions and have driven out most of the other birds.

Thousands of the birds have been perching in the trees southwest of the Oakland Hotel grounds and on the numerous trees in the vicinity of Oakland they gather each morning and then depart for their feeding grounds north and east of town.

Junior Mechanics To Meet.

The Good of the Order Committee of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics will hold its first regular monthly meeting tonight at the town of Bloomington, this county. State Councilor John Frantz will be the principal speaker of the evening. Fourteen Councils will be represented as follows: Cumberland (three); Frostburg and Lonaconing (two); Midland, Mt. Savage, Piedmont, Westernport, Barton, Keyser and Bloomington.

The Jr. O. U. A. M. is at present making plans for a county class initiation at Lonaconing on December 3.

Russell Brown spent the week-end with friends in Baltimore.

MRS. HOYE NABBED AGAIN FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

Arrested For Third Time Last Night by Local Officers.

Mrs. Robert Hoye, living a mile west of Oakland on a part of the old Charles Shaffer farm, was again arrested on a charge of possessing intoxicants, the raid on her home being made last night by Sheriff W. D. Casteel and Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith.

At the Hoye place several bottles of beer were found, the Sheriff said, and Mrs. Hoye has been ordered to appear this afternoon for a hearing before a local justice of the peace.

The arrest last night makes her third offense and arrest since early in the summer and she is now out on bonds totalling $1,000. Should the usual $500 bond be added on the account of this last arrest, she will be under $1,500 bail for her appearance before the grand jury at the December Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

FUNERAL OF MINE VICTIM SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Sheridan Stottlemeyer Killed in Mine Fall Thursday.

Funeral services were held for the late Sheridan Stottlemeyer, of Mountain Lake Park, Saturday afternoon from the Methodist Episcopal church at the Park by the Rev. F. L. Fultz, the pastor. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

The deceased was instantly killed by a fall of rock in a mine at Cassville, near Morgantown, West Va., on Thursday afternoon, where he was employed as a timberman. He had been a resident of Mountain Lake Park for a number of years where in the busy season he operated a filling station and garage until the past summer, when he turned the business over to his sons.

The deceased was aged 57 years, 3 months and 28 days, and had been in the employ of the coal company at Cassville for several months. His remains were taken to his late home on Friday morning.

He is survived by his wife and five children, three sons, A. J., Charles A. and William E., and by two daughters, Etta Mildred and Edith Beatrice, all of the Park. He was a member of the M. E. church and of the Odd Fellows.

Mr. Stottlemeyer was born and reared in Garrett county and until his removal with his family to the Park followed farming and mining.

Not Oakland's Fred. Sowers.

Fred Sowers, who was reported to have been convicted in the Federal District Court in Cumberland two or three weeks ago on a charge of manufacturing and possessing liquor and who was sentenced to three months in the Garrett County Jail for the offense, is not Fred. A. Sowers, well-known personage about Oakland, but is another man who has taken the name "Sowers" as an alias.

Sowers (his other name is unknown) who was convicted, has never lived in Oakland, but was for a short time a resident of Preeport, W. Va., and according to Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith he had already served his term of three months before the trial was called in the Cumberland Court and was therefore dismissed following his sentence.

Fred. A. Sowers, of Oakland, since Labor Day, has been working in the town of Shinnston, West Va., in the employ of the Paugh Coal Company, and it was therefore impossible for him to have been placed on trial in Cumberland at the time of the other "Sowers'" conviction.

Pays Fine and Is Released.

Clarence Hinebaugh, of Kitzmiller, who was brought to Oakland on Tuesday last and lodged in the County Jail in default of paying a fine of $100 and costs after having been found guilty on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants by Magistrate Grover M. Poole, at Kitzmiller, paid the fine and was released from custody early in the present week.

Colored Man Fined on Disorderly Charge.

John Noates, colored, was arrested Monday night by Patrolman B. B. Nethkin on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was taken before Justice E. I. West Tuesday morning and fined $3 and costs and was lodged in jail until Tuesday evening, when the fine was paid. It is said that Noates was making a somewhat long and rambling speech at the time of his arrest.

WIDOW AND GUEST BEING HELD IN M'KENZIE DEATH

Former Garrett Countian, Who Was Found Slain, Buried Near Frostburg Last Wednesday.

Charged with the murder of her husband, Thomas McKenzie, 54, a former Garrett county farmer, whose body was found hanging from a laurel bush at their Upper Glenn (W. Va.) home one day last week, Mrs. Annie McKenzie is held without bail with Seymour Smith, a youthful railroad worker, for the action of the January court at Webster Springs, West Va.

Mrs. McKenzie, who is the mother of nine children, and Smith were remanded to jail following a hearing at Webster Springs. Smith is reported to be engaged to Miss Ruby McKenzie, eldest daughter of the dead man.

Smith at House For Week-End.

Both Mrs. McKenzie and Smith denied all knowledge of the crime at the hearing before Magistrate W. S. Hamrick. Miss Ruby McKenzie sat next to Smith during the hearing.

Smith was arrested after bloodhounds had led officers from the spot where the body was found, to his bedside in the McKenzie home. He was spending a week-end at the house.

McKenzie's body was found by one of his children on the night of October 1. The authorities believe he was slain the day before. An axe, believed to have been used in the murder, was found nearby. There were four wounds in the dead man's head, any one of which might have been fatal, according to the testimony of physicians who were examined at the State's direction.

A laboratory examination is being made of finger-prints found on the handle of the axe. Scouting a suicide theory which was advanced, officials point to a leaf, stained with what is believed to be blood, which was found half way between the McKenzie home and the laurel bush as evidence that McKenzie had been murdered at his home and his body carried to the bush.

Couple Quarreled, Police Say.

The body was found hanging from the laurel bush by the chin with both hands tightly clasping a branch. Bloodhounds soon picked up a trail which led the investigators into the McKenzie home to the bed where Smith was sleeping. One of the hounds aroused Smith by licking him on the face, officers stated.

No motive has been assigned for the killing by the authorities, although they claim evidence that the McKenzies had quarreled frequently had been obtained. W. H. Wysong, Webster Springs attorney, who represented Mrs. McKenzie and Smith at the hearing, did not present any evidence in his clients' defense.

10 Years Younger Than Husband.

The McKenzies were married twenty-seven years ago, Mrs. McKenzie having been 17 at the time, ten years younger than her husband. Both were from near Frostburg and residents on farms near the National Highway in Garrett county. McKenzie was at times both a lumberman and a farmer. For a number of years he conducted a lumberman's camp in the Blackwater woods, near Davis, West Va.

After taking up his residence near Webster Springs, McKenzie was a timber cutter in addition to working his small farm. He left Garrett county about thirty-five years ago.

The body of the dead man was taken to his farmer home west of Frostburg for burial last Wednesday. Mr. McKenzie is survived by 6 brothers—Frank, of Texas, and John, Jacob, Joseph, James and Samuel, all of the vicinity of Frostburg, and five sisters—Miss Mary McKenzie, Mrs. Allen Baker, Mrs. Emma Younkin, Mrs. Bruce Robinson and Mrs. Grover Varey, all of Garrett county.

Red House Parsonage Debt Has Been Paid in Full

At an all day service conducted at Red House Lutheran church on Sunday, the membership and friends of the church subscribed and paid in cash over $600 to discharge the debt which has been against the parsonage attached to the church for some years past. The amount raised is more than will be needed to cover the debt, and the balance will be used to start some other improvement on the property.

At the Sunday afternoon service, Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's church, Oakland, delivered the message. At the evening worship, after all subscriptions were in, the total amount raised was announced. Then as a fitting climax to the day a lighted match was touched to the cancelled notes representing the indebtedness.

GRANTSVILLE.

Mrs. Catherine Opel.

Mrs. Catherine Opel, who has been ill continuously since January, died at her home here on October 5. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller and widow of the late John Opel. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon from the home, her pastor, Rev. Carl Beck, officiating. Burial by Undertaker Winterberg in the German Lutheran cemetery at the Cove. Mrs. Opel was 82 years of age, having been born in Addison, Pa., on May 23, 1845. In August, 1885, she was married, and leaves one daughter, Miss Cora, who cared for her mother throughout her declining years. She is also survived by the following stepchildren: Peter Opel, Bittinger; Jacob Opel, Somerset, Pa.; John Opel, Somerset, Pa.; Louis Opel, Elkins, W. Va.; Henry Opel and Miss Anna Opel, Meyersdale, Pa., Mrs. George Krause, Grantsville; by two brothers, Harvey Miller, of Akron, O., and Mahlon Miller, of Meyersdale. She was a member of the Reformed church. The Opels have been residents of Grantsville since 1903, coming here from Keyser Ridge, where they had a large farm.

Miss Catherine Bach.

Miss Catherine Bach, aged 61 years, died October 5 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Bowman, which is located midway between Bittinger and Cove. The funeral was held from the Cove German Lutheran church on Saturday, Rev. H. H. Fickenscher, her pastor, officiating. She is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Charles Heilman, Confluence, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Frogel, Markleysburg, Pa.; Mrs. Louis Hileman, Confluence, Pa., Mrs. Joseph Bowman, an da brother, Henry Bach, of the Cove.

Slippery Roads Dangerous.

The cars of several touring parties turned over within the past few days, doing more or less damage to the machines, but no injury to the occupants, except minor cuts caused by flying glass, when they turned over on Negro Mountain Wednesday morning. The cause of the accidents was wet, slippery macadam. Cautious driving becomes an absolute necessity upon the heavy grades during wet weather, due to the oil exuding from the surface and making the roadway slippery.

Harvest Home Celebration.

The congregation of the Reformed church celebrated Harvest Home on Sunday by holding a special service appropriate to the occasion, having the church decorated very beautifully with vegetables, fruits, canned goods and many other things symbolic of harvest. Just before the close of the service one of the officers presented the splendid array of useful things to the pastor, Rev. Carl Beck, a returned missionary from China, who suffered many things while there, among them the loss of all of his worldly goods. He was much affected by the generosity of his parishioners.

Donation Party.

The members of the M. E. parish here, which includes Mt. Zion, New Germany and Jennings, gave a donation party for Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson last Friday evening in the church, presenting them with numerous gifts, composed of food products and other useful articles, which will minister to the physical wants and comfort. They were recipients of a purse also. A splendid social evening was spent together. However, due to the very serious illness of Mrs. Johnson a note of sadness was intermingled. Rev. Johnson was recently reassigned to this parish by the Conference.

Chicken and Waffle Supper.

The adult bible class of the Reformed Sunday school is giving a chicken and waffle supper on Saturday evening at the National Hotel for the benefit of their church building fund.

Mr. Gortner Arrives Home.

Harvey Gortner, County Commissioner, and one of the owners of the Motor Service Company here, returned home on Wednesday of last week following an absence of a month in France where he attended the American Legion Convention. Mr. Gortner has many interesting and pleasant experiences to relate concerning the "Second A. E. F.," among others that this expedition was as joyfully received by the French as the first. He was accompanied on the trip by his brother Ernest, of Gortner.

Additional Teacher Here

Miss Lena Hamburg, who has been teaching in the county, has been secured to teach the third, fourth and fifth grades in the Grantsville elementary school. The increased attendance has necessitated the services of a third teacher in the grades.

Church Dedication.

The building committee of the Lutheran church has announced that Sunday, November 6, is the day set apart for the dedication of their basement addition to the church, which is now nearing completion. The building will be thoroughly renovated and redecorated, thus putting it in first-class condition. The addition of a basement room will give the church people much needed space for Sunday school and social activities.

Church Services Sunday.

Catholis, Mass at 8 a. m. Methodist, worship at 11 a. m, and Sunday school at 10 a. m.; Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m. Reformed, Sunday school at 10 a. m. Lutheran, Sunday school at 10 a. m.

Many Sheep Killed.

Lloyd Bowser, a farmer living near Bittinger, has during the past three months lost his second flock of fine sheep, due to dogs killing them. From his first flock of about 30 head, 26 were killed outright or so badly injured that they died. He immediately purchased another flock and last week 23 head were killed and badly injured. It is thought that most of the injured animals will die.

School Library Augmented.

The library of Dr. J. H. Dorsey, who recently sold his personal property in Grantsville and has gone to California to reside, has been purchased by the school and the Women's Club. The library consists of 120 volumes and is an excellent collection of reference books and encyclopedia.

Near East Leeture.

The Near East Relief pictures, shown Sunday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church by George Hagopin, field worker, were interesting and instructive. Mr. Hagopin visited the Sunday schools while in town and received several offerings and contributions.

The members of the Methodist and Lutheran Sunday schools will support one Armenian girl for one year as a missionary project for their schools.

Surprise Party.

A delightful surprise birthday party was given Miss Mildred Paul Saturday evening in honor of her fifteenth anniversary. Games featured the evening's entertainment and refreshments were served. A number of gifts were received and a beautiful birthday eake was eut and enjoyed by the guests.

Womans' Club.

The Women's Club held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Annie Getty. Miss Benthein, home demonstrator, spoke on fall styles and color combinations. Due to the very rainy day the attendance was not large.

The Mystery of Moses Splawn

His Three Hundred Million Dollar Town, Hewn Out of the Pine Forest, Endures, But Whence Vanished This Argonaut and His Riches?

"House built by Moses Splawn and his band out of native pondosa pine during the famous gold rush."

"WHO remembers Moses Splawn?" The Old Timer looked about him for an answering nod. He was full of reminiscences. The dust of the Idaho hills still clung to him. For hours he had been swapping tales of the old gold days with a little group of veteran mining men in a San Francisco hotel.

But nobody, apparently, remembered Moses Splawn.

What! The Old Timer was indignant. Not remember the name and fame of the man who was among the founders of a Three Hundred Million Dollar Town, a town which still endured in its rugged construction, though little but memories people it now.

Lumber Was Whip-Sawed

"I live there still, in Idaho City," the Old Timer said. "In the same house. One of the houses we built when Splawn came in. Whip-sawed 'em out of the forest, pondosa pine; built a town for twenty thousand. Only a few of us left now."

But Moses Splawn, the argonaut whom nobody remembered—who was he, and what about him?

Moses Splawn was a fighting man—"six foot three and with the heft of a grizzly"—said the Old Timer. He had come north with the forty-niners. He hadn't prospered. He was a silent man, and made few friends. He was a brave man, too.

"He fought a bar full of drunken men who had jumped an Indian, and he saved the Indian," the Old Timer boasted. "That was in Elk City, in '61."

Glittering Tale of Gold

This Indian, of the Bannock tribe, had drifted in from the Boise Valley. He was grateful to Moses Splawn. And he told Moses Splawn of gleaming riches lying loose in the Boise Basin. Particles of gold, shining yellow in creek beds, all about.

So Splawn straightened out the bulk of his six feet three, and set out for the valley of treasure. Thirty men went with him. The Old Timer was one.

"A cruel journey," he observed. "We traveled heavy; had to, lots of equipment. We were lost in the forests. We went without food. Bad-actin' Indians made us trouble."

And then came mutiny. Some of Splawn's followers opposed his leadership. They said he was on the wrong route. They demanded that he change it. They connived to rob him of the rough map drawn at the direction of the Indian he had saved.

Moses Licked 'Em All

"Well, sir," snorted the Old Timer, "that Moses Splawn, he licked those huskies in a group and then he licked 'em individual. They didn't trouble him none after that."

And so, in August, 1862, this fighting pioneer and the remnants of his band struggled wearily into the Boise Basin, and found that the Indian's story was true.

"That valley fairly shone yellow," exclaimed the Old Timer. Word of the discovery spread like a flame. By the spring of 1863 a wild rush to Boise Basin was under way. Hundreds of men, thousands of men, from all over the land.

Idaho City sprang into being. The forests were plundered. A town was built that lasted, that lasts and stands staunch and strong to this day, though most of its sturdy old houses of lasting pondosa pine are shelters now only for birds and smaller wild animals. Despite the rigors of winter, with six feet of snow and more at times, and the burning heat of summer the pine buildings lasted exactly as the founders of the city intended they should. One winter, when the rush was at its height, seventeen feet of snow was recorded.

"Twenty thousand people we had in that town and valley," said the Old Timer. "And five hundred stores and bars and other business places. We had a fine Main Street. Broadway must be something like it."

But Moses Splawn?

The Mystery of Splawn

"Well, that's what I want to know," said the Old Timer. "Where did he go? Three hundred million dollars was taken out of that valley, and through that town. We all got rich, and Moses Splawn was the richest. And then he vanished. Where did he go?"

Nobody knew; a Columbus of gold, a Croesus of the sixties, vanished, with his wealth. Where is he? Where are his descendants? Where are his riches? A mystery of the Golden West!

And you, Old Timer, where is your wealth? A pause.

"Well, that sort of went. I'm working in the sawmills now."

For lumbering is now the only industry round about Idaho City. The miners builded better than they knew, for they laid the foundation for a vast industry in the surrounding forests of pondosa pine.

"But I'm on the trail of more gold—I'm panning the creek pretty regular."

And the Old Timer's eyes shone hopefully.

OCTOBER ONLY AVERAGE MONTH FOR MARRIAGES

Chances Are Good To Break Last October's Record.

With 44 marriage licenses already having been issued this month, the chances are good to have the record for October of last year broken, it was estimated yesterday at the office of the clerk of the circuit court. Last year there were 97 licenses issued. The largest number to obtain licenses in October was in 1925 when 119 made application.

The week ending Tuesday at noon was average in the number applying for the coveted papers, 25 receiving licenses. Four of these were marked "dont publish" and three were refused a license this week on account of their ages.

The Paper From Home

When I packed my portmanteau I said
I am sick of the everyday grind;
Of dissension and scandal and blame;
And I'm going to leave them behind
For a month I'll forget there is aught
Save harmony under God's dome;
But I find that I can't eat or sleep
If I don't get the paper from home.
The best minds have commended, I said,
All the books I am taking to read;
There's biography, fiction and verse;
With a pipe they'll be all that I need.
But I sit without turning a page
Of the likeliest quarto or tome.
And there's no joy at all in a smoke
If I don't get the paper from home.
Though the sky be cloudless, the surf
In all ways is best for a swim;
Though a new friend I've found makes me feel
That I mean something real to him;
And another new friend snuggles close
On the beach in the gath'ring gloam
True as truth, bo, the day is a dud
When I don't get the paper from home.

Ye Editor Explains.

Erwin Funk in the Rogers (Ark.) Democrat gives an explanation of why flowers are appearing on his desk:

A handsome bunch of flowers ornamented the editorial desk for several days the past week, the gift of Mrs. Kellis Frost and Mrs. Logus, with the cheerful explanation that they were intended for his funeral. And we don't blame them a bit. A two-line heading "Don't Have Auto Accidents If Your Party Carries Booze" instead of appearing over the story of the dusky damsel from Fort Smith who was arrested west of Bentonville following an auto accident when the officers found whisky in the car, was placed over a story of a Fayetteville accident in which the ladies figured. The trouble was caused by both stories having a line concerning a colored lady in the opening sentence. We don't ever expect to get done apologizing to the ladies, but we don't want our readers to thing the heading in question was placed there as a joke. It was just one of the little incidents that go to make newspaper life interesting—and sometimes exciting.

Wiseeracks From Fairsweep

In the weekly letter from Fairsweep this week the writer comes forth with these two wiseeracks: "Russell Beckman's Beegle hound barked so loud and long the other morning that he is now a little hoarse." "While attending the centenary pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio, we failed to see the tail of the Iron Horse."

If Fairsweep has these brainstorms with weekly regularity, Scoop would appreciate it if they were sent to him. He isn't a bit proud. He'll give anybody credit for his jokes.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1927.

YES, WE HAVE NO NEWS.

Real news this week has been as scarce as hairs on a whale's back and has been harder to discover than America. Columbus did that very thing just 435 years ago yesterday, and he had a mueh easier time of it than reporters have searching for news when there isn't any.

All Columbus had to do was to stand on the deck of his vessel and wait for land to appear. But it is different with newspapers. They have to discover enough good reading material each week before a certain time, write it, compose it in type and get it before the public on a specified hour of the day of publication.

After the paper has been published, there will be many come around and say, "Didn't you know that the Ancient Order of Animals was celebrating Founders' Day next Tuesday?" No, the staff didn't know that such a thing was going to happen, but if some person who knew all the details would have sent it to the publisher, then it would have appeared along with other news.

Usually there is plenty of news, but sometimes there isn't, and if people who knew of something happening would only take the time to send it to The Republican or to telephone for a reporter to call, then it would be of much more interest and benefit to all the people of the county. How about sending in some news next week?

COLUMBUS WASN'T GUESSING.

When Lindbergh took off for Paris, you may remember, he was lovingly advertised throughout the world as "The Flying Fool."

Very soon after Lindbergh landed in Paris, he gave the newspaper men to understand that he did not relish the title that had been so fondly conferred upon him. He respectfully requested that he be called something else. Charles A. Lindbergh would do very well for a name, he intimated.

"The Flying Fool" was a nickname that implied much. It implied that Lindbergh was a young harum-scarum who just jumped into an old crate and flew toward Paris, and just happened to land there. Lindbergh resented any such intimation. He knew that he wasn't guessing when he started out for Paris. He landed his two wheels and his tail-skid exactly where he set out to land them, because knew what he was about. He had figured it all out in advance. He was not a flying fool, nor was he a wild youngster who happened to be lucky. He was a painstaking pioneer.

Semehow, Christopher Columbus has never lived down the reputation he was given by some of his contemporaries. That reputaton is that of a lucky dreamer who just sailed and sailed, on a wild-goose ehase, and finally happened to run into the West Indies.

Referring to Columbus' own journal of his voyages of discovery, in a book published by Scribners, called "The Northmen, Columbus and Cabot," this journal plainly shows that Columbus was not guessing nor trusting to luck when he set out to find the New World.

He had an air-tight contract drawn up between himself and the sovereigns of Spain, specifying exactly what his rewards were to be for discovering the new lands and claiming them for Spain.

He took an enormous supply of dime-store goods along to trade to the wild inhabitants for gold and other articles of value. The items he especially stocked for the trip were little bells and glass beads. He knew what would please the hearts of the savages.

Columbus did not merely "sail on and on and on." He steered a definite course toward land which he knew to exist. He had seen the land charted on maps from the Orient. Maps possibly made by the remote ancestors of the American red men, who had gone out to the western world in ages past, and had returned, leaving colonists who became red savages.

Columbus knew where he was going. That's why he got there.—Cumberland Daily News.

HEALTH CONFERENCES FOR BABIES AND CHILDREN

Fall and Winter Schedules Made Up by Health Department

The schedule for the regular fall and winter health conferences for infants and children under school age is being arranged by Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health in accordance with the county programs being planned by the deputy and assistant deputy State health officers. The plan includes one or more conferences each month in each county.

Over 1600 children under school age were examined during the summer at the "health conferences on wheels" held in connection with the recently ended tour of the healthmobile of the Bureau of Child Hygiene through the counties on the Western and Eastern Shores. Starting out early in June and remaining in the field until the end of September, eight counties—Prince George's, Charles, St. Mary's, Calvert, Anne Arundel, Queen Anne's, Kent and Cecil—were visited. Stops were made at 91 places and 96 conferences were held. During the trip the "health bus" covered approximately 1000 miles.

Of the 1617 children examined, 892, considerably over half, were in need of follow-up care of some sort. One out of every four—367—had unhealthy tonsils; 156 had adenoids and in 97 the air passages were so clogged up that the children were listed as "mouth breathers." One out of every five—366—had tarnished or decayed teeth, and the importance of an early visit to the dentist was impressed upon the parents. Vaccination against smallpox had been neglected in the case of nearly two-thirds of the children over four years old and approaching school age and 564 were vaccinated in preparation for admission to school.

In addition to the 1617 children brought to the visiting conferences, over four thousand—4410—were examined at the conferences held regularly throughout the State in each county during the nine months ending September 30, making a total of 6127 children examined since the beginning of the year. Of the total, Allegany led with 1075 children; Baltimore county eame next with 647; Harford with 482 eame third; Kent had 349; Anne Arundel had 336; Montgomery. 312; Frederick, 311, and the rest ranged from 288 in Cecil to 29 in Wicomico county.

Each conference was in charge of a physician especially trained in child hygiene, assisted by a public health nurse. Reports were sent to the family physician of the results of each examination.

He Never Knew The Value Of His Discovery

IN America's tribute to Columbus, there is true appreciation of his achievement. His daring and his genius changed the course of world affairs. Others who followed had his example as a guide.

But Columbus himself could not have known the real value of his feat. His voyage, 435 years ago—his defiance of superstitions and ignorance—his winning to this hemisphere—were great accomplishments.

Columbus showed that vision and faith can overcome all obstacles and accomplish wonders. Here is a lesson for each one today —in business, in home making, in life itself.

In your ventures, this institution stands ready to serve you.

All Sections of Maryland Aided By the University, Says President Pearson.

"The University of Maryland touches almost every community in the State, especially in its relation to the big industries," said President R. A. Pearson of the University of Maryland in a speech to 1,500 members of the student body, faculty and friends, at the convocation exercises which marked the reopening of the university. "One item alone, that of the improvement in the wheat crop of the State, an improvement directly due to what the university has done, returns annually in created wealth to the people of the State more money than the State spends annually on the entire university. Not only is this true about the wheat crop but the same can be said of the improvements of the corn crop. Through the Extension Service and other channels, the farmer is easily able to get information on any phase of plant growing or the checking of plant diseases that he desires.

"But Agriculture is not the only industry in which the university touches the State, because the Chemistry department is continuously carrying on research which when successfully completed will mean millions of dollars. Through this department the university has aided materially in the steadily increasing output of manufactured products.

"Maryland is a State of great industries and even greater industrial possibilities," continued President Pearson. "Some of the big manufacturing plants of the world are in this State, and in addition to agriculture, the State has two other great natural resources, mining and water. The Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries offer untold possibilities of development.

"The university is helping many of these industries already in carrying out their programs, especially in research, but an even larger field of helpfulness lies before us as the university obtains facilities with which to do larger things. The State is just beginning to recognize its place in the manufacturing world, and is realizing the importauce of research in connection with these industries. Since research has been shown to be closely proportional to industrial progress, it is evident that Maryland's great resources will be fostered to no small extent through the university; and you who are here training yourselves must realize that you are preparing to go out to do your part, and do it well, in helping to build up and maintain great enterprises.

"The university goes deeper in the life of the State in that it goes into the homes and through the work in Home Economic Extension carries education to the women who otherwise could not obtain it," said Dr. Pearson as he went on to cite the work of the Medical, the Dental and the Pharmacy Schools in protecting the health of the State, and named various other ways in which the university is serving the people of Maryland. He called on the students to remember their duty and debt to the State in order that they might become valuable citizens in the life of the State. He ended his address by expressing his gratitude to the people of the State for their hearty cooperation in helping him administer the affairs of the university.

No. 2756 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett county, Maryland, of which Thomas A. Carey died seized and possessed, and to subject the same to the payment of his debts due the plaintiffs and his other creditors, the personal property being insufficient to pay said debts in full, and for an account taken under direction of the Court.

That the said Thomas A. Carey was in his lifetime indebted unto the said Rose A. Garvin in the full and just sum of $31.00 on an open account for taxes paid him, a statement thereof filed and marked "Exhibit A," and indebted unto the said Annie R. Connelly in the sum of $324.00 on judgment with interest from April 19, 1926, and costs $7.00, shown by copy thereof marked "Exhibit B," and also unto the plaintiffs, the said Rose A. Garvin, on judgment, being No. 43 Trials, June Term, 1922, in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in the sum of $1665.00, with interest thereon from June 17, 1922, and costs thereof, $7.00. A certified copy thereof is filed and made a part of this bill, and marked "Exhibit C."

That the said Thomas A. Carey, being so indebted as aforesaid unto the plaintiffs and also unto divers other persons, and having real and personal estate, departed this life on or about the 6th day of October, 1926, intestate, and leaving no widow, but leaving the following heirs at law surviving him, namely: Edward J. Carey,a brother, who intermarried with Annie Carey, both adults and reside in the State of Illinois; James Carey, a brother, who intermarried with Ada Carey, both of whom are adults and reside in said Garrett county; Rachel Carey, a sister, residing in Garrett county, and Rose A. Galvin, a sister, and resides in the State of Pennsylvania; Nancy Carey, a widow of Jacob Carey, a deceased brother, and the following children of Jacob Carey, deceased, namely: Mame Jorden, who intermarried with Clarence Jorden, residing in the State of West Virginia; Myrtle Gross, who intermarried with Charles Gross, Lucele Campbell, who intermarried with Edward Campbell, all of the State of Virginia; Kathleen Shoemaker, who intermarried with Leland Shoemaker, and both of the State of West Virginia, and all nieces of the said Thomas A. Carey and daughters of the said Jacob Carey, a deceased brother of said Thomas A. Carey; James F. Keedy, a nephew of said Thomas A. Carey and a son of Mary J. Carey, a deceased sister, who intermarried with James F. Keedy, and resides in the State of West Virginia; and the following children of Lydia McMahon, a deceased sister of the said Thomas A. Carey, and nephews and nieces of the said Thomas A. Carey, namely: Daniel P. McMahon, Joseph McMahon, who married Leona McMahon, and all reside in the State of Pennsylvania; Rose Ellen Wagner, who married William B. Wagner, who both reside in the State of Pennsylvania; Mary Jane McMahon, residing in Garrett county; James P. McMahon, who married Henrietta McMahon, and reside in the State of Michigan; Clara McMahon, Marshall McMahon, Hugh C. McMahon, Lee A. McMahon, all of Garrett county, and John Keedy, husband of Mary Carey, deceased whose residence is unknown, but is a non-resident of this State. All of the said defendants are adults.

That administration of all and singular the personal estate of the said Thomas A. Carey has been granted by the Orphans' Court for Garrett county to one Hugh Carey McMahon, of said county, who by virtue thereof has possessed himself of the personal estate of the said Thomas A. Carey and has sold the same; a copy of said letters of administration granted on said estate of said Thomas A. Carey filed as a part hereof, marked "Exhibit D."

That the plaintiffs are informed and aver that said personal estate is not sufficient to discharge all the just debts due and owing by said intestate, Thomas A. Carey, at the time of his death; that they are advised the same, now in the hands of the said Hugh Carey McMahon, ought to be applied to the payment of the claims of the plaintiffs and other creditors of the said Thomas A. Carey so far as the same will extend, and that any deficiency in said personal estate ought to be supplied by a sale of all, or such part as may be necessary, of the real estate of the aforesaid debtor.

That the said Thomas A. Carey, was at the time of his death seized and possessed of a parcel of land situate in said Garrett county and known as Military Lot No. 598, containing 50 acres, and also of an undivided one-third interest in and to Military Lots Nos. 656, 657 and part of Lot No. 655, containing ten acres on the south side of said lot from a division line running east and west, and a part of Lot No. 654, being the land lying between Lot No. 657 on the south and the land of James Carey on the north side, the said interest being the same which was devised to said Thomas Carey by the last will and testament of Daniel Carey, probated and recorded in the Orphans' Court for Garrett county.

That an account may be taken under direction of this Court of the said debts, so as aforesaid due to the plaintiffs, and all other debts which were owing by said intestate at the time of his death, and which still remain unpaid; and also of the personal estate and effects of the said intestate received by or for the use of the said administrator aforesaid.

That the said personal estate may be applied in due course of adminstration, in payment of the debts of the said intestate due the plaintiffs and all other creditors who may come in and contribute to the expenses of this suit.

That the said real estate of the said Thomas A. Carey, deceased, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose, may be sold for the payment of so much of the aforesaid debts as may remain unsatisfied by the application of the personal estate as aforesaid, and general relief writ of subpoena against resident defendant and order of publication against non-resident defendants.

That after the filing of said bill, the said defendant, James Carey, one of the defendants in said cause, departed this life on the 10th day of June, 1927, leaving as his heirs at law: Rose E. Opel, a daughter who intermarried with Jacob Opel; John L. Carey, a son who married Rose Carey; Allen Carey, a son; Hazel V. Meese, a daughter, who intermarried with George Meese, residing in Garrett county; Mary J. Robinson, a daughter, who intermarried with George O. Robinson, all adults and residing in Allegany county, Maryland; Francis A. Carey, a grandson, and Mervin Odell Carey, a grandson, and both children of Mervin A. That upon order of Court passed in the above cause the said heirs of James Carey were made parties defendant; that an order of publication be issued against said non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 13th day of September, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, hy causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 15th day of Octoher, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court either in person or by solicitor, on or before the 1st day of November next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Easy Now For Consumers To Tell Choice Beef.

Maryland consumers will de well to familiarize themselves with a new service now being rendered by the United States Department of Agriculture designed to guide both the dealer and the consumer in the selection of beef, says W. E. Hunt, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the University of Maryland.

The new service consists of stamping prime and choice beef so that there will be no uncertainty about the quality purchased. Unfortunately in the past the housewife has had no means of knowing anything about the quality of meat purchased unless she happened to be a good judge and could make her own selectlons in person.

The system of grading provided by the new service makes it possible for the retailer handling high quality meat to offer his product to the publlc on a basis of complete guarantee. It also affords a means by which the purchaser may recognize without any question of doubt beef of prime or choice grades.

Graded and stamped beef is provided only upon request. The retailer may secure it when prime and choice beef is available on the market simply by notifying his wholesaler in advance. Consumers who appreciate good beef can be assured of having it if they will insist that their retailer carry this class for them.

Consumers can recognize the beef of prime or choice grade by the stamp marks running from the hock up the round, across the rump, loin, ribs and chuck to the neck parallel to another row of stamps, starting at that place and running across the upper arm. This stamp will say: "U. S. Choice Heifer," or "U. S. Prime Heifer," or "U. S. Choice Steer," or "U. S. Prime Steer."

The stamping is done so that practically every retail cut will have a portion of the stamp present on it.

Since May 1, 1927, when the grading service was inaugurated, more than ten million pounds of beef has carried the government stamp of grade, it is said.

Winter Pasture Good For Sheep and Swine.

A field of wheat or rye for pasture of hogs and sheep during the late fall, winter and spring months will prove vaulable to farmers in most sections of Maryland, says K. A. Clark, livestock specialist for the University of Maryland extension service.

Good use of such pasture can be made to supply green, succulent forage at seasons when other pastures are of little use and other feeds are expensive. Plenty of green forage during the winter months, says Mr. Clark, helps to keep sheep and hogs in better gaining, growing and breeding condition than if the animals are closely penned and denied such succulent feeds.

Spring lambs and pigs will be improved if the ewes and sows have had regular exercise throughout the winter in pasture fields. The trouble and expense of hauling manure will be less if the animals have the run of fields during the day time. Likewise, it is possible to secure a crop of grain from wheat and rye fields in addition to the pasture, provided too close grazing is not permitted for a long period.

Another feature, says Mr. Clark, is a reduction of troubles from parasites. Stomach worms of sheep cannot withstand much freezing and thawing weather while round worms of hogs are similarly susceptible to winter exposure. Lice and tick will not infest swine herds and sheep flocks so generally as if the animals are in the pen.

Fields sown to wheat or rye and used for sheep and hog pasture this winter will be usefully and profitably employed.

Seed Corn Situation Is Very Serious—Early Freeze Will Kill Many Million Bushels—Save Seed in Time.

Good seed corn will be scarcer next spring than at any time during the last 50 years. That is the outlook now with the corn crop in the corn belt from two to six weeks late and frost likely to come any night. There never was a time when early gathering, drying and storing of seed corn will pay greater than it will this fall. Unless we gather our own seed this fall thousands of us next spring will plant corn that is weak or dead. Or we will buy seed from way-off somewhere that is not suitable for our locality and as a result our next year's crop will again be weak and late.

Here is an important thing to bear in mind right now: Any farmer can have his own seed corn for next year if his corn this year gets past the roasting ear stage of maturity. Corn gathered in hard roasting ear stage and thoroughly dried will grow. It is surprising how vigorously it will grow. This early-gathered seed will shrink and shrivel considerably, but the important thing this year is the fact that it will grow.

In any emergency, delay is dangerous. The man who does something about his next year's seed before it is too late is the man who will have seed corn to plant in the spring of 1928. The man who uses his head can figure out a method of gathering and storing seed corn on his farm. He can swing a sack over his shoulder and pick the best ears from the best stalks. That's the right method when the corn is early or late. About fifteen ears will plant an acre. Better gather two or three times as much as will be needed to plant the acreage. How long will it take to gather next year's seed supply? How can we make more money in the same length of time?

Don't throw the immature ears down in a bag or leave them in a box or barrel. Don't put them in a pile. Hang them up so the ears will not touch each other. They'll mold where they touch. Don't hang them out of doors—it may rain and then freeze. Hang them where warm air will circulate all around them. There's some place on the farm to thoroughly dry next year's seed corn. It may be over the kitchen.

Get the seed dry and keep it thru the winter and where it won't freeze. Freezing never does seed corn any good no matter how dry the seed is. No one denies the statement that seed corn is better when it ripens and hardens on the stalk, but it won't do it this year. It's a lot better to have immature seed that will grow and be suitable for the locality than to have no seed next spring, or to send away off for seed corn that may not mature, no matter how good a corn year 1928 may be. If frost stays away until November and the corn gets ripe, we can then gather ripe seed. Don't wait for that, but take advantage of it if it comes. Don't take a gambler's chance of waiting for ripe seed this year. Let's insure ourselves now at little cost with roasting ear seed.

Do something; do it now; gathering roasting ear seed is good business this abnormal corn year of 1927.

H. P. Miller Buys Stud Rams.

Mr. H. P. Miller, at Grantsville, has just purchased two stud rams to use at the head of his Shropshire and Hampshire flocks. The Shropshire ram is a good sized, heavy yearling, nicely wooled and very typy. He came from the Buckland Hall flock at Nokesville, Va. The Hampshire is a good yearling purchased from H. H. CHEVROLET TEST CARS ARE RUN 3,000,000 MILES

This Record Has Been Accomplished In Three Years.

(Advertisement)

Three million mlies of testing!

That is the record of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Three years ago this month Chevrolet first began using the facilities of the General Motors proving grounds at Milford, Mich., to develop and perfect its products and in that time threo million miles have been piled up by Chevrolet test cars, it was announced last week by O. E. Hunt, chief engineer of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

"An average of twelve Chevrolet test cars are on view constantly at the proving grounds, purring up the steep inclines, ploughing through the deep sand or mud roads, testing speed and endurance on the track, or undergoing any one of many severe trials that a car is put through at this 'sweat shop' for automobiles, explained Mr. Hunt.

Each Car Driven 3 Months.

"Each test car is driven about three months and in that time totals from 30,000 to 50,000 miles. While many cars are driven farther, the average is probably not higher, because that distance is sufficient to prove any mechanical feature we may have under observation or to reveal any fault that may require correction.

"After a car attains this mileage it is taken to our experimental laboratory and there dismantled under the supervision of engineers. Every part is tested and inspected, all evidences of wear are noted and if any detail is not as it should be we get to work immediately developing a new part or process to replace the old.

"The new feature then is built into an entirely new car—or three cars if the operation is vital—and this ear in turn goes through the rigid rites of the proving grounds and then to the laboratory. This cycle continues until we have arrived at the proper solution of the problem."

When They Go To School.

"Underweight" was written opposite the names of one out of every six children examined at the child health conferences held throughout the State under the auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, during the first six months of the current year—569 out of a total of 3609 children under seven years old. A large proportion of the "underweights" came from children who were getting ready to enter school.

Commenting on these figures, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., chief of the Bureau, said: "Children who are underweight may be getting plenty of food, but they are not getting the right sort of food.

"The youngster who has escaped the perils of babyhood and of the three or four years following and has graduated from the before-school age into being a real school boy or girl—a first grader—needs all the health and strength he can muster to stand the strain physically and mentally of the change to school life.

"The things necessary to keep children healthy are not many. Generally speaking, they are fresh air, and sunlight, rest at least ten hours in bed every night, and last but perhaps the most important, a diet suited to the rapid growth of the child and to the active life he leads.

"Foods can be divided into three groups:

"1. The protective foods—those required for growth and to prevent certain common diseases, such as scurvy and rickets. Examples of foods of this class are milk, green vegetables, fruit and eggs.

"2. Body building foods, regulating foods, such as lean meat, milk, cereals made of whole grains, fruit, green vegetables, etc.

"3. Heat and energy giving foods, such as bacon, butter, milk, cream, bread, hominy, potatoes, molasses, syrup, sweet desserts.

"It will be noticed that several foods belong in more than one group. Every mother should know how to combine and prepare these foods in the proper amount for the growing child. A list of suggested combinations may be secured by writing to the Bureau of Child Hygiene.

"It is rather unfortunate that the school hours make it necessary for many children to have their dinner in the evening. It is better to have this larger meal at midday. In addition, whenever it can possibly be arranged, young children should have a nap or at least a resting time in the early afternoon."

BARBARA FREITCHIE

The Real Heroine of Mr. Whittier's Popular Poem.

From a newspaper clipping bearing date October 30, 1884, in possession of a member of the family of the publisher of The Republican, a true version of the real heroine of Whittier's poem, "Barbara Freitchie," is claimed to be given. The article in question and in full appears herewith:

A correspondent of the Boston Herald says that the real heroine of Whittier's poem, "Barbara Freitchie," was Mrs. Mary A. Quantrell, and that the Quantrell family has letters from Mr. Whittier acknowledging his mistake. Mr. Joseph Walker, of Washington, tells the story as follows:

"I'll tell you the exact particulars, and they have never before been correctly given. I have never given my account of that affair. None of the versions heretofore published are accurate. In the first place, there was none of the poetic incidents mentioned by Whittier. There was no window sill and there was no old woman about it. Mrs. Mary A. Quantrell was at that time a woman of 32, black haired, and tho she did become my mother-in-law afterwards, I must say she was very pretty. Her husband was then at work as a compositor on the National Intelligencer in this city, and Mrs. Quantrell was living in Frederick with her children. On the day that Jackson and his army passed through Frederick, she and her little daughter, Virgie Quantrell, who is now the wife of Mr. Perry Brown, at present an employe of the Government Printing Office, were standing at the gate. They had several small Union flags which they brought there to wave as the Confederates marched by. Mr. Quantrell was enthusiastically loyal, and she, womanlike, simply took advantage of the occasion to show her devotion to the Union. They stood within a few feet of the line of march. Virgie was waving a very small flag, such as children play with on patriotic days. Many of the Rebel soldiers had called out: "Throw down that flag!" but the little girl kept waving it. Suddenly a lieutenant drew his sword and cut the staff in two, the flag falling to the ground. The little girl took another small flag and waved it, and this, in turn, was cut from her hand. Then Mrs. Quantrell displayed a larger flag and waved it in a conspicuous manner. This she contiued to do until Stonewall Jackson and his men had all marched past her house. She was not molested in the least. In faet, many of the officers and men treated her with marked courtesy. Some of the officers raised their hats and said:

"To you, madam; not to your flag."

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL WEEK NEXT CELEBRATION

Garrett County Institutions Will Observe Two of Seven Days of Educational Program.

As part of a nation-wide celebration of Educational Week to be held under the auspices of the American Legion and the National Education Association, Armistice Day and Citizenship Day will be observed in Garrett county schools and communities on Friday, November 11, and for God and Country Day, Sunday, November 13, it was announced last night by County Superintendent of Schools.

The purpose of American Education week, as stated in the Journal of the National Education Association, is to acquaint the public with the actual work of the schools, with their ideals, their achievements and their needs.

In pursuance of this plan, each day of the week of November 6 to and including the 13th, will represent something different. The days to be observed over the county are Health Day, November 7; Home and School Day, Tuesday, November 8; Know Your School, Wednesday; School Opportunity Day, Thursday; Armistice and Citizenship Day, Friday; Community Day, Saturday; For God and Country Day, Sunday. Garrett county will celebrate two days—Friday, November 11, and Sunday, November 13, Mr. Rathbun said.

Ministers' Aid Is Sought.

On Sunday, November 13, ministers of the communities of Garrett county are asked to base their sermons on the higher values of education and on the work of teachers and pupils in the schools of the county.

On Friday, November 11, Armistice and Citizenship Day will be observed according to the suggestions of the Jorurnal of the National Education Association, which stated in its Octaber issue:

Armistice Day provides the opportunity for a program of the highest patriotic quality. It marks the date when the thought of the world changed from war duties to the peaceful pursuits of life and to the duties of citizenship. Let the memory of the joy over the news received nine years ago today by the folks at home and the boys abroad serve as an inspiration for promoting education throughout the nation.

The success of demoeratic government depends upon the faithful performance by each citizen of his public duty. By living as citizens of the school, children learn to be citizens of the larger society. School study in geography, history, current events and social eivics prepares children for citizenship duties. Schools aid immigrants to understand and meet problems of everyday American life. Schools eliminate race hatreds and develop that mutual sympathy, respect and understanding essential to loyal eitizenship.

It is significant that the men who conquered by the use of arms in the World War are the ones to lead in the movement to avoid future wars through education, which is the foundation of understanding and cooperation.

Suggestions For Cooperating Organizations.

Local patriotic associations will cooperate in the observance of Armistice Day. In many communities the American Legion will wish to take a leading part. One of the first steps in planning for this day is to consult the officers of the Legion. They should be encouraged to do all they can. It should be remembered that the purpose of Education Week is to arouse the enthusiasm of the public, who pay the taxes and maintain the schools. Effeetive cooperation may also be expeeted from other patriotic and eivic organizations who will be glad to aid by means of pageants, special meetings and addresses at regular meetings. Let emphasis be laid on the services of American statesmen who have been friends and advocates of the public schools.

Suggestions For Addresses

This day is a good time to point out that one of the best ways to honor those who have held the nation's battle lines in behalf of independence, national integrity and world justice is to make the nation still greater through the power of education. There is a challenge to live for loved ones, for public duty and for the rights of men as well as to die for them. Let us magnify our teachers as we have magnified our soldiers—both devoted, patriotie servants of our common destiny. Let us teach every child his debt to all the men and women living and dead who have helped to build the community in which he lives, his state, his nation, his world. America's supreme contribution to the world is its free public schools. Our record in the World War was a flaming tribute to their work. We must love these schools, fire them with the loftiest ideals of patriotism, learn their needs, work on their problems, make them better and better. The highest test of a statesman is his attritude toward the educatlon of the masses.

CANNING COMPANY WANTS LARGER ACREAGE IN CORN

Owner of Local Concern Talks to Farm Group Monday Afternoon

State Senator N. H. Fooks, owner of the Mount Airy Canning Company, whose plant is located at Mountain Lake Park, talked to a group of about forty farmers of the community Monday afternoon, the meeting having been held at the eanning factory, concerning the likelihood of the producers raising an increased acreage of eorn in this section next year.

A new type of eorn will be introduced, which is said to grow larger and produce more fodder than the product heretofore grown. This, according to Mr. Fooks, will benefit the farmers in that they will have a much greater supply of rough feed for their stock.

J. L. McGlone, County Agent, also gave a short talk on the proposed new dairy plant to be loeated in this community.

The farmers present at the meeting entered into contracts with the canning owner to grow peas next season. Sufficient acreage, however, was not obtained for the needs of the factory, but other contracts are in view and these will be entered into until the necessary acreage for this important crop has been secured, according to Howard Rheinhardt, manager of the local plant.

BARNS BEING REMODELED TO FIT NEW DAIRY NEEDS

All Farmers Interviewed are Reconstructing Their Stables

Preparations for the construction of dairy barns and the converting of old barns into present-day dairy barns are being made with all possible speed, J. L. McGlone, County Agent, said yesterday. A number of farmers have already made some changes and many more have asked the county agent for plans for modern dairy barns.

All those who have been seen within the past few weeks have been very enthusiastic about the new dairy project and have been more than willing to fit their barns in accordance with the requirements of the Chestnut Farms Dairy of Washington, according to Mr. McGlone.

J. A. Hodges, district baggage and milk agent for the Baltimore and Ohio will be here the first part of next week to start a dairy survey. He will remain in Oakland and vicinity for several weeks.

John P. Dugan, general baggage agent of the milk transportation division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and Henry Brawner, of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, will be in Oakland within a short time to look over the dairy conditions in this community and to select a suitable site for the proposed milk shipping plant, which is to be located here.

Mr. Dugan and Mr. Brawner were to have been here on October 1, but owing to more pressing duties at the Fair of the Iron Horse, Mr. Dugan found it impossible to fill his engagement. He has told Mr. McGlone, however, that he will be here at the first opportunity.

In the meantime, Mr. McGlone advises that all who desire to remodel their barns should communicate with him immediately so that preparations may be made for the accomplishment of this work in the near future.

WRECK THURSDAY SPOILS PROSPECTS OF MARRIAGE

Smashes Into Another Car On Way to Gretna Green.

Prospects for an early married life were interrupted last Thursday for a Kingwood (W. Va.) man when the Ford car which he was driving ran into a Ford roadster driven by Mr. J. O. Hinebaugh, of Oakland, at a point about one mile from town on the Crellin highway. The damage to both cars amounted to about $40, and both parties agreed that they would take their losses. No one was injured, but the records at the Court House do not disclose that the contemplated marriage ever took place, at least not in this county.

Car Smashes Into Culvert.

A. L. Radcliffe, of Thomas, W. Va., blinded by the glare from an approaching ear, wrecked his Oldsmobile coach Sunday night when he ran into a culvert on the State road about a mile north of town. No one was seriously injured, although the car was damaged to the extent of about $75. The occupants of the wrecked machine went on to their homes at Thomas the same evening by bus, leaving the machine at a local garage for repairs.

ROAD SOCIETY CHOOSES ITS OFFICERS AT MEETING HERE

West Va. Organization Passes a Resolution Urging Maryland to Complete Northwestern Pike.

At the annual meeting of the Northwestern Turnpike Association of West Virginia, held at the William-James Hotel in Oakland, Monday, at which forty or more were present, it was said that at the present rate of road-building on the part of the State of Maryland it will be at least three or perhaps four years, before the pike is completed through Garrett county, as about five and a half miles of roadway remain untouched insofar as rehabilitation of the highway in Maryland is concerned. West Virginia has completed the road or has contracts for the completion of every mile of the highway now in force.

The meeting in Oakland, which is a central point for the majority of the members of the association, was held mainly for the purpose of electing officers of the organization and resulted in the unanimous choice of the following:

President, A. A. Pickering, Rowlesburg; vice-president, John J. Cornwall, Romney; vice-president, H. C. Compton, Grafton; treasurer, O. C. Wilt, Clarksburg; secretary, Charles E. Morgan, Clarksburg.

A large delegation from Union District, Grant county, West Va., attended the meeting for the purpose of interesting members of the association in having a hard surface road built from Bayard to Gormania to connect with the pike at the latter point, but nothing was done in the matter, as the meeting was not called for the purpose of considering anything except the election of officers and the transaction of routine affairs. Senator A. D. Naylor, of Oakland, addressed the association for a few minutes.

Resolutions Passed.

A resolution, introduced by a committee appointed for the purpose, was presented and unanimously passed by the body as follows:

WHEREAS, There is every reasonable assurance that the States of West Virginia and Virginia will have completed, before the close of the year 1928 those sections of the Northwestern Turnpike which traverse them, thus leaving a section of some five or six miles only in the State of Maryland for which no assurance of early completion seems to have been given; and,

WHEREAS, The early completion of the said Northwestern Turnpike is a matter of interstate importance and nation-wide interest; be it therefore

RESOLVED, That the Maryland State Highway Commission be urged and entreated by the Northwestern Turnpike Association, Incorporated, to devise ways and means to complete the remaining mileage in Garrett county, and to include the same in its program of work for 1928.

Next Meeting to be Held at Thomas.

Thomas, West Va., was chosen as the place of the next annual meeting of the association, which will be held in October, 1928.

Those present at the Oakland meeting were A. A. Pickering, H. R. Hollis, D. A. Jackson, Rowlesburg; John Moore, O. C. Wilt, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bish, Miss Marie Bish, C. E. Morgan, Clarksburg; Prof. J. W. Stayman, Dr. W. J. Koeltz, Senator E. B. Reynolds, Keyser; Ernest McCoy, L. E. McWhorter, Fairmont; C. J. Powell, T. F. Martin, Romney; Senator A. L. Helmick, H. L. Bowlers Are Sent Letters.

Letters were sent out this past week to all members of last year's bowling league, inviting them to participate again this year, and notifying them that the season would open on November 1, Bill Gibson announced a day or two ago.

Crellin has already sent in its list of players, who are to comprise two teams, and the Presbyterians of Oakland are said to be in favor of entering a team. With the eight teams of last year's organization and the three additional ones, Oakland's bowling league appears to be on the increase and members of the league are looking forward with pleasure to the opening of the season.

Practice periods will be the same as last year, according to the management of the league.

TRIAL OF MABEL SWANN WILL BE CALLED MONDAY

Woman, Charged With Murder of Landlord, Will Enter Plea of Self-defense at Cumberland

Charged with having shot and killed her landord, Daniel Mosser, a Baltimore and Ohio engineer, at her home near Swanton several months ago, Mabel Swann, a nurse, who was indicted for the offense at the June Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court, will be placed on trial in the Allegany County Court at Cumberland on Monday, to which court the case was removed by her attorneys.

Miss Swann will be defended by Fuller Barnard, Jr., former Judge W. C. Walsh, David A. Robb and William R. Offutt. Julius C. Renninger, State's Attorney for Garrett county, will be assisted in the prosecution of the case by William A. Huster, State's Attorney of Allegany county.

It was undecided at a late hour last night whether Miss Swann would be taken to Cumberland on Saturday or Monday. She has been held in the Garrett County Jail ever since the commission of the crime.

A plea of self-defense will be entered, according to her counsel. The murder took place at the home of Miss Swann on May 23. The place was owned by Daniel Mosser, of Keyser, who went there ostensibly to collect rent due him from the tenant. Miss Swann has stated that she was forced to shoot him after he had broken a door down in an effort to enter the building and in the face of warnings that she would shoot him should he persist in entering the house. There were no witnesses.

Her arrest followed the commission of the crime, Miss Swann herself having notified the officials in Oakland that she had shoot and killed the man. Her incarceration in the local jail followed and it is said that she has become more and more restless as the day set for the trial approaches.

She came to Oakland four years ago from Kingwood and lived for a short time on a farm west of town. Later she moved to the Mosser place. She claims to have graduated from some hospital in Baltimore as a nurse, and has a sister and mother residing in Baltimore at this time.

Man Is Presented With a New Hudson Brougham.

Stranger than fiction, Aesop's Fables or Grimm's Fairy Tales, is the story of George Froggatt, of Bayard, West Va., twelve miles south of Oakland on the Potomac River, who purchased a Hudson Brougham about a year ago, ran it continuously until six weeks ago when he claims that the steering gear locked and caused the car to upset, damaging the body and other parts of the machine beyond repair.

The car was wrecked at a point near Petersburg, West Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Froggatt, son and daughter and a neighbor's wife and daughter were more or seriously injured. Mr. Froggatt professed his inability to have the car repaired and in a very respectful and friendly letter wrote the Hudson Motor Car Company, at Detroit, and explained his predicament, mentioning the cause of the accident and asking what might be done. Several referces were given by Mr. Froggatt in his letter.

Last Saturday, following several inspection trips by the motor company's representatives at Bayard and also at the point where the accident occurred, Treacy's Garage, Oakland, upon an order from the Hudson company, presented Mr. Froggatt with a new 1928 Hudson Brougham, which cost $200 more than the one that had been in the upset. Mr. Froggatt also received remuneration for the time which he was unable to work, his daughter received $25 for injuries sustained, his neighbor also received a like amount and all hospital blls were paid by the company.

The wrecked car was driven into the Treacy Garage here on Saturday under its own power with the chassis and motor only of the entire mechanism intact. The rest of the car is an entire wreck. Mr. Froggatt, notwithstanding his age, should be a staunch believer in Santa Claus.

Oakland and Grantsville played to a 0-0 tie last Friday afternoon at the Grantsville school, but the Grantsville girls were victorious at volley ball, winning 23-7. This week the local teams will play Accident at Accident on Friday afternoon.

LITTLE GIRL DIES DAY AFTER BROTHER'S BIRTH

Joy of Couple at Son's Arrival Turns to Grief.

The joy of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Gnegy, of Douglas, W. Va., over the birth of a son on Tuesday, was turned to grief the following day when their daughter, Norma Arlene, aged three years and 12 days, died after an illness of only a few hours. The little girl had been in the best of health and was happy over the arrival of a little brother to share her playthings when taken suddenly ill.

The funeral was conducted at the Lutheran church at Red House, Garrett county ,last Thursday. Mrs. Gnegy is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Smith, of Cumberland, and is the niece of Harry L. Smith, former City Commissioner and county tax collector for the Cumberland district.

OAKLAND HIGH STUDENTS TO PUBLISH THE ACORN

Official Newspaper To Appear Four Times This School Year —First Issue Out Tuesday

The first issue of "The Acorn," student publication of the Oakland High School, is due to make its appearance Tuesday, October 25, and will thereafter be published once every two months, according to Miss Elizabeth Heath, one of the faculty advisors of the staff of the paper.

The publication will consist of four pages of four columns each and will have news, editorial, literary and humor content written by the students of the school.

Leonard Murphy is editor, and Mary Louise Helbig is assistant editor. Jas. Dodge will be business manager. Two assistant editors from each class of the school will complete the staff.

The publication will carry no advertisements, it has been stated by the manager, and will be on sale to students and townspeople for ten cents each. Two hundred copies will be printed, material for which will be in the hands of the printers tomorrow.

This is the first attempt to publish a high school newspaper that is for the whole school by the local institution. Journals have been printed at various intervals during the school year by the various classes in years past, but "The Acorn" will be the official paper of the high school from now on is the plan at present.

MID-OCTOBER'S RAIN AND SNOW CAUSE DAMAGE

Garrett County Experiences a Four-inch Fall of Snow.

Rain, which started to fall Sunday afternoon and which has swollen the streams in many parts of the eastern section especially near Cumberland, where a flood is feared, covered practically all of Garrett county with more than four inches of snow, and it was estimated that more than six inches had fallen near Meyersdale, Pa.

The fall was so heavy that thousands of trees, especially the maples, which have not yet shed their leaves, were broken down by the weight of the snow gathering upon the branches. Many apple orchards are said to have been damaged or destroyed. Late apples not yet picked, formed a basis for the great weight of snow which the tree trunks and wide spreading limbs could not withstand.

Telephone and telegraph wires, destroyed by the snow and rain interrupted communication in this section to a great extent, through wires leading east and west all being down, but repairmen had the service back to normal Tuesday evening.

Passenger and freight traffic on the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland railroads operated on schedule time, officials reported.

Grantsville was without electric or telephone service Monday and Tuesday morning, and other towns were likewise without service for a short time.

The snow has been followed by heavy rains at various points in the county, which has melted practically all of the white layer which fell quite steadily from Monday evening until Tuesday night.

A former resident of Oakland, who is now here on a visit after an absence of some years, stated yesterday that fifty-two years ago on the 16th of the present month, Garrett county was covered with snow to a depth of sixteen inches.

INDIAN TRAIN WILL STOP IN OAKLAND ON SUNDAY

Forty Red Men Who Took Part in Railroad Pageant To Tarry Here For Ten Minutes

The forty or more Indians of the Blackfoot tribe, part of the Great Northen Railway's contribution to the success of the Baltimore and Ohio Centenary Exhibition and Pageant, headed by Chief Two Guns White Calf, will arrive in Oakland somewhere around three o'clock Sunday afternoon on their long trek to their homes on the reservation near Glacier National Park.

To Stop Here For Ten Minutes

A long distance call this morning to H. R. Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, by the editor of The Republican, brought a favorable reply to the suggestion that the train stop here for approximately ten minutes.

A later message from Mr. Laughlin's office conveyed the information that the matter had been placed in the hands of the Great Northwestern Railway's representatives who would communicate direct with The Republican later in the day.

Exact Time of Arrival Uncertain

The exact time of the arrival of the train is not certain, but the schedule received at The Republican office this morning calls for its arrival at Grafton at 6:00 o'clock Sunday evening. The approximate time of the arrival in Oakland, therefore, will be somewhere about three o'clock.

The train left Baltimore this morning at 7:00 o'clock after the first Americans had folded their wigwams and stowed them aboard the little William Crooks train along with the picturesque bull boats, Red River ox carts and primitive travois, the types of pre-railroad transportation brought east with them. Just as picturesque as their costumes and feather-plumed headgear will be the William Crooks train in which the Indians will journey toward their home in the land of the setting sun. The William Crooks train was the first railway train to be operated west of the Mississippi in the State of Minnesota.

To Show Pictures of Inter-State Road Opening.

Moving pictures of the parade and celebration of the opening of the Oakland-Thomas highway which occurred at Gnegy Church, nine miles south of Oakland two weeks ago, will be shown tomorrow night at the Maryland Theatre in Oakland. Portions of the line of automobiles, the decorations at the State line and the speakers will be seen, along with a number of views along the way.

Young Farmer Hurt in Fall from Hay Mow in Barn

Plunging twenty-five feet from a hay-loft to the barn floor, Jonas Beachy, 22-year-old Grantsville farmer, sustained a fractured right hip and left arm Tuesday afternoon. He fell through a trap door, which was covered with hay, while at work in the barn.

The young man was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland, where he was attended by Dr. W. A. Gracie. He was reported to be resting comfortably last night.

Band Now Has 22 Members

Two additional members of the Oakland Boys' Band has brought the total membership up to twenty-two is the announcement made yesterday by R. R. Gilbert, director. Both the boys are the possessors of good instruments, Mr. Gilbert said, and since the organization of the Band Auxiliary, two new instruments have been purchased by the parents of two other boys.

"It is surprising what a difference the new horns make," Mr. Gilbert stated. "All the boys are doing splendidly and we have been having some very successful practice sessions every Tuesday evening."

IMPROVEMENTS ARE MADE ON THE U. OF M. CAMPUS

New Walks, Roads and Buildings Being Constructed by Appriations of Last Legislature

College Park, Md. (Special).—With money appropriated by the last Legislature, on recommendtion of Governor Ritchie, the University of Maryland, at College Park and in Baltimore, is now undergoing many much needed improvements, especially with reference to roads, sidewalks, and campus. Work was started on these several weeks before the university opened and many sections of the sidewalks are now complete. The roads, which are being built by Thomas, Bennett and Hunter of Westminster, under the direction of the State Roads Commission, will be ready for use within a few months.

Plans for the new road system call for two main gateways; the present one, and a new one to be built at the side of the Experiment Station. A road connecting the two gateways will curve across the front of the hill to serve a future Administration Building. The roads will be of the park type and will have a concrete base with six-inch concrete shoulders, and an amiesite top.

Landscape designs for the entire campus embody the planting of trees and shrubs. Besides the general system of planting, the plans provide for a small lake to the right of the main entrance drive, directly across from the gymnasium. The roads and walks and general landscaping have been laid out by O. C. Simonds, of Chicago, one of the foremost landscape architects in the country.

It is also the intention of the authorities to change the entrances of the Engineering Building, Morril Hall and possibly the Old Library and Chemistry Buildings to make them conform in a general way with entrances of the newer buildings. This would mean building the tall white stone pillars at the entrances and would indeed add greatly to the beauty and dignity of the buildings.

Work on the Chemistry Building has practically been completed and classes will be held there within the next few weeks. This is one of the most modern laboratories in any university in the country. With the money given by the State for this building, and with many private gifts, this building has been fitted with the very best of equipment. Laboratories for research work and a department for State Feed, Lime and Fertilizer Control have been built and equipped.

In February, money will be available for a new $200,000 Library and work will be started on that early in the spring. Improvements now going on and contemplated should, within the next year, give Maryland's State University one of the most attractive campuses in the country.

In Baltimore a large classroom and laboratory building for the Dental and Pharmacy Schools is to be erected, an addition to the nurses' home, and improvements to the hospital also are being made.

And How?

Do you play Tiddly-Winks? If so, you will in all probability have the opportunity of enjoying a few lessons that are going to be given by Dr. Juniper Socrates, who has promised to write his articles on this interesting indoor sport exclusively for Scoop in The Republican each week. They will begin next Thursday, if everything goes well with Dr. Socrates.

Tiddly-Winks has become the leading entertainment and amusement in many homes and for this reason The Republican has secured the servcies, at great expense, of Dr. Socrates, who is an acknowledged authority on the subject.

Dr. Socrates has also been seen on the stage, having appeared several years ago in "Wet Pants," the play that soaked everybody for an eyefull.

It is Juniper himself, who claims that he is the only living person who can jump two men in the glass at the same time and not bat an eye.

Look in Scoop's column next week for Dr. Socrates' explanation of the many intricate plays.

The First Snowfall.

once upon a skylight dreary,
as I pondered meek and leary,
something touched me on the cheek.
the weather being cold and bleak,
i thought at first it must be rain;
on looking up i thought again,
and thought of poems long ago,
of whittier and allen poe.

the first snowfall; o happy day,
what could be sweeter
than to formulate metre, telling of its wondrous power—but before i took the pain the snow turned into rain.
so what's the use—
i can't write poetry anyhow.

ALL QUIET.

"No arrests this week," was the answer to the usual weekly question asked of police authorities in Oakland. Although, according to the Mountain Echo, Keyser, W. Va., such an answer down there is quite usual, it happens to have been many weeks since Garrett county authorities could say that. There is hardly a week goes by that does not find someone in the arms of the law. And according to some that can mean two things. Either Garrett county people are getting good or it is just a lull before a storm. Just which one of these solutions it is no one can say.

BUSINESS VERSUS SEASONS

The devastation wrought by the recent rain and snow storm may be seen in all parts of Garrett county—wires broken, telephone and electric service interrupted, fruit trees damaged, shade trees with the leaves yet upon them, snapped off and probably many other signs of destructiveness yet unknown to the general public—and everybody is hollering for a better autumn. People are reluctant to have winter slip in on them and render almost a knockout at the beginning of the bout.

But there is something that the storm didn't ruin. It only served to stimulate it. It was overstocked, but the heavy snow only served to lighten its burden. That something was BUSINESS in Garrett county.

Seasons have come and gone since time immemorial and will still come and go when the inhabitants of Mars are warring upon the nations of the earth, and it is a fact that seasons stimulate business. For proof of this one need only to go back to the past spring and summer. In nature's mix-up this year, there was hardly anything that could be called "spring weather." On the other hand, there was no real "summer weather." It was all about the same temperature, and as a consequcnce there was no buying stimulus. Nobody bought summer apparel, for it was too cold to wear such.

Necessity of preparing for the extreme change of weather conditions, however, makes every store busy and the Oakland merchants have stated that within the past few days business has been at its best.

The change of weather that resulted in the damage of service lines, that ruined orchards and broke down shade and ornamental trees was the direct cause of that stimulus. And so it must go on for all time. There are two sides to everything. If the weather changes for the worst, other things will change for the good, so let the cold weather come.

But in the meantime, The Republican hopes that proper arrangements will be made whereby spring and summer won't be forgotten, and instead arrive on schedule time next year. Too much cold is more than plenty.

THE DRUG STORE.

The varied commercial character of the modern pharmacy, observes the head of a pharmacy school, though sometimes criticised as having no proper connection with the traffic in medical supplies, has brought an ancient profession to new honor and dignity.

How so? By becoming a general merchant and handling more popular and profitable lines of goods than mere drugs, the druggist is able to have a roomy, well-lighted store on a valuable street corner, and to be not only a professional man but a successful business man. Thus he rises in the world, and his family with him, and standards are raised, and young men of ability are attracted to the profession and enabled to prepare themselves for it better than their predecessors.

An onlooker cannot but marvel that any human being should be capable of conducting, at the same time and at the same place, for about 15 hours a day, a drug store, soda fountain, restaurant, candy store, tobacco store, news stand, stationery store, photographic store, and about a dozen other kinds of store, and get away with it professionally and commercially. Is there any other kind of commercial institution, short of a big department store, so useful and indispensable as the American drug store?—Cumberland Evening Times.

REV. J. C. BEAHM FILES AN ACTION FOR SLANDER

Preacher-Teacher Prosecutor In Suit for $30.000 Damages

(Meyersdale Republican)

Rev. J. C. Beahm, aged 55, pastor of the County Line Church of the Brethren near Jones Mill, and former teacher in the Jones Mill schools in Donegal Township, Westmoreland county, has filed suit against John Kalp, a school director of that township, asking $30,000 damages for alleged slanderous remarks uttered by the latter some months ago.

According to the statement of claim Kalp's daughter, Margaret, aged 15 years, was a pupil in Beahm's school during the last term and in January and February, Beahm alleges, Kalp openly charged among the residents of that district that the minister-teacher had attempted to have immoral relations with Margaret Kalp, while she was attending school. Beahm further avers that Kalp circulated the report that he could prove it by notes alleged to have been wrtiten by Beahm to the girl.

Beahm further avers that Kalp appeared before the ministerial board of the Church of the Brethren in the district of Pennsylvania and made affidavit to the charges during a meeting of the board on April 2. The charges made against him at the church board meeting were made in an attempt to oust him.

At the meeting of the school directors of the Jones Mill district, Beahm avers, he was not re-elected to the school there but later was engaged to teach the Donegal school.

The minister denies all of the alleged remarks attributed by Kalp and furthernfore avers that he has been irreparably injured in that community. Beahm is a married man and has several children.

It is said that prior to the alleged remarks made by Kalp the minister-teacher had incurred the ill will of Kalp hy a thrashing he administered to a son of the defendant.

Beahm was principal of the Salisubry and Boswell schoolssomeyears ago and is well known in Somerset county and also in Garrett county, Md., where he was also engaged ln teaching and preaching before coming to this county. After leaving Somerset county he was principal of schools at South Connellsville for several years. He came to Garrett county, Md., from Virginia.

How Schools Prepare.

1 By making the school a little democracy in whose activities all have an interest and a share.

2. By helping each child to study the needs of people as illustrated by his neighborhood and to understand how those needs are served by government, by corporations or by individual enterprise.

3. By so arousing the interest of young people in the record of human progress that they continue their observation, reading and reflection after they leave school.

4. By teaching children the facts about voting, holding office, sincere and intelligent public sentiment, the solution of public problems by persons who have no selfish interest to serve, and other ideals which look toward wise management in community, state, nation and world.

5. By attention to current economic and social problems and the various solutions that are proposed.

6. By helping young people to understand the spirit of fairness, justice, research and goodwill which should govern the approach to all controversial problems.

7. By developing an appreciation of and loyalty to the principles that underlie our American democratic government.

Lesson for October 23

THE CALL OF THE PROPHET

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19:19, 20; Amos 7:10-15; Isa. 6:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then I said, Here am I, send me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Chooses His Helpers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Call to Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Spirit of the Volunteer.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Need for Modern Prophets.

A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of another. A prophet may foretell events, but his primary business is to speak forth God's message.

I. The Call of Elisha (I Kings 19:19, 20).

1. His occupation. He seems to have been a well-to-do farmer, as there were twelve yoke of oxen in service when God called him. It was while engaged in his common duty that he received the divine call.

2. How he was called. Elijah cast his mantle upon him as he passed by.

II. The Call of Amos (Amos 7:10-15).

1. His occupation (v. 14). He was a herdsman and gatherer of sycamore fruit.

2. He was a prophet, not by succession nor trained in the prophetic schools.

3. God called him from his humble life to stand before the king. God is not straitened for helpers. He raises up workers from unexpected quarters, fills them with His Spirit and sends them forth.

III. The Call of Isaiah (Isa. 6:1-8).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. 1-4). No one's ministry will ever be fruitful until he has had a vision of the Lord.

(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him, even to see Him on His throne. Just now, perhaps as never before, we need a vision of the enthroned Lord, as the awful darkness is settling down upon the world.

(2) He saw the Seraphim above (vv. 2, 3). Their standing indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. Their equipment with six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. In the divine presence, one pair was needed to veil the head from the divine glory, one pair veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third pair was suspended in midair waiting to depart on the divine errand. As they waited in His presence their continued cry was "Holy, holy, holy."

(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4). As the holy ones cried the very doorposts moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke indicates the divine presence in anger (Ex. 19:18; 20:18).

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6). When he got a vision of the holy God he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason that men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord, Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile. He realized that he had sinned in speech, and if in speech, then in heart, therefore the cry of despair.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv. 6, 7). Having been convicted of and confessed his sin, a burning coal was sent from the altar which purged away his sin. His penitential guilt was forgiven and removed.

4. Isaiah's call (v. 8). His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is the soul ready for the Lord's service.

5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8). As soon as he was cleansed he quickly responded for service. The one who has been sanctified and made meet for the Master's service readily responds to the call of God. He did not wait to see the end from the beginning, but freely gave himself up to that service.

6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13). Because of the unpromising outlook, Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. He saw the people steeped in selfishness, but in spite of that the Lord assured him that their blindness and sin would not continue forever. The people would go on in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate; but as the oak, after shedding its leaves is for a time apparently lifeless, yet it retains its substance and so can manifest its life, the prophet is given to see under this figure that despite the deadness of the nation a remnant shall be saved. The holy seed of the kingdom shall come to fruitage in the last days.

Never before was a low-priced car so delightful to drive as today's Chevrolet!
Fast get-away . . . easy, smooth operation . . . high speed roadability . . . unfailing power . . . and flashy acceleration——exactly the type of performance that everyone wants in an automobile today!
In addition, there is all the finger-tip steering, all the positive braking and effortless gear shifting that have made Chevrolet so decidedly popular for congested traffic.
And never before was a low-priced car so comfortable—for Chevrolet springs are 88% as long as the wheelbase . . . and built of chrome vanadium steel!
Come in! Learn what a feeling of confidence it gives you to drive a car that is powered for the exceptional need . . . that is smooth and quiet at every speed . . . that responds to the slightest pressure on the steering wheel.
Then you'll know why millions have acclaimed today's Chevrolet as the finest performer in the low-price field!

MORE THAN 1,500,000 IN ATTENDANCE AT PAGEANT

Parade Passed In Review Saturday for Last Time.

With another record attendance of over 100,000 persons at the Centenary Exhibition and Pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Halethorpe, the long parade depicting the history of inland transportation in America passed in review for the last time Saturday afternoon. This attendance brought the total for twenty-two days of the fair to over 1,250,000. The record of automobiles that have visited the exhibition totals more than 100,000.

The final performance of the Pageant Saturday was concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the audience, following the usual rendition of "America."

A visitor with a life span equal to that of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad attended the fair Friday. He is John L. Skinner, a former employe of the railroad, who was born August 8, 1827. Mr. Skinner helped to lay the first double tracks between Baltimore and Washington back in 1862.

Peggy and James Towne, great-grandchildren of Phineas Davis, famous builder of locomotives, were also present at the fair. Davis built the original "York," which won first prize in the locomotive competitive trials sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio in 1831.

PICTURESQUE INDIAN TRAIN WITH CHIEF TWO GUN AND FORTY OTHER BLACKFEET STOP HERE SUNDAY

More Than 1500 at Station to Get Glimpse of Descendants of America's First Inhabitants—Reception Committee Welcomes Visitors Who Stay 15 Minutes

More than fifteen hundred people of Oakland and vicinity were at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad station at Oakland last Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock when the William Crook, pioneer railroad train, bearing Chief Two Gun White Calf and 40 braves, squaws and papooses of the Blackfeet tribe of Indians, arrived here en route to their reservation in Glacier National Park, Montana.

Due to the fact that the exact time of its arrival could not be ascertained until shortly before the train pulled into the station, it was estimated that the station by one of the later model locomotives of the Baltimore and Ohio, was typical of the passengers which it carried. The train was composed of two coaches and the original engine, named the William Crook, and was built as a wood-burner, later turned into a coal consuming locomotive and was the first passenger train operated west of the Mississippi River in the State of Minnesota. The train was viewed with as much curiosity and surprise as were the Indians themselves.

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley and Benj. H. Sincell, editor of The Republican, composed the reception committee and welcomed the railway officials and who posed with four of the chiefs while James Bell, local photographer, snapped the picture.

The Indians, who were returning from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Centenary Exposition and Pageant at Halethorpe, which recently closed, left Cumberland at 11:00 o'clock, where the passengers aboard had partaken of breakfast at the Queen City Hotel. From that point the train came on westward through Keyser and Piedmont, and arrived in Oakland about 2:05, and remaining here about fifteen minutes before moving on.

The train and party were in charge of officials of the Great Northern Railway, Mr. O'Kane MacGillis, who is connected with the advertising department of the road, extended every courtesy to the people who had gathered to see the train. During the stay here the officials and Indians passed out circulars and pamphlets relative to their home on the reservation and the trip to the Pageant.

Train Typical of Passengers.

The picturesque train, pulled into

The schedule of the train's return to Glacier National Park did not include a stop in Oakland, but The Republican knowing that the people of the community would enjoy seeing the train and its passengers, got in touch with Superintendent H. R. Laughlin of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on Thursday morning of last week and requested that it stop here for ten minutes. Mr. Laughlin immediately placed the matter in the hands of the Great Northern Railway's representatives on board the train who complied with the request and gave the assembled crowd a real treat.

Oakland was the last stop made until the train reached Grafton, W. Va., where the party remained over night Sunday, resuming their westward journey Monday morning.

Cumberland Court Renders Verdict of Not Guilty.

Demonstrating to the satisfaction of the Court that he could not operate a motor car gave William A. Koelker, of Cumberland, a sudden verdict of not guilty in the paternity case conducted against him by State's Attorney William A. Huster, on the testimony of Carrie May Beeler, of Oakland, in the Circuit Court last Friday morning.

The tide of evidence was strongly against Koelker until near the close of the case, the Court admitting being impressed with the evident truth and straighforwardness of the State's star witness, Miss Beeler. The Court then said that it would render a verdict of guilty or not guilty, according to the burden of evidence concerning Koelker's ability to drive a car, since the offense was, according to the testimony, committed while the defendant and the witness were enroute from Oakland to Frostburg in an automobile.

Koelker's Wife Supports Accused

Attorney Harry R. Donnelly then produced several witnesses, among them Koelker's wife who testified to his inability to drive. The accused also offered in support of his case the fact that he had never applied for a driver's license, though he said he said he had operated tractors while in the Army.

Carl Jamison Arrested.

Carl Jamison, of Oakland, was arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sam Cole on a charge of driving a car without a license and without having any registration card. He was fined $30 and costs and sent to jail in default of payment.

MARRIED.

LOCAL BOWLING TO BEGIN TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1

Alleys To Be In First Class Condition At That Time.

With a four-foot extension to the runway of the bowling alleys at the Recreation Billiard Parlor in Oakland, everything will be in readiness for the opening of the second annual bowling league contest on Tuesday, November 1. The distance from the end of the building to the foul line will measure fourteen feet after the four-foot addition or extension has been completed which should give the bowlers ample room for their play, Bill Gibson, manager of the league, said yesterday.

It was undecided this morning what teams would line up against each other for the opening games, but these will be picked out in plenty of time, it has been assured by those interested, and there are many such in town.

Games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday evenings throughout the winter months. "We are looking for an even more successful season than last year," Mr. Gibson said. "Last year's league has enabled us to uick out the flaws, and with these corrected and some new assets added, the league should function perfectly."

BETTER DAIRY SPECIAL TO BE HERE NOVEMBFR 1

Will Remain All Day In Freight Yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station.

The train will remain all day and will occupy tracks in the freight yard of the railway company adjacent to the local station so that it will be easily of access by the many visitors who are expected to be present to inspect it and profit by its second annual trip through this section.

Eight valuable pieces of dairy equipment will be given away to the farmers at each of the three stops in the State, for which each farmer visiting the train is eligible to draw. These articles are now being displayed in one of display windows of the Oakland Hardware and Furniture Company on Third street.

The train will carry several carloads of purebred bulls, carefully selected from the best herds and from dams of high milk and butter-fat production. These animals will be sold at cost. A first prize, junior and senior grand champion Holstein bull will be among those distributed by the demonstration train. This bull was sired by a 1,000 pound son of Creator, one of the greatest living bulls of the Holstein breed. His dam also has a high record in the Advanced Registry department.

Dairy breed associations are cooperating with the agricultural department of the Baltimore and Ohio in its efforts to make available purebred dairy sires to the farmers of this and adjoining states.

Day's Program Arranged.

PERMISSION GRANTED TO SHOOT WILD FOWL ON LAKE

Garrett County Sportmen May Try Their Luck on Waters of Deep Creek This Year.

Permission to shoot wild fowl from the shores of Deep Creek Lake and its tributaries between November 1 and January 31 has been granted by Swepson Earle, Conservation Commissioner of Maryland, and E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, according to a letter received recently from the office of the Commission by The Republican.

Sportsmen of Garrett county asked for this privilege last year, but owing to the fact that the lease between the corporation owning the property and the Conservation Department, made no provision for this matter. the request was refused.

Below is the letter from the department to The Republican:

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 26, 1927.
To the Editor of The Republican,
Oakland, Md.,

Dear Sir: During the fall of 1926, quite a demand was made on the Conservation Commissioner of Maryland from the sportsmen of Garrett county for permission to hunt wild fowl on the waters of Deep Creek Lake, this demand being brought about hy the number of ducks which were attracted to that section by reason of the immensity of the water area in said lake.

At that time the lease between the corporation owning the property and the Conservation Department made no provision for this matter, and it was impossible to grant the request of the sportsmen.

The Conservation Commissioner this season, with the cooperation of the corporation owning the property, now has the power to grant said permission, and to those interested notice is hereby given that hunting of wild fowl will be lawful from the shores of Deep Creek Lake and tributaries between November 1 and January 31, inclusive, daily, except Sunday ,from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunrise, except the shoreline between the State road bridge and the Narrows bridge on the east side of the lake, which is a game refuge, where it will be unlawful to hunt any species of game with gun or dog at any time.

While hunting from the shore is permissible, hunting from boats of any description is positively prohibited. Dead ducks, however, may be recovered by boats propelled by oars.

Very truly yours,
SWEPSON EARLE,
Conservation Commissioner.
E. LEE LECOMPTE,
State Game Warden.

MABEL SWANN FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN SECOND DEGREE; JURY ASKS THAT THE COURT SHOW LENIENCY

Former Baltimore Nurse, Accused of Shooting Dan Mosser, Near Swanton, Convicted by Jury After Deadlock From 5:00 O'Clock Yesterday Until 10:20 Today.

A verdict of murder in the second degree was rendered at 10:20 o'clock this morning in the case of Mabel Swann, 43, former Baltimore nurse, accused of the murder of Daniel Mosser, her landlord, on May 26, near the town of Swanton, Garrett county, by a jury which had been dealocked since five o'clock yesterday evening at Cumberland, to which place the trial was removed by Miss Swann's counsel from the Garrett County Circuit Court.

The jury in rendering its verdict asked that leniency be shown the convicted woman when she is called to be sentenced by the court.

The trial, which began early Monday morning, was hotly contested by both sides, the State having Julius C. Renninger, State's Attorney for Garrett county, William A. Huster, State's Attorney for Allegany county, and E. R. Jones, Oakland attorney for its representatives in prosecuting the case, while Miss Swann was defended by William C. Walsh and David A. Robb, both of Cumberland, and William R. Offutt, of Oakland.

The trial attracted many people, the courtroom being crowded to capacity with spectators all the time the case was in progress.

There were thirty-two witnesses for the State, including those who were on the scene immediately after the shooting, physicians who examined the body of Mosser, and Sheriff Casteel of Garrett county and his deputy Joy Griffith.

The fate of Mabel Swann rested with the jury until 10:20 o'clock this morning, which body remained at the court house from 5:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon until midnight without reaching a verdict. It was rumored that one member of the jury held out against the others of the body, which prevented the early rendering of the decision of the body. At midnight the jury was taken to a hotel in Cumberland where they remained until this morning.

The case closed yesterday afternoon when Julius C. Renninger,State's Attorney for Garrett county, concluded the final argument for the State.

Prosecution Ridicules.

The closing arguments for the State were opened at noon yesterday by E. R. Jones, who ridiculed Miss Swann's story of the shooting, which he said was a fabrication. The shooting, according to him, occurred outside the house. It was an unjustifiable murder, he said.

The state of the door and the lock after the shooting, William A. Huster, Allegany county's State's Attorney asserted, indicated that they had been tampered with. The testimony of the defense, he asserted, was both ridiculous and unreliable. He asked for a verdict of guilty.

The fact that the testimony offered by several physicians to the effect that the bullet had taken a downward course in Mosser's chest, showed, Mr. Renninger said, that he must have been shot while he was still outside the house. As there was a slight incline in front of the building, he stated, Mosser was shot while he was approaching. All the facts showed that Miss Swann had deliberately planned the act, he asserted.

When Mosser came to the house on May 26, Miss Swann was lying in wait for him, Mr. Renninger said in closing his argument and asked for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Asks For Acquittal.

Former Chief Judge William C. Walsh and William R. Offutt asked for an acquittal of their client. David A. Robb, who closed for the defense asked the court that if Miss Swann deliberately planned the murder, she would have secured a better weapon. The rifle which Miss Swann used in the killing was ridiculed. He asked for either a verdict of not guilty of first degree murder. "No other verdict would fit the case," he said.

Defendant Recalled to Stand.

Miss Swann, when placed on the stand yesterday morning before the testimony was completed, told about the brick, which the defense claimed Mosser threw at her. The State contended that Mosser never threw the brick. He never even got to the house on the day of the shooting, the State claimed.

Miss Swann yesterday explained that she used the brick when mending harnesses. Dr. A. H. Hawkins, who was the first witness summoned yesterday morning, testified that Miss Swann suffered from a toxic goitre, which probably would affect her thyroid gland, he said.

Witnesses Called in Rebuttal.

Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith was recalled and identified the two pieces of brick which he found in the room the day of the shooting. The large piece, he said, was on the table, and the smaller piece on the floor. The State attempted to show that Miss Swann had used the monkey to break the brick, and then arranged them to look as though Mosser had thrown one of the pieces at her.

Joseph Friend and W. A. Gonder also testified to seeing the bricks and brick dust on the monkey wrench. L. D. Shank was put on the stand again and identified the bricks.

Monday's Testimony.

Practically all of Monday's session was spent in examining the State's witnesses—thirty-two in number, although only half of them testified.

"Forced to Shoot."

The defense contended that Miss Swann shot Mosser only after she had been provoked into doing it. Early on the morning of May 26, it was stated, Mosser came to the farm at Swanton, which Miss Swann leased from him, and demanded entrance to the house. When he was refused, it was claimed, he endeavored to force the door and threw a brick at her. His vile language and threatening manner, the defense asserted, forced her to shoot, without aiming, in order to frighten him away.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge Albert A. Doub were on the bench.

Defendant Calm.

A graduate of Mercy Hospital of Baltimore, Miss Swann, who has had considerable nursing experience, came to this section several years ago for her health. When she appeared in court Monday, evidence of the term she spent in jail showed plainly on her face. However, she seemed otherwise to be in excellent health and took a deep interest in the trial. She was calm and smiled faintly at the testimony offered by the various witnesses. She was dressed neatly in a black dress and brown hat, with a string of pearls around her neck. Her only sister, Mrs. Nellie Bussey, of Baltimore, sat beside her during the trial.

State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger asked for a verdict of murder in Order of Publication.

William S. Harvey vs. Morris Sisk and ——Sisk, his wife; Bessie Wright and —— Wright, her husband, and the unknown heirs of William C. Sisk, late of Garrett county, deceased.

No. 2789 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate, lying and being in Garrett county, to satisfy a certain vendor's lien on same.

The bill states that on November 4, 1922, the plaintiff sold to one William C. Sisk certain real estate situate, lying and being in Garrett county; that on the same day he executed and delivered a deed to the said Sisk for said property, and therein retained a vendor's lien to secure the unpaid purchase money on said property.

That some time in the year 1924, the said William C. Sisk departed this life intestate, leaving said purchase money unpaid, and that the whole of the same, together with the interest thereon, is long since overdue and unpaid.

The bill further states that the said William C. Sisk was unmarried, but left as his heirs at law one Morris Sisk, a brother, and a sister, Bessie Wright, and certain nephews and nieces, children of a deceased brother and sister, and possibly another brother, as his only heirs at law, but the name of said last named brother, and whether he is living or dead, is unknown to the plaintiff; and that the names, ages and places of residence of said nephews and nieces are unknown to the said plaintiff.

The bill then prays that the said unknown heirs of the said William C. Sisk may be treated and proceeded against as non-residents, that the writ of subpoena be granted to the plaintiff for the known resident heirs and for an order of publication for the unknown heirs.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of said property and for other and general relief.

It is thereupon, this 25th day of October, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of November, 1927, give notice to the unknown heirs of the said William O. Sisk, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 12th day of December, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed. Dr. JUNIPER SOCRATES

Socrates Missing.

A veiled mystery surrounds the whereabouts of Dr. Juniper Soerates, world's famous authority on Tiddly-Winks, who was to direct a few lessons of that mystic art exclusively for The Republican. Articles on this famous and nerve-wracking game were to begin this week, as was stated in last week's column, if everything went well with Dr. Socrates.

Evidently something has gone fluey with the Doetor and Seoop is at a total loss—and the Doctor is even worse—he may be a loss with a liability attached, for we had borrowed a huge sum of money to pay him in advance for his services. He was last heard from just before he skipped off to a Tiddly-Winks tournament in Cacaan Valley, and grave fears are entertained for his safety.

Dr. Socrates may have attempted to show too much skill in his tournament play and thereby incurred the enmity of some village champion.

Lessons may start next week; it altogether depends upon the eminent Doctor. In the meantime, how great the suspense!

A Problem For Farmers.

In an article appearing in a recent issue of a Maryland newspaper is the following: "Famous Texas Longhorns are not to bceome extinct. The government has just bought 25 of these rapidly disappearing animals that were once famous on Texas ranges, and they are being taken to Wichita National Park in Oklahoma where they will be permitted to breed and inerease the herd. These steers were bought in various parts of Texas and gathered at Fort Worth, where they were shipped to Oklahoma."

"They may be able to do this in Texas but not in Garrett county," one local farmer told Scoop.

They felt their ideals slipping,
For lleap Big Chief was smoking,

READ THE ACORN.

Parents will be able to tell more fully just what their sons and daughters are doing at the Oakland High School if they will only take the trouble to read the first issue of the official High School paper-The Acorn-and succeeding issues.

The Acorn made its first appearance yesterday and has all the earmarks of becoming a valuable asset to the school and the student body. Its well written editorials and stories show that much time and effort was spent in its preparation.

The contents of The Acorn will tell the parents the progress that is being made the same as if they were attending classes themselves, and there is something in the publication which one would not get by attending classes along with the students. It is the spirit of Oakland High School and the desire of the students body to get out such a publication is representative of that spirit.

The Acorn is going to grow and grow, and next year, it is the hope of The Republican that it will be made possible to publish the official paper many more times than four, the number to be issued this school year. In this specific case the slogan should be, "Let's grow."

HALLOWE'EN.

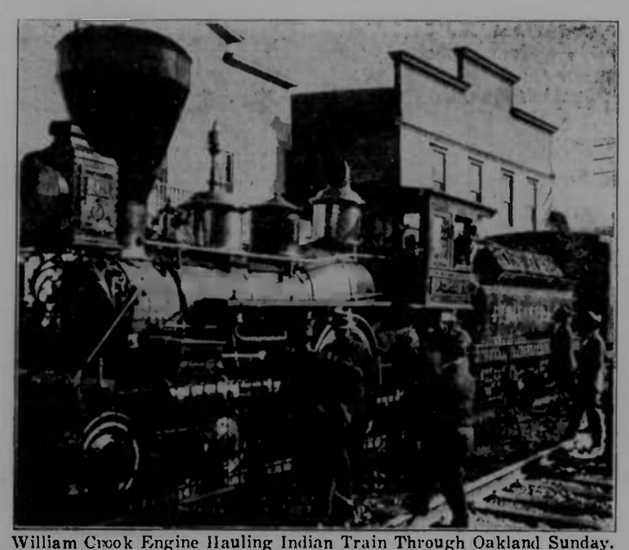
(Reprinted from The Acorn)

The term Hallowe'en is derived from two words, Halloweven, signifying the evening of October 31, on which all Hallows or Saints, gathered to hold their meetings. It is associated with the popular imagination with various superstitions and is frequently celebrated by young people with various tricks, games and rites, in many of which the element of prophecy is supposed to play a conspicuous part.

Other games which have no superstitions of significance,such as ducking for apples in a basin of water, are also associated with Hallowe'en. Parties are often given in which the guests are masked in a conspicuous manner and the room in which the party is given is decorated with large pumpkins, black cats and witches, which make it look very bewitching.

Standing at the first entrance is a ghost with a welcome for every guest being shown by a hand-shake with the death-like hand of the ghost himself. Then upon entering the room in which the party or dance is to be given, you are greeted by Satan who ties a small bag of sand around your wrist, advising you not to speak to any of the other guests until the string has been worn loose and the sand bag drops to the floor from shaking hands with every guest you meet. Then the different games are played and each person finds a partner by matching pieces of apples which have been cut into two pieces.

Of caourse this is not the only way of selecting partners, but it is often used.



Everyone enjoys themselves on Hallowe'en and are glad for that time of year to come on which they have so much pleasure, gladness and humor.

Serious Accident Narrowly Averted.

What might hae resulted in a serious accident was averted Tuesday at noon when Paul McIntire turned the Ford truck at right angles with the direction in which he was driving to avoid striking a little girl who had darted out into the street in front of the machine.

The truck was going at an approximate speed of 20 miles an hour up Second street and was opposite the William-James Hotel when a child, on her way to or from school, suddenly left the sidewalk and darted across the street. The front wheels of the machine narrowly missed the child, who kept running at the top of her speed until she reached the opposite side of the street. She continued on her way, probably calmer than the driver of the car.

State's Early Redemptioners

IN the year 1753 a preacher was offered for sale in Maryland. He was a native of Bavaria and a graduate of the University of Erlangen, having completed his studies in theology and law.

The announcement of the sale described him as a "studious theologian." The Lutheran congregation of York, Pa., being without a satisfactory pastor, took advantage of the bargain and purchased the preacher. "A learned apothecary" was also sold in Baltimore.

Neither of these men was a Negro. However, both transactions were entirely legal. As a matter of fact, hundreds of white men, women and children were sold and bought in Maryland, beginning from the time the commonwealth was founded.

The number of white people held in slavery by the early Marylanders rivaled that of the Negroes. In a few instances the order of the day was reversed, and we find an occasional case of a free Negro owning a white man in slavery. In most cases these servants, as they were called, were well treated.

Many of them, after gaining their freedom, became well-to-do and prominent citizens of Baltimore and Maryland, passing on a respected name to their descendants, many of whom are considered among our better class of today.

The preacher above referred to, for example, held a position in the community to which his talents entitled him. Being a servant did not of itself degrade a person in the public esteem and marriage between masters and servants was by no means infrequent.

However, if a servant found himself in a happy condition he could accredit it to being born under a lucky star rather than to the laws of the commonwealth.

Under the laws of Maryland he could not buy or sell anything except with the permission of his master. If he was caught ten miles from his master's home, and had no signed permit, he was arrested as a runaway and was harshly punished.

A person was subject to a fine of 500 pounds of tobacco for each day that he gave shelter to a runaway, and was whipped if he could not pay the fine. There was a standing reward of 200 pounds of tobacco for the capture of a runaway.

The Indian who caught a runaway received a "match coat." The master could whip his servant. He was limited to ten lashes for each offense, but this meant little to the servant, for as the master was the judge of what constituted an offense, it was quite possible for ten offenses to accumulate in as many minutes. It must be remembered that Maryland, however, held no monopoly on this class of slavery, for it was quite general in the colonies.

As Negro slavery increased white servants lost caste, for the only important distinction between the servitude of the Negro slave and that of the servant was that the former served for life while the latter served for a limited period.

This was by no means always an advantage to the servant, for as the slave was owned for life the very selfishness of the master, no matter how brutal he might be, restrained him from doing anything that might permanently injure or shorten the life of his valuable piece of property.

The white servant, however, was the hired horse. His services belonged to his master for a limited number of years, and the shrewd master drained every ounce of vitality possible out of the servant in the limited period.

For the same reason the servant was so fed so that he could be kept on his feet for the immediate task and with no thought for the future health. In many cases these servants were actually worked to death before their period of servitude expired.

Their time of service was a matter of contract. These servants, or redemptioners, were persons who were either persuaded to leave Europe and come to the colonies or came of their own free will. They were poor people, for the most part, who wanted to better their condition, but had no money with which to come to the new country.

They therefore signed a contract with the captain of a vessel whereby they agreed to pay for their passage by hiring out as servants for a term of years to anyone willing to pay in advance the passage money due the captain.

The redemptioner, until reforms were brought about in later years, received no copy of the contract; it was not recorded and it was usually written in a language that the servant could not understand. Violation of the contract on the part of the servant was punished by corporal punishment and imprisonment. By performing the service according to contract for the time agreed upon the servant redeemed himself and became a free man.

The redemptioner came first to Virginia and then to Maryland. The settlers owned large tracts of fertile land that had to be cleared and cultivated. The great problem was to obtain labor and the answer to the problem was the redemptioner.

England in her eagerness to advance the value of her colonies sent the prisoners of war taken in the insurrections of the Scots and Irish. At one time a hundred waifs were gathered up from the streets of London and sent over.

These were in addition to the others who came over more or less voluntarily. In 1672 the price of a redemptioner was $50, or at about the average rate of less than $10 a year for the servant's services. The $50 went to the captain or owner of the vessel as passage money.

When the redemptioners reached this country they were sold to the highest bidder by the captain or owner of the ship that brought them over. Under their contract they were not allowed to choose their masters nor the kind of services that best suited them.

Families that came over together were split up. The father, mother and children were put up at public sale and were frequently bought by different masters living far apart, with the result that these folk, strangers and in most cases not speaking the language of the new country, lost each other forever.

By many masters, for reasons previously set forth, the redemptioners were treated worse than the Negro slaves. It is said that these people in time made up to a great extent the class that became known as the "poor white trash" of the South, and they were despised alike by master and Negro slave.

Under most masters they lived in common with the slaves, and as a result some of the female servants intermarried with the male Negroes. This became offensive to a certain portion of society and the result was the worst piece of legislation ever put on the Maryland books.

The General Assembly of 1663 passed a law that any female white servant who married a Negro slave had to serve the master of the Negro man during the life of her husband and that the mulatto children born to her became the slaves of that master for life.

Far from breaking up the practice it was enacted to cure, it had the opposite effect, for the owners of female redemtioners deliberately married them to their Negro slave men, thereby making the women and their children of a free woman, white or Negro, were presumed to be free.

In the spring of 1681 Lord Baltimore came to visit his province and brought with him his servant Nellie, who was a redemtioner. When he returned to Europe he sold Nellie for her unexpired term to a man living in the province, who, within two months, married her to one of his slave men.

Lord Baltimore heard of it and became so incensed that he secured the repeal of the law. This did not help Nellie, however, for later we find her petitioning for freedom of herself and two sons. The Court of Appeals denied her petition on the grounds that she had been married before the repeal of the law. She and her sons remained slaves.

As the Colonies grew the labor of slaves, redemptioners and freemen increased in value. As wages advanced, the shipping of redemptioners paid large profits to shipowners. The Dutch, who had introduced slavery to the Colonies, began to realize that the shipping of redemptioners was much easier and paid larger profits. They began to ship them in great numbers from their own countries and adjoining countries.

The shipping merchants of Holland employed regular scouts or agents. These agents, flashily dressed, went about the various countries telling the poor people of the wonderful land of opportunity across the sea.

The poor man, discontented with his lot, eagerly grasped the opportunity to go to the new country, and was quite willing to sign an agreement to repay the agent out of his first earnings. The agent gathered his victims into decorated wagons. The horses were covered with gay ribbons and there were trumpeters. He made his victims believe they were on their way to a rich land, where they would know hardship and poverty no more. They sang with joy as they rode across country. The agent kept them in high spirits until he had landed them on board the ship, and then came the miserable awakening.

Few of the victims understood the contract that they signed in Holland. According to the contract, if any passenger died on the voyage the surviving member or members of his family, or if he had none, the remaining passengers, had to make up the loss by adding to his or her own term of service.

To illustrate, if a man and his wife signed up for five years each, and one died, the other's term of service was automatically increased to ten years, even though the death occurred on the first day of the voyage and the owners actually had no loss.

In 1752 Casper Wister, of Philadelphia, wrote: "Last year a ship was twenty-four weeks at sea, and of the 150 pasengers on board thereof, more than one hundred died of hunger and privation, and the survivors were imprisoned and compelled to pay the entire passage money for themselves and the deceased."

In 1758 Christoph Sauer, who published a newspaper, estimated that 2,000 of the passengers on the fifteen ships which arrived that year, died on the voyage.

In 1745 Christoph Sauer states in his newspaper: "Another ship has arrived. Of the 400 passengers not more than fifty are reported alive. They received their bread every two weeks; some ate their portion in four, five and six days.

"If they received no cooked victuals in eight days, their bread gave out the sooner and as they had to wait until the fifteen days were over, they starved unless they had money with which to buy of the mate flour at three pence sterling a pound and a bottle of wine for seven kopstick thalers."

Not all the owners were cruel, greedy scoundrels, for Sauer, in 1748, reports that seven ships left Rotterdam with German emigrants and landed them in good health.

EVERY DAY IS COMMUNITY HEALTH DAY IN MARYLAND

Officials of the Health Department Are Untiring In Efforts

Did it ever occur to you to count the various kinds of health service rendered to the people of Maryland by the State Department of Health?

Here is a partial list, summarized by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the Department, for Community Health Day celebration:

Every day in Maryland is Community Health Day. Every activity of the State Department of Health has as its ultimate aim the prevention of disease and the promotion of health in the counties of Maryland. In accordance with this aim the Department

Makes an immediate investigation of diseases like typhoid fever, diphtheria, smallpox, scarlet fever, and of other catching diseases that may threaten an entire community, if not controlled promptly, and directs measures for their control;

Maintains a central laboratory and five branch laboratories at easily accessible places over the State, through which it assists physicians in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of catching diseases. In these laboratories free examination is made for physicians, of specimens for the diagnosis of tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria, malaria, rabies, the venereal diseases, meningitis, anthrax, infections of the blood stream, and for the determination of other diseases;

Supervises the enforcement of the law which requires every child to be vaccinated against smallpox before he or she can be enrolled in school. As a result of this supervision and of the prompt action that is taken whenever a case of smallpox has come int othe State, Maryland has a record for freedom from this disease of which every Marylander can be justifiably proud;

SOAP AND WATER DRILL AS APPLIED IN SCHOOLS

Two of the Best Allies in Fight Against Catching Diseases.

"Soap and water, frequently used, are two of the best allies we have in our fight against many of the catching diseases," was the answer of Dr. R. H. Riley, Assistant Director of the State Department of Health, when asked to suggest some ways that would help to prevent the interchange of the germs of diseases among children in the schools.

"If we could get every child to form the habit of washing the hands thoroughly, several times a day, and certainly before meals, it would go a long way," he continued, "toward cutting down some of the diseases that children catch from each other at school. The teachers who are having soap and water drills are rendering a genuine service. The teacher of a one-room school worked out a plan recently, with the local public health nurse, that is worth being copied elsewhere.

"That particular school is without the conveniences that make cleanliness easy. Water has to be brought from a pump some distance away and there is no washroom in the building. The teacher aroused the interest of the children by asking each one to bring some left-over bits of soap. Boiling water poured over the lot turned it into liquid soap which was poured into a bottle fitted with a shaker top. A pitcher, a bucket, some Japanese paper napkins and a package of wooden toothpicks completed the equipment.

"The hand scrub drill takes place just before the children eat their lunch. Appointment on the soap and water serving squad is a reward of merit and cleanliness. The empty bucket to hold waste water is put in place and the children line up. (Incidentally, it is worth noting that the plan of pouring water over the hands is preferable to the use of basins, because of the difficulty of keeping the 'group basins' sterile.)

"Number 1 on the serving squad shakes the liquid soap over the hands. Number 2 carries the pitcher that was filled earlier in the day and that has been standing on the back of the stove because warm water will cleanse the hands more effectively than cold, and pours the water for washing and rinsing, while the waste water falls into the bucket on the floor. Number 3 hands out a paper napkin for drying the hands, and if the finger nails of the class have been questionably dark, a wooden toothpick helps to improve conditions.

"The whole exercise takes only a few minutes, but it is invaluablo as a habit forming process."

MUSIC A CRIME DETERRENT DETROIT POLICE DISCOVER

More Members Wanted in Boys' Band, R. R. Gilbert Says.

Music's power as a crime deterrent was extolled by William P. Rutledge, Commissioner of Police of Detroit, in an address before the third annual convention of the Michigan Music Merchants Association, reports the Conn Music Center. The Commissioner spoke on "Music in the Home Environment Versus Crime."

"Such a subject should arouse much interest in Oakland at this time," Mr. R. R. Gilbert, director of the Boys' Band, said a few days ago. "Many Oakland boys, from the ages of nine to eighteen years, have musical talent and should be in the band. There is no better way of keeping them from evil habits and associations."

Mr. Rutledge, in his address, said:

The prime reason for criminals is due to the early bad environment during the sage of adolescence. It is my opinion that music offers one means of helping to solve the crime problem through the fact that a child must practice many hours at home which would otherwise be passed in pool rooms, unsupervised dance halls and joy riding in autos.

Learning music in the home will not only keep the child under a closer relationship with his parents, but it will help to develop the cultured side of his life. It is inspirational—an expression of religion, if you please, and it becomes an intimate part of a child's life if it is properly administered. With modern methods of teaching music, children have found it a pleasure to learn and there is no joy greater than that of being able to produce music, whether it be on a cornet, piano or other instrument.

The 'problem child' can be reached through music which calls from within us the best there is. When one stops to consider the fact that last year there were 1,500,000 persons went through the courts of the nation and there were 500,000 sent to prison, a real problem faces us. If we are to overcome it, we must work through the child; and I feel that music is one of the best agencies. Music in the home makes a deeper impression upon the child with its fine qualities.

Unless we impress the parents that closer home discipline is needed and proper supervision of idle time, the 'problem child' of today will become the delinquent of tomorrow and ultimately a member of the criminal class.

DANIEL MOSSER

SHERIFF WILLIAM D. CASTEEL

JURY IN MURDER TRIAL OF NURSE IS DEADLOCKED

Fate of Mabel Swann In Doubt As Jury Fails To Reach Verdict In Case at Cumberland

the first degree. After reading various authorities recognized in the Maryland courts dealing with murder and homicide, he reviewed the case. The farm which Miss Swann rented from Mosser was the old Mosser home, he said. Mosser, who lived at Keyser, Mr. Renninger stated, came by train from Keyser to Swanton, about a mile from the farm, on the morning of May 26. About nine o'clock he went up to the farm, seeking rental money. He had with him a receipt, prepared by Mrs. Mosser. He met several men on the way, it was stated. These men appeared as witnesses Monday afternoon.

Saw Mosser's Body.

C. O'Brien, a farmer of the vicinity, and Virgie Wilt, a mail carrier, were those he passed on the way. Later on in the day, Arlie Johnson, a timber hauler, while coming down the road, happened to glance in the direction of the farm. He saw, the State's Attorney said, a man lying in a strange position in the yard near the porch. When Johnson testified Monday afternoon he corroborated the State's Attorney's statements. Johnson then went on to Swanton. When he returned, he testified, he saw a large crowd gathered in the yard of the farm.

A number of witnesses Monday afternoon testified to seeing the body of Mosser lying on the ground, a bullet wound in the chest. After Miss Swann had shot Mosser she mounted a horse and rode to Swanton, where she informed those whom she happened to meet of the shooting.

Tells of Shooting Threat.

Luther Shank, a brother-in-law of Mosser, was put on the stand during the Monday afternoon session of the court. Although his answers to the questions asked him by the attorneys were rather incoherent and vague, it developed, from his testimony that on April 26, accompanied by Russell Lee, Lester Weimer, Lawton Friend and Joseph Friend, all of whom live in the vicinity of Swanton, he visited Miss Swann at her farm. Meeting her in the yard, he said, he asked her if she had any liquor in her possession, to which she replied, he said, "sure."

She told them, Shank declared, that Mosser had been there in the morning, "raising hell" because she had liquor on the premises. She feared, Shank stated, that Mosser would inform the Federal officers of the presence of the liquor. "I'm going to shoot the — — — the next time he acts like that around here," Shank said Miss Swann told them. She then asked them to help her load the liquor on a wagon to take it away and hide it. This was done, Shank averred, and six gallons were hidden in the woods, while a gallon was given to the young men for their help, the witness testified.

Lawton Friend, a former merchant of Swanton, who testified in the morning, and Joseph Z. Friend, his younger brother, when placed on the stand, both told substantially the same story as related by Shank.

Another Witness Tells of Threat.

Peter Bickford, another witness for the State, declared that he had known Miss Swann for about a year. He said that she had spoken to him about a raid which had been made on her farm the Monday before the shooting. She asked him, he said, whether or not he thought that it was the Federal officers who had conducted the raid. Bickford stated that she told him she had heard Mosser was the one who reported her to the authorities and that she said, "If I find out, I'll kill him."

C. C. Mason, a merchant of Swanton, who was near by when Bickford had his conversation with Miss Swann backed up Bickford's statements. He said that he was helping repair a road on Meadow Mountain at the time.

Rifle Offered In Evidence

Joy Griffith, a deputy sheriff, who was present during the raid Miss Swann referred to in her conversation with Bickford, told the court and jury that he had found a .22 calibre rifle in the house, which was the gun which Miss Swann used in the shooting. The rifle and a number of shells were exhibited in court.

The rifle, Griffith said, when he found it during the raid, was very dusty and apparently in a neglected condition. When it was found after the shooting, he said, it had evidently been thoroughly cleaned and oiled up.

Andrew Shartzer, of Oakland, who testified Monday morning, was placed on the stand again in the afternoon, when he also described the condition of the gun His description was similar to Griffith's.

Describes Scene of Crime.

Henry Johnson, a Swanton farmer, testified that he was present at the farm about one o'clock on the day of the shooting. He stated that he saw the body of Mosser and also spots of blood a few feet from the porch of the house. He picked up a .22 calibre shell, he said, three or four feet from the porch, which, he asserted, had the appearance of having lately been fired. The shell was produced in court and he identified it.

John McRobie, of Swanton, was also present the day of the shooting, he testified. He stated that he, too, saw the spots of blood, the first spot being about 7 feet from the house, according to his testimony. The body was about twenty feet away from the house. McRobie also testified to finding a brick in the house and a broken lamp shade. He was the last witness of the day.

Doctors Describe Wound.

Dr. N. I. Broadwater, of Oakland, and Dr. H. T. Coffman, of Keyser, were among the first witnesses to be examined after court convened Monday afternoon. Dr. Broadwater saw the body about 12:00 o'clock on the day of the shooting. It was stretched out on the ground, he said, about 20 feet from the house. The legs were drawn up, he said, and after examining the dead man he found a small bullet wound in upper left part of the chest. Mosser's mouth was full of blood, Dr. Broadwater declared, which was due to the fact that one of man's lungs had been punctured by the bullet.

Both physicians said death must have been almost instant. They were questioned to some length by the attorneys. After being examined by David A. Robb, for the defense, it was brought out that the bullet had glanced on the lower part of the third rib. It was shown that the bullet entered the body at an angle, which, the attorneys and physicians said, would indicate that Mosser was either bending over when the bullet hit him or that the person firing the gun was in a higher position than Mosser. Dr. Coffman, who performed the autopsy, stated that when he examined the body it was partly decomposed and covered with a white substance. The wound, he said, which was a clean one, was not difficult to trace.

The widow of the dead man, Mrs. Daniel Mosser, of Keyser, took the stand late in the afternoon. Mosser, she said, left Keyser about 7:30 in the morning of the day the shooting, taking with him a prepared receipt, which, with the rifle and shell, were offered by the prosecution as evidence.

There were frequent objections on the part of the attorneys during the taking of the testimony, and twice the jury was sent out of the court room while the court considered the objections.

Defense Admits Facts

William R. Offutt, in opening for the defense said Monday morning that they would admit the facts concerning the shooting were, in the main, correct. However, he said, the entire affair was an accident and that there was nothing strange in the fact that Miss Swann possessed a rifle.

Miss Swann, after coming to this section for her health, he said toiled as a laborer, doing her own farming. Her reputation was flawless, he said. Mr. Offutt said that Mosser, who was a large man was extremely disagreeable in his conduct with his tenant and at one time attempted to caress her. He related Miss Swann's actions after the shooting occurred. She rode to Swanton on a horse, he declared, and failing to get aid from several people whom she met there, went to a couple of business places and to the railroad station. When several men did go to the farm, they found Mosser dead.

Every action and every movement of Miss Swann, Mr. Offutt stated, showed plainly she was innocent of shooting with intent to kill.

Tuesday's Testimony

Miss Swann herself was on the witness stand on Tuesday. "Of course I never made any threats against the life of Dan Mosser. Why should I? He never gave me any serious trouble." Mabel Swann made this statement Tuesday afternoon when she appeared on the stand as the first witness for the defense. During the testimony there was constant quarreling and wrangling between the attorneys. Miss Swann vigorously denied much of the testimony offered Monday by the State's witnesses.

Outside of trivial disputes over rent and one occasion when Mosser attempted to put Miss Swann on his lap, there was, she stated, no trouble between them until the day of the shooting. She denied that she thought Mosser had informed Federal authorities that she was manufacturing liquor on his property. "So help me heaven," she cried, when Julius C. Renninger, State's Attorney of Garrett county, who is conducting the prosecution against her, questioned her about this matter, "Mosser never mentioned my making moonshine. Why should he report me, when he made it himself on the place!"

Outlines Past Life.

David A. Robb, who, together with former Chief Judge William C. Walsh, Fuller Barnard, Jr., and William R. Offutt, of Oakland, is defending the accused, questioned her as to her past life. Educated in a private school and a business school, she then worked several years for a wholesale millinery store in Baltimore, she said. Miss Swann, according to her testimony, then went in training as a nurse at Mercy Hospital, where she spent several years. Her last case was in Westminster, Md., where she remained for a little over a year. On her return to Baltimore her health broke down, she stated.

"My nerves were practically gone; I was a total wreck," she told the court and jury. Because of her poor health, she declared, Baltimore physicians would not allow her to resume her nursing. Miss Swann then went to Fairmont, W. Va., according to her testimony, where she was employed as head waitress at a hotel for six years.

Ran Taxi Cab.

Soon she bought a car, she said, and went into the taxi business, operating the machine herself. General farming near Fairmont occupied her time after this. Moving to Garrett county about three years ago, she rented various farms in this section, she said. All of the farm work, Miss Swann declared, was done by herself. Once in a while, during the harvesting season, she would hire help for a few days, according to her testimony.

Prior to the time she rented the Mosser farm, she was engaged in general farming on the Rodeheaver estate, White's farm and the Charles Harvey farm, all in Garrett county. She sold her produce in Oakland and Deer Park, she told the court and jury.

Met Mosser Last February.

Miss Swann first met Mosser the first week in February last, when she had an engagement with him at his farm to see about renting it from him. "I got there about 10 o'clock in the morning," she said. "I knocked at the door. Somebody hollered 'come in.' I went in but saw no one. Dan was on the second floor." The terms of the lease were then arranged and it was agreed that she could have the use of the farm for $125 a year, payments to be made quarterly, she said.

Although Mosser agreed to repair the roof of the house and fix the fences on the farm, he never did it, she claimed. She moved in the following week—between the first and tenth of February. Including the first meeting when the terms of the lease were arranged, and the final meeting, when she shot and killed Mosser, she saw Mosser on the farm on six different occasions, she said.

Attempted to Caress Her.

"Two or three weeks after I had moved in," she declared, "Mosser came to the farm, hunting a harness, he said. As it had been snowing and was cold, I asked him in. As I passed him on my way to the spring to get some water, he suddenly lunged at me and tried to pull me over on his lap. 'God — you,' he cried, 'I'll get you sooner or later.'" Nothing more happened, she said. Warding him off, she continued her way to the spring unmolested.

When he came again several weeks later, Miss Swann testified, she asked him when he was going to make the repairs he had agreed to make. "I'm not bothering about any repairs," she quoted Mosser as saying, "what I want is rent." There had been a previous agreement, indirectly made between her and Mosser's sister in Cumberland, that she, Miss Swann, was not to pay Mosser the rent, as the family wanted it used to keep up the place, which, Miss Swann said, was in extremely poor shape.

On another occasion, Miss Swann stated in her testimony, she returned to her farm, finding Mosser prowling about the house, pulling over chairs and bureaus, apparently looking for something.

Tells of Hiding Liquor.

She was then questioned by Mr. Robb about the visit that Lawton Friend, Lester Shank, Russell Lee, Joseph Friend and Lester Weimer said they made to her farm on April 26 of this year. Miss Swann Monday was not certain of the date, but recalled the visit. The only one of the crowd whom she knew, she said, was Lawton Friend. They came up to her and Shank asked her if she had any "hooch."

"I don't know what that means," she replied.

"Well, have you any moonshine?" she said Shank then asked her.

"That depends," Miss Swann told the court and jury.

The young men then told her she had better get rid of the liquor, she testified, for, they said, the Federal officers were coming. Although she didn't believe it, she was finally persuaded by the young men to hide the liquor. They agreed to hide it for her, and a half barrel of mash was concealed in the woods nearby. The boys suggested that she give them a gallon for their services, which she did. It was nearly dark then, according to Miss Swann's story, and she returned to the hiding place of the liquor. It was gone, she declared.

Admits Making Liquor.

Miss Swann freely admitted making liquor, but she sold it, she said, only to one person. For the liquor she received credit on a bill of sale on her stock. Mr. Robb then asked her if she had made any threats against Mosser in her conversation with the young men. Receiving a negative reply, he asked her if she had even made any threats against the dead man. She denied this also.

Refutes State Witness.

The testimony of Peter Bickford, offered on Monday, was then called to her attention. Bickford alleged that she had told him that someone had raided her place, destroying her liquor. Bickford claimed that Miss Swann asked him if he thought it could have been Federal officers who had made the raid. When he said that it was more than probable, she told him that she had heard that Mosser informed the officers. "If I find out, I'll kill him!" Bickford told the court and jury she said to him.

Miss Swann, however, denied this in court Monday. She said that when she asked Bickford about the raid, he told her that he thought it was the "hill-billies' of Swanton who had destroyed her liquor and not the revenue officers. Bickford advised her, she said Monday, to get out, as "that bunch in Swanton isn't going to let you remain here." Mosser's name was not mentioned at any time in the conversation, she said.

Described Shooting.

On the day of the shooting, Miss Swann declared, she arose about 6:00 o'clock. Without eating any breakfast she went out on the farm to catch a heifer, which had escaped. She was washing up the breakfast dishes, she said, when she heard the dogs barking outside. She paid no attention to them, however, and went on with her work. The door suddenly opened with a crash, she stated, and Mosser stood there. As the door was locked, he was forced to break it in. He asked for the rent, and she replied that she had none for him.

"I'll have the rent or something," Mosser growled as he left the room, Miss Swann said. Alarmed at his threatening appearance, she hurried to the kitchen to get the rifle. Returning to the living room, Mosser suddenly appeared in the doorway, and shouted, "I'll have something," and threw a brick at her and lunged in her direction. She held the rifle in one hand, and raising it, fired. Mosser paused, clutched his shoulder, wheeled around and staggered out. He went around the corner of the house, she said. Thoroughly excited and frightened, Miss Swann, with the gun still in her hand, went to the door of the house and called, "Mosser."

Went For Aid.

She got no reply, and, putting the gun down, ran for a horse. She then returned to the house, put the rifle in a dresser in the kitchen, and started for Swanton on the horse, to summon aid, she said.

At this point there was considerable argument between the opposing attorneys. The State contended that Miss Swann should not be allowed to give as testimony any of the conversation between her and those whom she met at Swanton. Authorities were quoted and the trial was held up for some time while the court considered whether or not to sustain the objection raised by the State.

Finally the court ruled that she would be allowed to give the disputed part of her testimony if it pertained to the case and was relevant. She first went to the home of Truman Sweitzer, she said, but finding no one there, continued to Crab Tree Creek bridge. Here she met George D. Browning, a County Commissioner of Garrett county, Truman Sweitzer, Truman Mosser, an uncle of Daniel Mosser, Alex. Mason and Robert Sheckells, who were occupied with some work at the bridge at the time.

She told them about the shooting and asked them to summon a physician and the sheriff. She then returned to the farm where all was as she left it, she stated. An automobile and an unknown man were in the road. After that a number of people from Swanton arrived.

Miss Swann was then turned over to the State. She was cross-examined closely by Julius C. Renninger, State's Attorney for Garrett county. He went over practically the same ground as Mr. Robb. She repeated her denials that there ever was any serious trouble between her and Mosser save on the day of the shooting. As she was a nurse, Mr. Renninger asked her, why didn't she administer aid to Mosser after she shot him.

Was Excited After Shooting.

"I don't know," she replied. "I was too excited and scared, I guess. I didn't know what to do. Dan was lying outside, sort of huddled up."

At twenty minutes to three the State finished with Miss Swann and she was allowed to take her place at the table with her counsel.

County Commissioner George D. Browning was called next. He told about Miss Swann coming to Crab Tree Creek and asking for help.

Robert Sheckells, a lumber dealer of Swanton, was the next witness. He also was present with Mr. Browning when Miss Swann arrived at the bridge in Swanton. His testimony was similar to Mr. Browning's.

W. H. Lohr, the foreman of the coroner's jury, the last witness called on Tuesday afternoon by the defense, declared that he saw the globe which the brick Mosser was said to have hurled at Miss Swann, and broke. He also told the court and jury that he noticed the unusual state of the door which Mosser is said to have broken in. The lock looked as if it had been forced, he declared, and the lock-keeper was not in its right place.

Sheriff W. D. Casteel, who was summoned to the Mosser farm the day of the shooting, was the first witness for the State Tuesday morning. He told of his examination of the body. A pocketbook and a watch were found on the body, he said. Joy Griffith, deputy sheriff, also was recalled by the State Tuesday morning.

Lester Weimer, 19, of Swanton, who was with Joseph Friend, Luther Shank, Lawton Friend and Russell Lee when they visited Miss Swann's home on April 26, corroborated the testimony offered Monday by Shank and the Friends.

He also heard Miss Swann make her alleged threat against Mosser, he said.

Dr. Thomas Bess, of Keyser, W. Va., who performed an autopsy with other physicians on Mosser's body, was questioned about heart wounds.

Mrs. Daniel Mosser, the widow of the dead man, was the last witness for the State.

BITTINGER.

Some time during the night of October seventeenth snow began falling in this mountain section. For more than twenty-four hours great white, soggy flakes came tumbling down. By noonday on Tuesday the whole beautiful autumnal world, with its splendid reds, yellows, purple and gold, was covered by a heavy wet blanket of saturating snow to a depth of eight to ten inches. Forest and orchard trees bowed, swayed, creaked and collapsed beneath the weight of it. Automobiles in charge of hatless drivers, who had forgotten their chains, chugged, snorted, coughed and sputtered in their agony, as they slowly made their strenuous way along the slippery roads. Cattle and sheep bleated and bellowed as they shook themselves and scurried away to the shelter of the barn.

It was a beautiful picture, with here and there the brightly colored autumn leaves and rare touches of pure green where the early frosts had not touched protruding from the white covering of snow. In some sheltered nooks, too, could be seen bright pink and red flowers, survivors of the summer season, smiling out in full bloom above the blanket of snow.

Fortunately during all of the storm period the temperature remained much above the freezing point and by Friday the snow had gone, leaving the earth as it was before and as it should be in the beautiful October time.

LARGE NUMBER SEE DAIRY SPECIAL AND HEAR TALKS

Five Garrett County Men Purchase Registered Bulls—Dairy Equipment Awarded

The B. & O. Dairy Special which was in town Tuesday was the occasion of bringing to Oakland a large number of people in the County interested in the promotion of the Dairy Industry. The B. & O. train with its three carloads of purebred dairy bulls of the three breeds, namely, Guernsey, Jersey and Holstein, was on track by 9:00 a. m. and by that time a considerable crowd had assembled and passed through the train.

The leetures began about 10:30 a. m., and by that time the lecture car was filled to capacity. County Agent McGlone opened the meeting by explaining the object of the train and told of the progress that had been made looking toward the establishment of a milk receiving station in Garrett county. Mr. J. A. Conover, extension dairy specialist of the University of Maryland made a short talk on the possibilities of Garrett county as a dairy section. He said in part that Garrett county was admirably adapted to dairying as it has many natural facilities for this line of work.

Good Grass Necessary

To make milk economieally there must be an abundance of good grass and this is to be found in Garrett county as perhaps nowhere else in the State. No other state is so well adapted to the making of milk as that furnished by nature itself in the form of good pasture. This is one of the most essential factors in milk production. Another very important factor is that of abundant water. Milk must be cooled quickly and kept cool if it is to reach the market in satisfactory condition. This is another feature in which Garrett county ranks supreme, that of having an abundanee of cold spring water which ean be brought to the door of every milk house. Many of the cooling problems experienced by the dairymen of the Eastern section of the States are entirely done away with by the spring water in Garrett county, he said.

In the matter of grain feed, Garrett county can produce abundance of oats, corn and buckwheat, ail of which can be eombined to make a good grain ration of the dairy eow. It is necessary for economical milk production to grow some legume crops such as soybeans, clover hay or alfalfa. These also can be grown in this county and with these and the home grown grains little outside feed need be purchased, it was pointed out.

It is necessary to have good producing eows for economical milk production, and that means the dairymen of this section must pay attention to the yearly production of their cows. It means that the cow of low producing ability will have to be discarded and her plaee taken by one of higher ability. It is possible to raise these good cows here in the county, perhaps cheaper than any other place in the State and this ought to be done.

Objeet of Dairy Speeial

This is one of the objects of the B. & O. Dairy Sire Specials to encourage farmers to breed better dairy cows. It will be found much cheaper to raise good cows than to buy them. Further-

Grantsville Corn Judgers Win Third in State Contest.

Boys of Grantsville high school brought third prize to the county in the State-wide boys' corn judging contest conducted at Frederick Fair last week. The team consisted of Clyde Dahlgrin and Glenn Folk, with Clyde Beachy as alternate.

Results of this contest have not yet been received, but it is felt that the boys have made a ereditable showing. Both teams were coached by the instructor of agriculture.

HOUCK BUS HAS WRECK

The Houck Auto Bus, running between Davis, W. Va., and Oakland, was wrecked last Friday at a point near the State line, nine miles south of here, when it is thought the driver ran off the road into the soft mud at the side. Earnest Paugh, the driver, had his nose broken, and was otherwise bruised and scratched to some extent. The top of the bus was damaged considerably.

MAN IS SENTENCED FOR DRIVING WHILE DRUNK

Dave Collins Given 30 Days and Fined $100

TO CELEBRATE OPENING OF FRIENDSVILLE ROAD

Ceremonies to Take Place at 3 O'Clock Saturday.

The official opening of the new concrete road between Friendsville and Blooming Rose will be celebrated Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, it has been announced. Local speakers will be present who will address the gathering. The celebration will also include an automobile parade from Friendsville to the end of the improved highway at the Blooming Rose church.

The two miles of completed road were constructed by the Tri-State Construction company and was just opened to traffic Tuesday. There is still a five mile gap of unimproved road to the Pennsylvania side to be completed before an uninterrupted way can be had to the National Pike. When completed, the road will provide Friendsville and vicinity with a shorter route to the National highway and a better way to Bruceton Mills, W. Va., and towns in that section.

K. OF P. LODGE STARTS DRIVE FOR MEMBERSHIP

At the meeting last Friday the Boy Scouts entertained, as did also the "Boiler-Maker's quartet," which sang several selections. An entertainment committee was appointed to provide entertainment for each meeting thruout the coming winter. Every member is urged to attend each and every meeting on Friday evenings at the Lodge rooms.

MABEL SWAN SENTENCED TO 3 YEARS IN PRISON

Former Nurse, Convicted of Killing Daniel Mosser, Taken To Penitentiary on Tuesday

Mabel Swann, former Baltimore nurse, who was convicted by a jury last Friday of murder in the second degree for shooting and fatally wounding her landlord, Daniel Mosser, at her home in Swanton, was given a sentence of three years in the Maryland penitentiary by Chief Judge D. D. Lindley Sloan, of Cumberland, shortly after two o'clock Monday afternoon. She was taken Tuesday morning to the Maryland penitentiary. Later she will be moved to the House of Correction. She heard the verdict pronounced without untoward movement and she remained composed.

Miss Swann was given a physical examinaition Monday morning by Dr. W. E. Williams, county physician, and Dr. A. H. Hawkins, who submitted a report to the court. Judge Sloan, before passing sentence, declared that the physieians had found Miss Swann suffering from toxic goitre, which will, sooner or later, have to be given medical attention. An immediate operation would be advisable, Judge Sloan said the physicians believed.

However, Judge Sloan stated that it would not be fair to Miss Swann to make her undergo an operation at present, as she could begin immediately to serve her time. Later, if it is so desired, he said, steps may be taken toward such an operation.

Since the jury had recommended mercy in its verdict, JudgeSloan said, the court felt that such a recommendation should be carried out to its fullest extent. The court had, he declared, conducted a thorough investigation into the woman's past and the result showed that she had never been guilty of immorality. "The finger of shame has never been pointed at her," Judge Sloan said. Her exeellent eharacter, her poor health and the jury's recommendation, he asserted, made a light sentence the only fair one.

He then passed sentence. Miss Swann, who had been brought into the court room at 2:15 o'clock, obviously in a state of extreme agitation, received the sentence calmly. She immediately began eonsulting her attorney, David A. Robb, who assisted in her defense. About five minutes later, she was taken out of the courtroom and back to the jail. Mr. Robb asked the court to be lenient in its sentence. The jury, he said, apparently made a compromise in order to reach its verdict. The testimony of the State, in his opinion, was valueless in several places, especially in that part whieh made threats against the life of Mosser. As an officer of the court and not as her counsel, he said, he was firmly convinced that Miss Swann's life had been that of a good though eccentric woman. Closing, he said she had been "guessed into a conviction."

Miss Swann's trial started last Monday and ended late Thursday afternoon. She was charged with shooting and killing her landlord, Daniel Mosser, near Swanton, on May 26, last. The defense contended that she had shot Mosser in order to protect her life. The State asserted that she had murdered Mosser because she thought he had informed Federal Officers that she was making liquor on her place.

There will be an organization meeting at the Presbyterian church at 6:45 on Sunday evening for the purpose of forming a Christian Endeavor society. All are urged to attend.

THREE INJURED WHEN CAR RUNS INTO MOVING TRAIN

Weber's Crossing Is Scene of Another Collision—Loaded Freight Car Is Derailed

Three young men escaped serious injury about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning when the Studebaker coach which they occupied ran into a moving freight train at Weber's crossing, about one mile south of Oakland. It was estimated that the car was traveling at an approximate speed of 60 miles per hour when the accident occurred. One loaded freight car was derailed by the force of the impact, and the car was practically reduced to a mass of wreckage. Fog prevented the occupants from seeing their danger, it was stated.

Those injured were J. Elliott Ryan, an auto salesman, whose home is in Parsons, W. Va., but who is now located at Keyser, W. Va.; Cecil Wilt, of Keyser; and Harold Fisher, of Parsons, who is attending school at Keyser. Dr. N. I. Broadwater, attending physician, of Oakland, stated that none of the men were seriously injured, although there were numerous scratches, bruises and cuts on all of them which required medical attention. Wilt was taken to Keyser on train No. 2 Tuesday morning, and the parents of the other two arrived and took them to their respective homes in Parsons.

The train ran quite a distance before coming to a complete halt, and when the engineer arrived at the wrecked auto, parts of it were in flames. The blaze was extinguished and the occupants lifted from the wreckage. The car did not turn over, but was so badly wrecked that it is considered a total loss. Medical aid was summoned from Oakland soon after the mishap.

The boys, who were musicians, were on their return journey from Parsons, where they had been engaged in playing for a dance the night before.

"Will the person who left the old fashioned hearse in my front yard please eail and get same. Otherwise it will be sold to satisfy all damage elaims."

"Lost, or disappeared in some manner—one porch bench."

"Will the person who carried my front gate away kindly notify me as to its whereabouts. It never did stay shut but it belongs in the family."

These and a score or more of other lost notices might well be posted as the Hallowe'en season offieially closed on Monday night, after hours of celebration by both young and old.

From 6:30 in the evening until midnight, boys and girls clad in all kinds of color, cloth, and whatnot, paraded the streets, in celebration of an event which antedates Christianity. Hallowe'en or All Hallows Eve, the eve of All Saints Day and its attendant ceremonies is very old. Although originally an occasion for fear and misgivings, because of the fact that at that time ghosts were most likely to walk, the more modern trend has been to make of it an occasion for gayety, fun and grotesque display.

For the preservers of order, it is a strenuous time, for the youths, an evening of the wildest pleasure, for the grown ups, a ehance to become young again, and a reminder of the times they used to have, which seem wilder than the wildest dreams in comparison with the apparently tame eelebration of this day and age.

Hallowe'en marks the stepping stone to the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays and in reality if the formal introduction of the autumn season. The world wouldn't seem the same without Hallowe'en.

BURNING LEAVES DESTROY GARAGE AT MT. LAKE PARK

Property Loss Estimated At Approximately $200.

The burning of leaves in Mountain Lake Park has again wrought disaster, in that a private garage was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock.

Several men, who were engaged by property owners to rake and burn the leaves around their respective properties, had finished their task on the Mrs. Jennie A. Allen, place, located on the North end of F. street, a short time after the noon hour and had gone to another section of the Park before the fire was discovered in the garage.

While the men supposed they had extinguished the leaves fire, it is generally supposed that some burning leaves had been blown into the garage which later caused its entire distruction.

It is estimated that the property loss will amount to probably $200.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire department responded to the call, and while they were not successful in saving the garage, they were instrumental in saving the residence, just a few feet from the burning building, it is said.

Mrs. Allen, owner of the property makes her winter home in Cumberland, in which city she was living at the time of the fire.

Average Daily Attendance In Elementary and High Schools Greater Than Last Year

A total of four thousand, one hundred sixty-four pupils attend public schools in Garrett at the present, according to figures just compiled by John L Fitzwater, school attnedance officer, for the month of September. The number of those attending will likely be increased for the months of October and November, Mr Fitzwater stated, as many were detained at home on account of work during the first month of school.

The average daily attendance in both elementary and high schools is greater than last year. In 1926 there was an average daily attendance in the elementary schools of 3,143, or 91.2 percent of the total enrolled. For the first month of this year, there were 3,336 attended every day, or an average of 92.8 percent of the total enrolled.

Five hundred thirteen attended every day in the high schools in 1926 or a percentage of 96, while for September of this year, there was a daily attendance of 593 or a percentage of 95.9. While the attendance has been larger in the high schools than last year, the percentage of perfect attendance has decreased slightly.

The total number enrolled in 36 public schools throughout the county is as follows: for one-teacher schools, election district number one, thirteen schools, 185; E. D. number two, eleven schools, 240; number three eleven schools, 165; number four, six schools, 82; number five, ten schools, 129; number six, ten schools, 170; number seven, four schools, 61; number eight, twelve schools, 271; number nine, five schools, 129; number ten, eleven schools, 188; number twelve, five schools, 100; number thirteen, three schools, 62; number fourteen, six schools, 108; number fifteen, four schools, 72.

The banner schools in each election district are given with the percentage of attendance for the month: one-teacher schools, number 1, Bethel and Streckers each had an attendance of 100 percent; number 2, McCabe, 96.7 percent; number 3, Dorsey, 98.1; number 4, Aaron's Run, 95; number 5, Winding Ridge, 98.2; number 6, Pine Swamp, 98.8; number 7, Lynndale, 97.5; number 8, Silver Knob, 100; number 11, Warnick-Jacob, 94.2; number 12, Beachy, 93.3; number 13, Peerless, 96.6; number 14, Herrington, 93.8; number 15, McKenzie, 92.8; two-teacher schools, Strawberry Hill, 98.9; graded schools, Kempton, 97.5; high schools, Kitzmiller, 97.6.

FRED. N. ZIHLMAN TO BE ARMISTICE DAY SPEAKER

Congressman Will Deliver Address In Maryland Theatre Afternoon of November 11

Hon. Fred. N. Zihlman, congressman for the sixth district, will be the speaker at the public gathering in the Maryland Theatre on the afternoon of Armistice Day, November 11, it was learned from Delbert Davis, post commander of the local post American Legion which is sponsoring the celebration.

The program for the proposed celebration calls for a public gathering at the theatre where a program consisting of musical numbers will be rendered by professionals in their line of entertainment, and the address by Congressman Zihlman.

HON. FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN

The morning feature of the day's activities will be a clay bird shoot and stationary target matches at the fair grounds. Turkeys, ducks and chickens will constitute the prizes to be awarded those winning them. A benefit picture will be shown at the Maryland theatre in the evening.

It is now being planned by the Legionairres to engage the orchestra which will be in Oakland during the three nights that the "Big Parade" will be shown at the Maryland, to play at a dance given in Naylor's Hall. According to present plans, the dance will be held on Wednesday, November 23, the night before Thanksgiving, said Ronald McIntire, chairman of the dance committee.

Plans for the Armistiee Day celebration are similar to those made and carried out last year with the possible exception of the community sign at the Maryland Theatre in the afternoon of the day, when Congressman Zihlman will address the audience and a musical program rendered.

Question About Auto License Tage Cleared Up.

Because county treasurer, Albert L. Lee, has had so many questions asked about applications for license tags without being certified by him, he directed a letter to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles asking this question: "What will an applicant have to do if he receives his application for license tags not certified by the county treasurer?"

In answer to this question Mr. Lee received the following reply from the commission: "Aeknowledge yours of the 21st and beg to advise that the applications not certified must be taken back to your office, when the applicant receives same from us, to be certified to by you before he can obtain tags.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for November 6

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

LESSON TEXT—Amos 5:1-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let judgment run down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Treating Everybody Right.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Kind of Man God Hears.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Squaring for God Against the Crowd.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Conditions of Divine Approval.

I. Israel's Desolation Predicted (vv. 1-3).

Amos lamented over the doom which was to overtake the nation. Israel is called a virgin because she had never been subdued by any foreign nation (see Isa. 23:12). Her failing to rise no more sets forth the utter desolation and helplessness to which the Assyrians subjected the nation. From this captivity Israel never returned. Those who came back from the Babylonian captivity were largely from Egypt.

II. The Call to Return to God.

God through the prophet says, "seek ye me and ye shall live." The implication is that while the divine judgments are not executed, an opportunity is offered for them to turn to God. In their turning to God they were to renounce:

1. Idolatry (vv. 5, 6).

They were to turn away from the places of idolatry—Bethel, Gilgal and Beersheba. God's judgment was to strike these places.

If they would not come to Him for life He would be their destroyer. "Our God is a consuming fire." The only one who can give life to those who seek Him is the one who shall destroy.

2. Cease to pervert judgment (v. 7).

"Turn judgment to wormwood" implies the bitterness of the perversion of justice to the injured.

3. Cease to dethrone righteousness.

"Leaving off righteousness" is thought to mean that unrighteousness was allowed to take its place. In this third exhortation the Lord's name is given with the following statement of some of His works:

1. "Maketh the seven stars and Orion;" 2. "Turneth the shadow of death into morning;" 3. "Maketh the day dark with night;" 4. "Calleth for the waters of the sea and poureth them out upon the earth," both in rain and deluge; 5. "Strengthened the spoil against the strong."

III. The Sins Committed by the Wicked Nation (vv. 10-13).

1. They hated the judge who condemned their wicked practices (v. 10).

2. They abhorred him that spoke uprightly (v. 10).

This most likely referred to the prophets themselves who told them of their sins and urged uprightness of life.

3. They trampled upon the poor (v. 11).

The rich built magnificent houses out of the proceeds extorted from the poor.

4. They afflicted the just (v. 12).

This they did by taking a bribe.

5. They turned aside the poor in the gate (v. 12).

Because they had no money the poor were turned aside.

It was most difficult for the poor to get justice. The times were so evil that the prudent would best keep silence.

IV. The Conduct of the Righteous (vv. 14, 15).

No condition in the world, religious, social or political can become so difficult that the righteous are shut off from help. The righteous can:

1. Seek God (v. 14).

Those who seek good shall have with them the Lord God of Hosts.

2. Hate the evil (v. 15).

Evil must be hated. The sin question must be settled before God can bestow His blessings.

3. Establish judgment in the gate.

It was the custom in that day for the courts of justice to sit in the gate of the city. The prophet urges upon them the responsibility to place honorable men in charge of public affairs.

V. The Judgment to Fall (vv. 16-20).

There is coming a day of retribution. Justice and right shall be vindicated. This will be realized in the day of the Lord (II Thess. 1:7-10; James 5:7). All wrong shall be righted at that time. May we earnestly pray, "thy kingdom come."

VI. Worship Without Holiness of Life an Abomination to God (vv. 21-27).

Sacrifices, observance of feast days and singing, when the heart is out of fellowship with God, is most displeasing to Him.

Two Different Things

The love of God and the world are two different things. If the love of this world dwell in thee, the love of God forsakes thee; renounce that, and receive this; it is fit that the nobler love should have the best place and acceptance.

Niagara, Key Position To West, Is Scene of Strife for Supremacy Between Indians English and French

By CLIFFORD RAYMOND

Navigation began on the Great lakes when La Salle spread sail on the Griffon above Niagara Falls. In 1678 he built a ten-ton brigantine at Fort Frontenac (Kingston, Ontario,) on the north shore of Lake Ontario, where the basin of the inland seas releases its waters to the Atlantic through the St. Lawrence.

That fort had been the outpost of Frontenac, the vigorous governor of an expanding new France.. The land about it had been given later to La Salle as his wilderness seigniory and he had royal authority for the exploration of the lakes and the Mississippi, for the development of trade and the expansion of empire. He was preeminently fitted for it.

The Niagara peninsula is an arm thrown as a bar across the great waterway of a land which is a world in itself. For the French it was an Indian arm and the Indians, the Iroquois, were the most competent in all the land France hoped to open up. The Iroquois' long house extended from the Hudson to Niagara.

The English were cupboarded and shelved along the Atlantic, penned in by mountains and with little access to interior waterways. The French above them had waterways, which in spite of their barriers of rapids and falls, were superb in their accommodation to the needs of explorer, soldier, settler, trader and city builder. Nature gave all the trumps to the French and a decadent political system misplayed them.

The first misplay was in a fashion unavoidable. The man who made it was Champlain, one of the great outstanding men of French Canada. He picked the loser in Indian wars as old as the dynastic wars of Europe. He knew that whoever won the continent would begin with Indian aid, and quite naturally he sought to bind to him the tribes along the St. Lawrence, not knowing that they hadn't a chance against the Iroquois confederation to the South.

When he shot two Iroquois chiefs with his arquebus near Ticonderoga in the Lake Champlain region of New York he closed the Niagara portage for seventy years and more. In fact, the French never had a full and uninterrupted use of it. By the time they could make their foothold good against the Indians the English were challenging their position on the frontier.

Permanent French works were put under construction in 1725 and William Johnson, the great English Indian agent of the Hudson region, captured them in 1759. The Iroquois nation near Niagara was the Senaca, the extreme west of the confederation, and the most remote from the scene of the first French encounter with the American red Romans. The Chiefs Champlain shot were probably Mohawks. The Senacas had much experience with the French later.

So dreaded was the Iroquois barrier that the French, in going west, for years took the Ottawa river and Lake Nipissing route rather than the upper St. Lawrnce. They knew Lake Superior fifty years before they did Lake Erie. They fought the Iroquois, there were punitive expeditions and retaliations, attempts at peace, cajolery and persuasions; promises of profit and acts of treachery.

When the French mastered the Niagara peninsula it was too late. The Iroquois had held them back until the English had acquired irresistible momentum, purpose, power and numbers to break through the natural barriers to defeat their enemies and to take the country.

When La Salle had the Griffon built above the fall he was making a well-directed attempt at the closed territory and doing so with the imagination, courage and vigor which later filled the Illinois country and the Mississippi Valley with the record of his exploits, the greatest of the French in America, but he was murdered on a Texas plain and thereafter Niagara had no guiding genius to open it up and keep it open for new France.

For the most part the English did not start on even terms with the French when the object was the management of the Indians. And this was all the more a tribute to the French temperament, because the English, with control of the sea, could bring their goods over more easily and securely. They could make finer presents and give more attractive exchange for furs.

England was the better traveling salesman in the forests and at times the advantage counted, but in English America the idea that a good Indian was a dead Indian had an early growth.

In the Puritan formula the aborigine was a peculiar work of the devil, isolated on this continent to be beyond the word of God. Cotton Mather gave sanction and form to this opinion. It probably was not a good basis for amicable intercourse and cooperation. The English sent killers among the Indians. The French got killers from them.

The exceptions were the Iroquois. What Champlain had begun in making implacable enemies for the French Sir William Johnson, after his rather futile campaign which changed Lake Sacrament to Lake George, completed in making durable allies for the English.

Johnson knew the Indians as well as any Frenchman could know them. He did not have moralistic scruples. If the Indians liked him for giving or selling them rum or using it in barter, he satisfied them. The first minister in his domain was dismayed by this and started the Anti-Saloon league some thirty or forty years before the Revolution. The provincial Assembly at Albany passed a law prohibiting traffic in spirits with the Indians.

When Johnson heard of the legislation and inquired into its cause and source, he found that the minister had given the Assembly a petition with the signs and symbols of the Iroquois sachems in signature to it.

When he asked them if they wanted their rum cut off they said they couldn't think of a thing they desired less. They had been offered a document of worthy purpose and they had signed it. That was their story to Johnson, who became then the first bootlegger.

His success was greatest with the Mohawks, who were immediately his neighbors. Unfortunately for the colonies, his influence carried over into the Revolution after his death and was used by his successors in the Tory cause against the patriots. What they had gained in the wars with the French they paid for in their own war for independence. In balancing accounts the gain would outweigh the loss, bloody as that was in such descents as that of the Iroquois Brant upon the Wyoming Valley in Pennsylvania.

Although the French could never appease the clans in the East, they had some fluctuating, unstable and uncertain successes with the Senacas about Niagara. La Salle's first attempts at treaty with them were largely failures. Father Hennepin was one of the negotiators. He was told, in a formal ceremony, that the Senecas preferred to trade with the Dutch and the English, getting better bargains from them and goods more to their liking.

The tribe at the time was about to carry a war to the Hurons north of Georgian Bay and the men not required for that were needed in hunting. The French carpenters were put to work hurriedly on the Griffon while the Senecas were thus occupied. The location of the yard where the ship was built is indicated now, as well as research can satisfy itself, by a tablet in the village of La Salle above the falls.

The workers were in constant apprehension of Indian attack, but they had a sixty-ton ship built by the time the war and hunting parties returned and the Senecas, with amazement, saw a monster canoe sailing up the river for Lake Erie with salutes from its guns, bound for the great interior of the country. The navigation of the river was difficult, but the ship made the lake. It got to Green Bay and was loaded with furs, but was lost in a storm.

La Salle had tried and was trying at his death in 1687 to connect the Gulf of Mexico with the Gulf of St. Lawrence by the Niagara portage, a vision which radiates out of Chicago today. The valleys and plains back of the mountains would be French. The lakes and rivers, the Mississippi and Ohio, and all the contributing waterways would be French.

The new Governor of New France, De Nonville, decided to secure Niagara by teaching the Senecas a lasting lesson. Champlain had followed up his initial mistake with a punitive expedition. Frontenac had really made an impression on the Iroquois with his attacks. De Nonville was thot to be as vigorous as Champlain and as terrible as Frontenac.

He assembled a force, including Indians from Michilimackinac, and marched to put the Senecas permanently in their place. He defeated a party of warriors and destroyed four villages with great stores of corn. He then returned and began the building of a fort at Niagara.

Considerable as the devastation of Seneca territory had been, it was only a pin prick for the Iroquois confederation. The warrior nation arose in retaliation and the French line of settlements from what is now Kingston (Fort Frontenac) to Tadousac quivered under the raids.

De Nonville sought a peace, but his western Indians defeated whatever chance he had. They waylaid the Iroquois negotiators and carried them off to Michilimackinac for torture, sparing one as a messenger to tell of the fato of the others. The outrage permitted no explanation. It was treachery in the blackest form.

Fifteen hundred Iroquois put their canoes in the water. They came down the Richlieu river and up the St. Lawrence. They came to the nearest striking place at Montreal. In the night they gathered about the village of La Chine, at the upper end of the island of Montreal, and entered while the villagers were sleeping.

The more fortunate of their 200 victims, men, women and children, were slain in their beds. The others were carried over the river and for days their outcries sounded across the water. The terror was again over Canada.

De Nonville built his Niagara fort and garrisoned it with one hundred men, to be relieved in the spring. In the winter supplies failed: The Indians made hunting impossible. The cold was so intense that choppers who could venture out for wood under the protection of the fort were overcome.

By the middle of February sixty of the one hundred were dead. March took twenty more, including De Troyes, the commander.

A Miami war party found and aided the survivors. In the spring reinforcements and supplies came, but in September, 1688, the post was abandoned. The French had not yet conquered the arm which blocked their way.

In 1719 Chabert Joncaire, a Frenchman who had been adopted into the Seneca tribe and had married a Seneca woman, was used to see if the experiences with De Nonville could not be forgotten. He was persuasive and shrewd and obtained a half consent that the French might build a magazine or storehouse for goods at the beginning of the portage around the falls.

Trading relations thus were established and a foothold was maintained in spite of the English protests, and in 1725, when the French Government was spending vast sums to fortify and hold Canada, the Marquis De Vaudreuil began the construction of the extensive works and buildings known as Fort Niagara.

ACHIEVEMENTS IN COMMUNICATION FIELD OUTSTANDING ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF AGE

Greater Advances Made in Transmission of Speech in Past Two Decades Than in Previous 1900 Years. Seeing by Telephone Latest Triumph of Science

In this age of miracles there seems to be no limit to what science can accomplish. The question is constantly arising, "what will be the next startling scientific event."

Of late, it has been very noticeable that the communication branch of science has been outstanding in its achievements. In fact, greater advances have been brought about in the transmission of speech in the last 27 years than in the previous 1900 years. Now every indication points to the fact that universal world telephone service is a possibility at a no great distant date.

Late achievements in communication have been transatlantic radio telephone conversations followed closely by the transmission of images of persons over telephone lines while conversations were actually in progress.

A few years ago when pictures were first transmitted from one point to another over long distance lines, people predicted that science had reached its limits in this direction, but now a person talking over a telephone in Washington has actually been seen, as well as beard in New York.

For years the comic artists have pictured people as describing articles over the telephone. One of the time-honored jokes of the comic sections of newspapers has been that of the absent-minded man who walked off with his host's umbrella. On being called by telephone, he holds up the umbrella and asks, "Is this the one?"

Now that television has become an accomplished fact this standard joke will loose its popularity, for it is now possible, not only to describe, but see lost articles by telephone.

Television, meaning far vision, has recently been demonstrated to audiences in Washington and New York. At the initial performance Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce at Washington, talked to, and was seen as well as heard by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and an audience of engineers, scientists and newspaper men in New York City.

At the opening of the demonstration. President Gifford in addressing those present said in part, "Today, we are witnessing another milestone in the conquest of nature by science. We shall see the fruition of years of study on the problem of seeing at a distance as though face to face. The principles underlying television, which are related to the principles involved in electrical transmission of speech, have been known for a long time, but today we shall demonstrate its successful achievement. The elaborateness of the equipment required by the very nature of the undertaking precludes any present possibility of television being available in homes and offices generally. What its practical use may be I shall leave to your imagination. I am confident, however, that in many ways and in due time it will be found to add substantially to human comfort and happiness.

"It is our constant aim to furnish this country with the most complete telephone service possible. In connection with that aim, we endeavor to develop all forms of communication that might be supplemental to the telephone. With that in view, we shall continue our work on television which, although not directly a part of telephone communication, is closely allied to it."

The general principles underlying television which makes it possible for a person talking by telephone in one place to have his image as well as voice transmitted to a distant station has been known for a long time. "But it is one thing to appreciate general principles and frequently quite another to realize them practically," says Dr. Frank B. Jewett, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and president of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. "In the case of television many of the elements long recognized as essentials to success were not possible of attainment until general science had been farther advanced. But even when recently fundamental research work developed new knowledge, new materials and new methods, the problem of successful television demanded a vast amount of co-ordinated research and development work to crystallize scientific possibilities into practical realities.

"The research and development functions of the Bell System, of which the laboratories are a most important part, are organized for the solution of just such problems. But the research and development work for the perfection of television will go on for years, although enough has already been accomplished to indicate that it is likely to have a real place in the world's work of distant communication."

Vitamins And Vitality

By F. F. Corliss

All that is known about vitamins has been discovered within the past ten or twelve years by experimental feeding.

No one has ever seen vitamins in a test tube, or elsewhere, they have never been isolated, weighed or measured. They are minute and mysterious substances concealed in foods and in some foods they are more abundant than in others.

Just how they work in the process of digestion is unknown. They are known by results. They give to a man a degree of health and vitality not obtainable without them.

Their absence in the system soon results in sickness, disease, and even in death.

As health cannot be measured or valued in dollars and cents the Science of living becomes more important to us than high finance or the discovery of an element or a star.

So the practical dietitian is the biggest man in the arena of science today. The normal age of all animals is reputed to be five times that which elapses between birth and maturity.

If it requires two years for a puppy to become a full grown dog then his age limit is ten years.

Man is twenty years in reaching maturity and many grow for a year or two longer, thus his normal age limit would be one hundred years if he applied the law for right living. To be sure men have lived in a haphazard indifferent way for many centuries, eating what they liked best, over eating, hurried eating and invariably neglecting to properly masticate what they eat.

Many have hung on to life for seventy or eighty years and too often twenty or more of those years have been years of uselessness, disability and distress. The average age of man is much longer now than fifty years ago but this advance in longevity is due to other causes and in spite of wrong feeding, for which the chemist, surgeon and medical practitioner deserve credit. As man has become educated, cultured, and refined, so much of his food has been bleached, polished and refined until the vitalizing elements (vitamins) have been extracted. Consider the pre-digested ready-made factory products that come to us now in cans and cartons and compare them with the home-grown farm products fresh for the table that people lived on a hundred years back.

Bread is called the "staff of life" but the bleached white bread is a poor staff to lean on, because the vitamins have been removed and they are the things that vitalize our blood, give us health, vim, virility and power to resist infectious disease germs. When the deficiency in vitamins is not too large, we can keep up a feeble fatigued hang-on existence, but to get the fullness of life as we go and enjoy its buoyancy and prolong our years, we must have a selected, mixed ration that will satisfy nature's need for the VITAMINS.

The civilized man's diet has become badly perverted from health standards, until the most important question that confronts him is, how to live fully and live long.

And it depends on our food. It is our food and drink that converts into blood. The air we breathe simply oxidizes it, exercise aids assimilation and quickens our circulation. But the blood makes our bones, body and our brain. Vitamins are what vitalize the blood. Health is man's normal, natural state when he obeys the laws of health. When our food lacks all the vitamins we are soon devitalized-dead.

Animals of the lower organisms spend nearly all their time searching for and eating their food and we find that nature has devoted abdominal space and the length of the intestinal tract and the strength of the gastric juices to meet the food requirements of the animal. Man belongs to the frugivorous type and needs different food from that of the Carnivorous and omnivorous animals. So when man is examined anatomically and physiologically his alimentary canal is found to be twelve times the length of his body, while that of the Carnivora is but three times the length of the body.

But as life becomes higher evolved less space is given to the digestive organs and more space is given for brain and instruments that develop the mind. So as mentality increases the need for food decreases. But in man the quality of his food must be maintained in order to maintain normal health. Digestion begins with the salivary secretions in the mouth and they are alkaline. All food even milk needs much chewing until it is of the consistency of cream, by that time it has become thoroughly macerated and mixed with the salivary juices and is in proper condition to be acted on by the gastric juices of the stomach, which are acid. When food reaches the intestinal tract it enters an alkaline medium. Now, a dog, being carnivorous, can swallow meat in chunks and digest it, because nature has given more gastric juice and stronger in acidity than it is in man.

The excessive eating of meat by man is about the worst thing the dietitian has to contend with. If man's stomach could completely digest all of the meat before it enters the intestines, he would get the benefit of its protein and no detriments. But it seems that much meat goes into the alkaline fluids of the intestines where digestion ceases and auto-intoxication begins and other disturbances.

Meat is the natural food for the Carnivora but not for man, though he may eat it if willing to pay the price in some physical ailment. The added length of man's intestinal tract renders it unfit for long retention of undigested and decomposible food and meat is quickly decomposed in a warm moist place. There are other physiologieal reasnos why man should go lightly on meat if he eats any. If we desire to live for longevity and the joyous exhileration that only health bestows, there is one fact worthy of remembrance three times daily, and that is that all that we eat in excess of what we can assimilate becomes like slow ptomaine poison to the system unless we can eliminate it before it enters the blood stream.

Man's proper food is classified as follows: Proteins, tissue and muscle forming elements; Fats, fat and heat forming elements; Carbo-hydrates, the starches and sugars, which are said to supply about three-fourths of the body's heat and energy. It's our business to get these elements in a balanced ration and select food that is richest in vitamins A B and C.

There are sixteen mineral salts essential to health like the salts of Calcium, Phosphorous, Iron, Sodium and we need these in organic form as they grow in wheat, lettuce, spinach and not in form of tablets made by the chemist. When we wish to know the facts and learn the needs of life, we must study nature in her works and ways. In doing so, we find that nature has given some animals hoofs, others claws and to man, she has given hands, also to each group she has given a different digestive apparatus that requires special kinds of foods for its full development and the maintenance of normal health. Hence nature designed men to be vegetarians.

Nature does not punish men vindictively for their disobedience to her laws. Man can eat what he pleases and do what he likes but his infringement of the rules for health lead to dire results and he must suffer the consequences. The body requires a certain amount of nitrogenous food to replace the energy spent in work and exercise and all lean carries protein, but it also carries a poison to the system that is not found in vegetable protein. Organic chemistry teaches us that all the protein necessary for the maintenance of bodily activities can be supplied from the vegetable kingdom, in the form of peas, beans, cabbage, tomatoes and potatoes.

There are three vitamins present in our various foods that are absolutely essential. They have been named, fat soluable A- Water soluable B- and water soluable C-. Vitamin A is found in whole wheat, whole milk, cream, butter, cheese, eggs, tomatoes, cabbage, peas, string beans and in the green leafy tops of most vegetables. This vitamin prevents Ricketts and under development in children. Vitamin B is an "antineuritic" and a preventive of the much dreaded disease among the Chinese and Japanese called "Beri-Beri". It is found in various foodstuffs, principal source is in the seeds of plants. In cereals, wheat, rye, rice and oats it is found in the husk or outer layer and in the process of milling, bleaching, and refining polished rice and wheat flour it is all lost, but it is found in the bran. Vitamin C is very important: is anti-scorbutic, prevents scurvy. It is found in fresh vegetables and in fruits. Cabbage, turnips, lettuce, onions, water cress, tomatoes, in oranges lemons raspberries and bananas and grapefruit.

This article is much abbreviated on account of limited space.

It is well to note that all the hard physical work of the world is done by vegetarian animals—the horse, camel, ox and mule.

The carnivorous lion and tiger can show a spurt of energy but they lack endurance. This fact holds true in the life and endurance tests of the highest of all animals—man.

The late researches of Prof. Chittenden of Yale, have shown us that the evil results of too much meat are uric acid poisoning, auto-intoxication and a train of allied diseases. Also that we have increased health and added strength by reducing the protein content to one-third what physiologists formerly advised.

The facts I cite are gathered from various sources, but all dietitians of high repute.

Whole milk is the only single food known that contains all the elements essential for growth and health.

The next food in value is bread or rolls, made from whole wheat flour, gether, are: meat and milk; sour with all the bran intact. This statement applies to rye bread, oat meal and rice. Unpolished rice with the husk on is a nourishing food.

Whole wheat, rye, barley, corn and oats contain vitamins A and B and should be eaten as bread with butter or as cereals with cream or milk. All the vegetables grown are desirable when sun grown and eaten in their season. Tomatoes are especially rich in the first three vitamins and next is lettuce. Spinach, dandelions and raw cabbage follow them closely in vitamin values.

All nuts are desirable food for protein and most of them contain one or two of the vitamins. Eat liberally of butter, cream and drink milk daily, also fruits—all you need.

Unless you are bilious don't forget the eggs, which have vitamins A and B. But heat destroys the vitamins when cooked in exposure to the air, as when fried or poached. Eggs boiled hard or soft in the shell retain their vitamins.

Some fruits disagree with some people for some specific reasons, but where there is no objection all the fruits are a desirable adjunct in our diet.

The juice of oranges is unexcelled by any fruit in vitamin values. The boarding house prune is unfashionable but is nevertheless a valuable fruit food.

Bad combinations, when eaten together, are: meat and milk; sour fruits and milk; fruits and vegetables.

Man's stomach is his best friend and in a state of health he should be unconscious that he has one. When pain reminds him that he has a stomach, it is time to stop abusing it, to feed it right and not over work it—then it will serve him to a ripe old age.

Man is an independent, self-willed, obstinate animal, and an epicure in his tastes, "who wants what he wants when he wants it," and doesn't want to be taught or told what he shall eat or drink. But when he is down and almost out he is mighty glad to listen and follow the fads of those he called fools.

CARELESSNESS OR WHAT?

Is there such a thing as a railroad crossing being too safe, and this being known, brings on the idea that there is no need to look carefully before moving forward to the other side? Whether or not a railroad crossing could be too safe, is a question, but the fact remains that within one mile of Oakland there is a crossing that can be seen for a quarter of a mile up and down the tracks.

The collision between another automobile and freight train at Weber's crossing on Tuesday only brings to mind a little bit more forcibly the fact that there are too many accidents occurring at this apparently clear and safe thoroughfare, no matter what the reason.

There is not a season goes by without one or two accidents, which have resulted in loss of life on several occasions, and that the three young men escaped serious injury Tuesday morning is a mystery that can never be explained.

In inspecting the crossing, one would casually come to the conclussion that it was one of the safest places along the whole Baltimore and Ohio tracks. One may see up and down the rails for more than a half mile, and the crossing can be seen from both sides when within a quarter of a mile of it.

In spite of all this, more wrecks occur at this crossing than at others that are many times more dangerous. The presence of fog was given as the cause of the collision on Tuesday, and there is no doubt that fog collects quite heavy in that section.

But whatever the cause of the last wreck, one thing is sure. Smash-ups could be climinated, or at least lessened, by placing a signal of some kind at the crossing. Either a bell which could be heard by the driver, or a light that could be seen by him would go far in eliminating accidents, and at the present time, there is no danger sign of either description except for a reflector set up by the State Roads Commission.

There might be such a thing as over-confidence on the part of the drivers who knew the road, but on a foggy night, a warning bell or a light would soon send the over-confidence to its proper place and in its stead would come caution, a necessary element in ones makeup when approaching railroad crossings.

As long as there is a crossing, drivers should be warned of the danger. The crossing is as safe as it is possible to make it with the clear view along both the tracks above and belowit, but it might be so safe that it invites indiscretion. A warning bell would bring drivers back to earth.

IS A MAN A MERE MACHINE

Perhaps the most mysterious force in the universe is the human brain. Who can tell what are the obscure and occult forces in this little head of man,which direct his steps and plan his ways, and perform his mighty works, and which have enabled him to measure the stare and plot out the path of the planets?

The psychologists differ as to the thought that lies bchind all the marvellous action of man. Some of these modern thoeries seem to reduce man's intellect practlcally to the level of a machine.

"You can not reduce us to mere automobiles or mechanical beings, without conscious experience" declared one speaker at the recent psychological congress at Wittenberg college in Ohio. He urged that if a man committed a criminal act, he could not attribute that act to the functioning of hls nervous system which he could not control.

In spite of the fine spun discussions of the philosophers, the common sense of mankind has said that man exercises free will, that he designs his own course, is responsible for his acts and it ls up to him to improve on the conditions that were given him at birth, and not fall down to a lower level.

Some people think that if a thing ls fated to be, it will be, and they can't help it. So they decline to accept responsibility for their own acts. But our systems of law and social conduct are built on the theory that every man is a free agent, and that he is no more cog in a blind machine of fate. but that he decides his course as a result of a conscious choice for which he is responsible. This is the only theory that will make the world grow any better, for if we can not help our own acts, why should we struggle for any better conduct?—Cumberland Evening Times.

SHE AINT WHAT SHE IS AND ISN'T WHAT SHE WAS

The old proverb "You can't judge a horse by its harness" still holds good. Writing in a similar vein in the Chicago Daily News, Hamilton P. Galt, feature writer, pays his respects to elaborately decorated telephones. The article is written for the benefit of those who insist on disguising this useful instrument of service to make it seem like something it isn't. His story in part follows:

"What's the idea in dolling up the telephone the way people do nowadays?" said the plumber to the gas-fitting man. "The other day I was fixing a leak in the bathtub and I wanted to telephone for a monkey wrench so I could shut off the water. I asked the lady if I could use the telephone. But I couldn't find it, even when she told me where it was, and even when she came into the room where I was and picked it up and handed it to me I didn't recognize it.

"I said, 'What I want is a telephone, lady. What are you handing me this tissue paper doll for? I don't want no doll. I won 'leven of 'em at a raffle the other night. They don't thrill me any.'

"She said, 'That's the telephone I just gave you. You talk into the doll's hair and listen through her heel.'

"I said, 'Madam, this is the bunk! Have they got a real telephone next door? A telephone without trimmings? I want to talk business.'

"She said they had no plain telephones in that neighborhood. I think she said the telephone next door was masquerading as a rose. You talked into a rose and listened through a daffodil.

"I said, 'Madam, I can't say this with flowers. I've got to get a monkey wrench and I've got to get it quick. What kind of a telephone is there on the other side of you? What do they do? Talk through a grapevine and listen through a banana? What has the telephone done to be treated that way? It's a hard-working day laborer and ought to be respected as such. You oughtn't to try to make a useless, idle-rich time killer out of it.'

"I said, 'Them telephones in the movies are bad enopgh where the poor things are forced to make up as a euckoo clock or a martin box. But people never do any real talking over movie 'phones, so it doesn't make any difference.'

"But she said that telephones are very unsightly things, and besides, everything is made to look like something else nowadays, especially useful things. Pincushions are made to look like petunias or liverwurst or most anything that will disguise their lowly function."

"Their lowly which?" inquired the gasfitting man, as he licked a lead pencil disguised as a nail.

Land of Rip Van Winkle Offers Motor Delights

The Catskill Mountain section of New York State, "Land of Rip Van Winkle"— is the extremely picturesque portion of the great Allegheny Plateau that extends eastward to the Hudson valley.

The mountains lie mainly within the counties of Delaware, Green and Ulster, and altitudes ranging from a few hundred to upwards of four thousand feet above sea level.

Scenery of the greatest beauty and many points of historic and literary interest mark this section. Washington Irving, Cooper, Bryant and Longfellow found inspiration here. Lakes and streams abound, wooded glens, picturesque waterfalls, rocky canyons, open valleys, such as the Delaware, with countless fertile farms, and in contrast, narrow notches through which the road passes in perpetual shades—all these lend a stimulating variety to the Catskill scene.

Fine state highways lead the tourist through the more important sections, reports the Automobile Club of America, New York, and secondary roads of good macadam, bring practically all points of interest within easy reach.

There are more than two million acres of forest land in the Catskills. Much of this virgin country is included in the State Forest Reserve, which is bounded roughly by Prattsville, Windham, and Durham on the north, Lexington, Westkill, and the East Branch of the Delaware River on the West, Palenville and the Ashokan reservoir on the East and Grahamsville on the South.

The outstanding scenic features of the region are in the State Forest Reserve, including Black Dome, 3,990 feet, Double Top, 3,800 feet and Slide Mountain, 4,200 feet, Kaaterskill clove with its towering cliffs.

Some of the most attractive towns are also within the boundaries of the Reserve. Woodstock, for instance, a live progressive and attractive community, and Fleishmann's, located on the border of the Reserve.

Routes from N. Y. City

From New York city along the West Shore of the Hudson, the route will include Englewood, Tenafly, Sparkhill, Nyack, Haverstraw, Stony Point, Jones Point, Highland Falls, and around West Point, over the Storm King Highway to Cornwall and Newburgh. Next town is Highland then Esopus and Kingston.

This active, thriving city with modern business houses, is also a hotel center of note. In the old Senate House, in Kingston, the State of New York, as the new entity succeeding the colony, had its birth. The buildnig was constructed in 1676 and was partially burned by the British in 1777. It is now owned by the State and houses a valuable collection of relics and mementoes.

From Kingston, go northwest, past the Ashokan Reservoir, for points in the western Catskills. Run north to Unionville where a turn east will connect with the Rip Van Winkle Trail running from Saugerties to Palenville and west through Kaaterskill Clove, one of the scenic "high spots" of the Catskills.

From Kingston, you can also run through Stony Hollow and West Hurley to Woodstock, at the foot of Overlook Mountain, amid scenery that is quite delightful. A large artists' colony gathers here in the summertime and life is gay and healthful. This is one of the growing communities of the Catskills; new buildings each year indicates its increasing popularity.

With Woodstock as a center, a number of fine trips can be made in all directions. Northwest lie Lake Hill and Willow, south there is the forty-mile circuit of the Ashokan Reservoir. This great water reserve covers thrirteen square miles and holds one hundred and twenty billion gallons of water for the use of New York city. It is the world's largest artificial lake.

Our route may be continued west following the Esopus Creek to Phoenicia, past some road construction into Shandaken, and on to Big Indian, Pine Hill, Fleishmann's and Arkville to Margaretville.

From Margaretville, route No. 64 offers a fine approach to Delhi to the northwest. Going north out of Margaretville, route No. 19 will carry the trip to Roxbury and Grand Gorge. At Grand Gorge, we reach the well-known Mohican Trail which connects Oneonta on the west with Catskill on the east, providing a splendid roadway through the northern Catskills and a convenient entrance to tourists from western New York.

The Mohican Trail

In stage coach days the Mohican trail was an important link in the transportation of passengers mail and freight between Binghamton, Ithaca and Central New York, and the Hudson River.

From Oneonta, the Trail runs thru Davenport, North Kortright, Harpersfield, and Stamford, one of the popular centers of mountain resort life. This town is located in the beautiful Delaware Valley at an elevation of 2,000 feet above sea level. South of Stamford is Mount Utsayantha from the summit of which a wonderful panorama is revealed. A good automobile road leads to the top.

Next comes Grand Gorge, Prattsville, Ashland, Windham, Brooksburg to East Windham. From the summit at East Windham, there is a gorgeous view out over three thousand square miles of country, over farms and hamlets, woods, hills, streams, and lakes as far as the eye can see. The out look extends over into Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Durham is next, then Cairo and the Catskill. Between Cairo and Catskill, road repairs are in progress, particularly near South Cairo and Leeds, but the road is open and there are no detours.

Rip Van Winkle Trail

The Rip Van Winkle Trail begins at the Hudson River at Saugerties running north through Quarryville to Palenville; Catskill is also regarded as a terminous of the trail, the routes joining at Palenville. Here the first glimpse of Catskill scenery is caught on this route west and for four miles we run through Kaaterskill Clove between cliffs that sometimes reach a height of 2,000 feet. At Haines Falls, the road attains its greatest elevation. Development of recent years here, are the fine, private, residential parks that have been established on the slopes of Mount Lincoln—Sunset Park Twilight Park and Santa Cruz Park. At Tannersville are Elka Park and Ontcora Park.

Hunter is next, then Lexington, the Trail connecting with the Mohican Trail at Prattsvile, on the Schoharie Creek.

Seven miles north of Prattsville is Gilboa Reservoir (three miles east of Grand Gorge.) This lake is five miles long, twelve in circumference, the surroundings much more rugged than Ashokan. The tunnel is a marvelous feat of engineering, eighteen miles long, extending through the mountain to Allaben.

From the South

Another approach to the Catskills from the South, particularly useful to Motorists from the south and west, is to run north through Paterson, N. J., Ridgewood, Waldick, Suffern, thence northeast through Ladentown, Mt. Ivy to the Hudson River road, N. S. 9W and then north.

The route north out of Suffern toward Tuxedo, Arden, Hariman, should be avoided by all through traffic. The roadway is being rebuilt for a considerable distance and traffic is subject to long delays.

In coming into the Catskill region from the northwest via Utica, Route No. 28 through Ilion, Mohawk and Richfield Springs is recommended. Continue through Springfield, Sharon Springs, Sharon to Cobleskill, Route No. 7 is torn up east of Cobleskill, but traffic is allowed through with slight delays; southwest from Cobleskill and via route No. 7, the route is clear to Oneonta.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

If your idea of entertainment in the theatre is to laugh and hear your neighbor laugh with you, then do not fail to see "Abie's Irish Rose," the mirth provoking comedy success by Anne Nichols, who is both its author and producer. "Abie's Irish Rose" will begin an engagement of one night only Monday November 15 at the Maryland theatre in Oakland.

Aptly described as "the play that puts 'U' in humor," this comedy, based on the marital troubles of a young couple of different race and religious beliefs, has established a record for continuous laughter that has not been equalled by any other theatrical attraction in America. It is now in its sixth year at the Republic theatre, New York, and has also broken capacity records at Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Atlanta, and at other places.

The story of the play hinges around the difficulties of a young married couple a Jewish boy and an Irish girl, whose fathers endeavor to separate them on account of differing religious faiths. This theme is so delicately and humanely handled as to give offence to noone. Seats for the engagement are now selling at Gonder's Pharmacy, phone 69.

Birthday Anniversary Held For "Uncle Billy" Browning.

Wednesday, October 26, was a day of rejoicing by the Garrett county tribe, decendants of the great hunter, Meshack Browning, for William Browning, affectionately named Uncle Billy by his many relatives and friends, on this day, turned the corner and commeneed the 93rd three hundred and sixty-five days of his long journey through life. He is the brother of the late Senator R. T. Browning and they are grandsons of the famous hunter.

Uncle Billy has filled full his measure of patient forbearance, of toil and self sacrifice, of endurance and self-denial, that every good father of a family has known and felt from the days of Adam down to date. Uncle Billy has his reward. It is something to look upon the laughter and enjoyment of his affectionate posterity, of his children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren, it is something for him to feel that the gift of making their own sunshine is their heritage, turning it into joy and gladness, to help warm and light up the pathway of the dear old father, while he still sojourns with us, on this side of the vast untried.

Young men with their habits of life being formed as they walk the street should look around and mark those examples whose rule for a long and useful life they would attain. Behold a patriarch whose vigor four score years nearly, seem hardly to have impared. His undimmed senses alone, are a certificate of a well conducted lifetime, an outstanding rare jewel, his orders of nobility, in which nature has enrolled him, for his fidelity to her laws. His habitual good humor conquered the most trying of environment.

There's not a cheaper thing on earth,
Nor yet one half so dear;
'Tis worth more than distinguished birth
Or thousands gained a year.
What may this wondering spirit be
With power unheard before
This charm, this bright divinity
Good nature--nothing more!

So on this auspicious occasion, we held a "get-together" to engrave upon the towering milestone of chocolate cake and trimmin's---when we were satisfied that attractive milestone was just completely wiped out---among the missing sure.

The ancient orchestra secured for the event, every member nearly one hundred years old, but that did not detract from their charms, Monymusk, Fisher's hornpipe, Highland Fling Turkey in the Straw, Arkensaw traveler, and other ancient selections raked up from the roots of the potato patches, and the cabbage patches of "Auld Lang Sine." While the towering 92nd milestone of chocolate was going where all good chocolate cakes go, the orchestra treated them to two or three classics, ending with Home, Sweet Home, and the happy, laughing guests accepted the last as a good hint to "get there" for the hour was half past bedtime. Game warden, R. S. Browning and his sister, Miss Margaret, distinguished themselves as host and hostess upon this delightfully passing anniversary occeasion.---M. O. M.

With a total of 143 marriags licenses for the month of October, a new recrod has been set for that particular month, the number this year breaking the former record of 119 marriages in 1925 by 24. One hundred forty-three marriage applicants for the month of October is extremely large, according to the clerk of the circuit court, and will probably stand as a record for October for several years.

Five licenses issued during the past week were marked "don't publish," while one person was refused a license on account of the age of the contracting parties. Saturday was again the most popular day of the week, 13 making application to the clerk on that day. Monday was next best with eight.

Poor Doctor.

Socrates has jumped his last Tiddly-Wink. No more will he perform in amateur or professional circles. The world's famous authority on Tiddly-Winks, who was to direct a few lessons of that mystic are, exclusively for The Republican came to a sad end during his last tournament.

It seems as though the village champion of Canaan Valley and the doctor jumped their last man in the pot at the same time and the argument over who won the game lasted so long that starvation set in. The wound became mortified and all expert medical aid was summoned but to no avail.

Dr. Socrates, before his demise, wrote a letter of apology to Scoop of The Republican, to be published for the benefit of those who were expecting to profit and improve their play from the instructions of the world famous authority.

Dear Scoop:—With deepest regret I inform you that my contract cannot be filled, and your many readers will suffer I am certain. Give them my regards. As to the advance salary I received, let me say that it is just too bad. Please see that I am buried in a Tiddly-Wink glass with all due ceremony. I want you to know that I died in my elements. Mountain Pussies Abound.

Oakland of late, seems to be on the verge of an invasion. From all reports, the enemy scouts are already within our lines and have put over numerous barrages, and it has been reported that one of the miscreants was seen, in fact almost stepped upon. Expert opinion on the subject has not decided which one got away the fastest.

At any rate, in the words of that great man, Archibaldson, "the mountain pussies are upon us" in more ways than one. The only preventative so far known is a "cold in the head." All efforts to catch the commander in chief have failed and it is thought to be due to him that their war slogan has been carried throughout the vicinity. Each evening, before sending out his patrols, he has them all gather 'round him in a circle for a council of war. And from all indications he tells them the same thing each night—"Let us spray."

WEST VA. COURT HEARS CASE ABOUT DR. STEWART

Veteran Dentist a Familiar Figure Around Oakland.

Whether or not a man who wears an overcoat in July and a straw hat in January and builds a house for a Ford ton truck in a room in his home without making any provision for its removal through the ordinary-sized door, is sufficient to warrant the appointment of a committee to handle his business affairs, is a problem which the Monongalia county court, at Morgantown, West Va., has to decide.

These questions are involved in the petition which is before the court, asking that a committee be appointed for Dr. William E. Stewart, veteran dentist, of Morgantown, who, it is contended, is incapable of managing his own affairs and is in weak physical and mental condition.

Dr. Stewart has been spending the majority of his time during the last two months in the vicinity of Oakland, his reason being, it is said, to await the decision of the court in regard to his efficiency. His familiar figure has been seen almost every day near the postoffice. He wears a long, black overcoat, overshoes with ropes around them to hold them in place, and is usually unshaven. He usually carries his umbrella along with him in case of rain, or otherwise.

Dr. J. W. Hartigan, surgeon, declared in the hearing that he did not consider Dr. Stewart feeble minded or abnormal minded, but considered him peculiar and queer, but not to the extent that he could not administer his affairs personally.

Another doctor testified that he had known Dr. Stewart and had treated him for many years and that in his opinion the man was not competent to manage his own affairs and felt that the appointment of a committee would be a benefit to Dr. Stewart.

Two men who said they had done work for him testified that in their judgment he possessed a shrewd business instinct and was capable of managing his own affairs.

The property in question is a valuable one situated on the main street of Morgantown, and Dr. Stewart has a life occupancy interest in the second floor of the present building. The merchant who occupies the first floor was on the stand in behalf of the petitioners and in his testimony declared that he considered Dr. Stewart weak minded and feeble minded. Asked for some incidents upon which he based his opinion, he stated that Dr. Stewart was prone to wear a straw hat in January and an overcoat in July.

It was stated by witnesses that Dr. Stewart has been represented as being unwilling to dispose of the interest, feeling that he has sufficient funds on which to live and does not care for anything further. He is represented as being in poor physical condition and would rather continue to occupy the property than to dispose

And while the court is deciding the fate of the veteran dentist, Dr. Stewart is spending his leisure time in Oakland as he awaits the decision.

Causes Of Death

That heart disease, Bright's disease, cancer and other diseases of middle age and later life have taken the place formerly occupied by tuberculosis and other communicable diseases, as causes of death in Maryland, is shown by a report prepared by the Bureau of Vital statistics of the State Department of Health.

Out of a total of 22,656 deaths recorded in 1926, heart disease was responsible for 3,233 or one out of every seven. Pneumonia, broncho and lobar, listed as separate causes, was responsible for a total of 2,459 deaths. Bright's disease came third with 2,087 deaths. Cerebral hemorrhage, the cause of 1,825 deaths had fourth place; cancer, responsible for 1,702 deaths came next and tuberculosis, the cause of 1,611 deaths had sixth place.

When the figures are separated into white and colored a greater prevalence of the respiratory diseases in the colored than in the white population is indicated, but comparison with the figures for other years points to a gradual increase in heart disease, Bright's disease and cerebral hemorrhage in the colored population corresponding to that in the white population.

In the white population, organic heart disease was the leading cause of death, and was responsible for 2,569 deaths; 1,154 in the counties and 1,415 in Baltimore City. Chronic Bright's disease came next with 1,781 deaths, 803 in the counties and 978 in Baltimore City, causing one death out of every ten. Pneumonia, broncho and lobar took a toll of 1,715 deaths; 664 in the counties and 1,051 in Baltimore City. Cancer came next with 1,486 deaths, 560 in the counties and 908 in Baltimore City. Cerebral hemorrhage the next in order caused 1,467 deaths; 762 in the counties and 705 in Baltimore City, while tuberculosis, with 1,058 deaths, 548 in the counties and 490 in Baltimore City came next.

The order for the same diseases in the colored population was: pneumonia, broncho and lobar, first place, with 745 deaths, 235 in the counties and 489 in Baltimore City; heart disease next with a total of 664 deaths, 274 in the counties and 390 in Baltimore City; tuberculosis, third, with 573 deaths, 288 in the counties and 285 in Baltimore City; chronic Bright's disease, with 506 deaths, 216 in the counties and 290 in Baltimore City, fourth and cerebral hemorrhage, fifth, with 358 deaths, 167 in the counties and 191 in Baltimore City. Cancer with 234 deaths, 92 in the counties and 142 in Baltimore City had seventh place in the colored deaths. The colored population of the State constitutes approximately one sixth of the total.

NORTH GLADE.

The revival meeting, which is being held at this place, is being largely attended.

Last week it was stated that J. D. Rhodes was in the hospital with a fractured limb, but this proved to be a mistake as he turned up all right.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Merrill were shopping in Oakland one day last week.

Mr. Jacob Tasker, of Vindex, was in our community last Saturday on business.

Miss Alberta O'Brien, of Mt. Lake, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve O'Brien, for the past week.

J. L. McRobie is very ill at this time.

Miss Freda Beckman was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Kate O'Brien, on Sunday.

J. D. Rhodes was visiting at the home of G. C. O'Brien on Sunday.

Best wishes to The Republican and its many readers.—O. I. C.

Mrs. Schoch is spending the winter with her daughters at Washington, D. C.

CRELLIN.

Mrs. Jack Smith entertained her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Freeland and Mrs. E. A. Hartman and daughter Marie, all of Terra Alta, on Tuesday with a chicken dinner. Mr. Albert Markley, of Oakland, joined them at a later hour with a kodak, and they spent an enjoyable afternoon.

Mrs. John Hinebaugh gave a birthday party for her son, Harold, on Saturday evening.

We are glad to hear that our school house has been repainted.

It was a mistake about Miss Mildred Smith's illness, which was stated in the paper on the date of September 22. Also a mistake about her taking pictures for a show. She is taking pictures of her home folk and friends just for friendship's sake.

Council Has Quiet Session

Authorizing the payment of the monthly bills, and the report on the work done on the city streets comprised the total amount of business at the monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council Monday evening.

It is expected that Liberty street will be repaired before cold weather sets in. All other work done in East Oakland, and on Second street between Oak and Water streets has been completed, Council reported. The session was the quietest one held in many months, according to Mayor Fraley, nothing of any importance coming before the meeting.

KITZMILLER IS STATE'S LATEST HEALTH CENTER

Local People Contribute Labor and Material for Headquarters

The latest addition to health centers in the State was recently fitted up and opened at Kitzmiller, in Garrett county, according to a report from the State Department of Health. In every sense of the word it is a community affair, of the community, by it and for it. The local Health Club, under the leadership of Miss Yolanda Clawson, public health nurse of that section of the county, started the ball rolling. A small frame building centrally located was secured and everybody got busy.

Some of the industrial concerns provided the wherewithal for lumber, paint and other supplies. The money was deposited in the First National Bank at Kitzmiller, to be drawn upon as needed. Three of the best painters gave their time and transformed the exterior of the little building into a place of white and green beauty. Three more craftsmen skilled in the use of hammer and saw worked after hours on the interior, putting up partitions, dividing the space into two rooms and building shelves that are the joy of the nurse's heart because they hold her outfit of sheets, pillow cases and other supplies for her classes; for the health conferences and clinics and for her loan closet for emergency needs.

Electric lights were installed by two other neighbors and then Miss Gertrude Kiger, instructor in home economics in the Kitzmiller High school and the girls in her classes had their turn at beautifying the interior. The girls tinted the ceiling a light buff and the walls a darker shade and selected dainty curtains to blend with the color scheme and finally, the furniture for the waiting room was donated by a business firm in an adjoining town.

Equally strong community interest was aroused and cordial assistance given to the local public health nurse by the people living nearby and especially by the high school boys and girls, in the planning and equipping of another recently established center —one clear across the State at Crisfield in Somerset county.

These new centers serve, as do those that are at other places scattered throughout the State, as the headquarters of the local public health nurse. They also afford a convenient place for community meetings, for health conferences, diphtheria immunization clinics, as well as for health clubs and classes, and for other health activities.

A. and P. Manager Leaves Monday for Piedmont

William Parks, who for the past 14 months has been manager of the Oakland Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's store, will leave Monday for Piedmont, W. Va., where he will take charge of the store in that city. Frank Criss, of Parsons, W. Va., who has had charge of a store in that city, will take over the work of Mr. Parks. Mr. Criss arrived in Oakland the early part of the week.

STILL AND MASH NABBED; ALLEGED SHINERS HELD

Guy Gilson and Daniel McRobie Arrested Last Wednesday

Prohibition Agents, C. D. Jaek and B. A. Barr, of Cumberland, with constabble L. B. Sharpless, of Kitzmiller, found a still in operation by Guy Gilson and Daniel "Ort" McRobie on the road between Kitzmiller and Deer Park. A 50-gallon still, 12 barrels of mash and eight gallons of finished product were confiscated. The men were arrested and brought to Kitzmiller where they were given a hearing before Magistrate G. M. Poole, last Wednesday. They were held under $500 bond each.

State Policeman Stationed At Oakland Permanently.

W. A. Wigley, of LaVale, near Cumberland, has just recently been appointed as State policeman for this territory, and will make his headquarters in Oakland. He arrived here Monday, and since his arrival, blue tags have been found on several motor vehicles, summoning their owners to appear before the local justices. Up until Wednesday morning, however, all summonses were repealed by the officer, with his hope and expectation that they would have served their purpose and thereby save the sum of $6.40 each for the owner. Since it is law to have a parking light the officer feels that it must be enforced and therefore advises motor vehicle operators to snap on their light when parking after sundown.

MANY TAKING ADVANTAGE OF FREE CAR INSPECTION

Six Hundred Forty-Six Have Yellow Sticker Attached to Their Windshields

Have you a little yellow sticker on the windshield of your car, telling the public that it had been inspected? If you have you are one out of six hundred forty-six who have taken advantage of free inspection service that is being offered by six Oakland garages between the dates of October 24 and November 12, inclusive. If you have not, there is a chance that you will be requested by someone to have your name placed on the list.

At a late hour last night the six garages who are furnishing the inspection free of charge had approximately 650 call and have their cars looked over. More than 50 percent of all those inspected were reported O. K., and out of the number which were not up to standard, the majority had trouble with brakes and lights. Very few inspected had any serious defects.

People who have not had this inspection still have until Saturday. Those garages offering the free official State inspection are: Kerins Brothers, Standard, Oakland, Houck Auto Supply, Treacy's, and E. S. Evans'.

Out of the number inspected, Kerins had 223, Evans 175, Oakland Garage 86, Houck 66, Treacy 50, and Standard 46.

FORM BASKETBALL TEAMS AT MEETING ON TUESDAY

Representatives of Six Teams Plan for Coming Season

That there would be a basketball Church League formed in Oakland this winter, was the outcome of a meeting of several representatives of different teams held in the offices of The Republican on Tuesday evening. Six teams were represented and since that time two more have signified their intention of entering a team, bringing the total number to eight.

Those who expect to enter teams are Knights of Columbus, Catholic, Lutherans, Presbyterians, Methodistc, Mt. Lake Park and Weber combined, High School, Grellin, and the Knights of Pythias. It is not certain that the K. of P's. will enter a team, and it was thought by representatives at the meeting that the Methodist and Presbyterian churches would combine, as the Presbyterian and Episcopals did in former years.

Games will be played on Tuesday and Friday nights, the representatives decided. Negotiations have been going forward in regard to the renting of Naylor's hall, on Third street, and if successful, the league will open up about the first of December. There will be two games each night on two nights each week, it was decided. Another meeting to perfect plans and decide other details will be held tonight at 7:30 in The Republican office. All representatives and anyone interested are urged to be present.

"The American Red Cross has a foremost place in the ranks of distinctive American institutions which we honor and loyally support. It has become an intimate part of our every day life. To it we turn instinctively and confidently when sudden calamaties occur.

"We have had frequent occasions to witness its readiness for instant and effective response at the call of duty.

"We have tested the Red Cross in war and in peace. It has never failed us. It never will so long as it holds your support.

"As President of the United States and as President of the American Red Cross, I earnestly ask all our citizens to renew their membership in this legion of mercy."

KITZMILLER IS DECLARED INELIGIBLE BY P. A. L.

Garrett County Champs Have Players Over Age Limit

Fred Fritzberg, official referee of the W. M. I. Soccer league received word Tuesday night from William S. Pitman, state field leader of the Playground Athletic League, of Baltimore, to the effect that Kitzmiller High school, champions of the Garrett county league, is ineligible to play Bruce High school, Allegany county champs on Saturday afternoon at Frostburg, a neutral field, due to the fact that several members of the Kitzmiller eleven are over 21 years of age, the limit set by the Baltimore governing body.

It has not been decided whether Oakland or Grantsville will be declared county champions, but at present it is thought that Grantsville will receive the title. Oakland High school team is also said to have played a boy over 21 years of age in its first two games.

BOY, FIFTEEN, SUSTAINS SKULL FRACTURE IN UPSET

Friendsville Youth Reported Improving in Cumberland

The condition of Ford Fike, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Derrer Fike, of Friendsville, who sustained a fractured skull Tuesday night, when an automobile in which he was riding, plunged off the National highway at Grantsville, was reported as slightly improved last night at the Western Maryland hospital, Cumberland, where he was rushed for surgical attention.

Mr. Fike, together with Roy Meyers, Dan Frazee, Herman Rawlings and C. C. Bender, the employer of the men shoveling limestone screenings from railroad cars to trucks for distribution along the road, were in a car traveling from the Dixie Tavern at Little Crossings to Grantsville about 7:30 Tuesday evening; at the turn west of the big bridge they became confused by the blinding lights of another car, causing the driver to steer off the side of the road. The machine was badly wrecked, it having rolled down a steep embankment of about 40 feet into a stream and over a pile of discarded iron and tin. Roy Meyers sustained cuts on the forehead, Dan Frazee received minor bruises, while Rawlings and Bender escaped unhurt. Dr. N. R. Davis rendered first aid to the injured men and Fike was hurried to the Western Maryland hospital, Cumberland.

OVER ONE THOUSAND ARE ISSUED HUNTING LICENSES

Clerk Has Been Busy Since November 1 in Writing Out Permits for Hunters

More than 1,000 hunting licenses for residents of the county have been issued from the offices of the clerk of the circuit court, according to A. G. Ross, town clerk, who has been busy since November 1 writing the permits.

Until November there were only a few issued, but since then, the date when it became permissible to hunt wild fowl, the clerk has been kept extremely busy issuing the permits. On Tuesday at noon there had been 961 issued, and there were enough applications on Mr. Ross' desk to make up the balance of 1,000.

Many more are expected to apply when it becomes lawful to hunt rabbits and pheasants. The date for this day is today, November 10. There have been few non-resident licenses issued, and few state-wide licenses, Mr. Ross stated. The prices for licenses are as follows: county, $1.25; non-residents, $15.50; statewide, $5.25.

Bag Limit Given

The bag limit for hunters is as follows: wild ducks, 25 per day; geese, 8 per day; rabbit or hare, six; squirrels, ten; English or Mongolian pheasant and ruffed grouse, two, and not over six per season; wild turkey, one and not over four per season; male deer, only one per season.

Permission to shoot wild fowl on Deep Creek lake was granted this year with the result that many have been spending much of their time in search of the winged quarry.

Necessary to Get License

It is absolutely necesary for all who intend to do any hunting to procure a license, Mr. Ross said. Section 14 of the game laws of Maryland states that it shall be unlawful for any person to hunt any birds or animals, which are protected by law, without first procuring a license (except landowners and tenants and their children may hunt on property owned or tenanted by them without a license).

ONLY HIGH GRADE CATTLE TO BE BOUGHT IN COUNTY

Must Have Good Dairy Cows, County Agent McGlone Says

L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent, is now looking for territories from which to buy suitable cows to be brought into Garrett county, according to J. L. McGlone, county agent. This is being done, Mr. McGlone said, so that there will be no repetition of what happened in the Moorefield, W. Va. district, when only "scrub" cows were purchased in place of high grade dairy cattle.

Survey Progressing

The dairy survey, under the direction of J. A. Hodges, district baggage and milk agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, has been progressing as well as can be expected under the adverse weather conditions, he said. Prior to the beginning of the survey, numerous questionnaires were sent out to farmers which have not as yet been returned, Mr. McGlone stated and this should be done as soon as possible, if the agent is to get any valuable estimate as to the amount of milk that is being produced in the county. With this information, the Washington dairy plant will know just how large a plant to build here, he explained.

HOSEA PREACHES GOD'S LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Hosea 11:1-4:8, 9; 14:4-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—I desire mercy and not sacrifice and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Unchanging Love of God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Loving-Kindness of God.

Hosea's message was primarily to Israel. The nation was outwardly prosperous, for its height of temporal glory was reached in the time of Jeroboam II. (See II Kings 14:20). With this prosperity came luxury, immorality and apostasy. Calf worship and Baal worship were substituted for the worship of God.

I. The Apostasy of Israel (chs. 1-3).

1. The marriage (1:1, 2).
